

Surprised Wife With Twins (Ivan and Jennifer) Chapter 371

Ivan's face looked a bit serious, "No."

"How is that possible? You're so handsome," she didn't trust him and looked up at the sky, "Then did you fall in love with someone?"

She just wanted to know him more."

"No, I didn't," Ivan didn't lie to her, "I was not interested in girls then."

"Did any girl fall in love with you? Did any girl tell you she loved you?"

"I won't deny this one. But I was cold then. They just took a few photos of me from afar."

"No one wrote a letter to you? They just took photos of you? It sounds a bit strange." She was so curious.

"They were afraid of me," Ivan said in a low and cold voice, "They said whoever sent a letter to me will be expelled."

Jennifer knew the reason, "Because of your mother?"

"Maybe," Ivan said, "I have no idea. In her eyes I must get married with Catherine."

"Then... Catherine is one of your classmates?"

"Yeah," Ivan said, "But she was only my friend. We talk with each other like friends."

"There must be a lot of girls jealous of her," Jennifer could imagine how popular Ivan was, "At least Catherine could talk with you."

"Now they're jealous of you," Ivan said with a faint smile on his face and held her hand in his tightly, "Now I'm jealous of you too."

Jennifer leaned on his back and looked up at the blue sky. A happy smile emerged on her face.

Ivan suggested again, "Come to my company after you finish that dubbing job, will you?"

But Jennifer was still not sure whether she would take the position as the vice president of the Marsh Group yet.

"We can talk about it later," she didn't decline his invitation directly, "Now we have to improve your relationship with your mother first."

"Don't bother," Ivan promised, "I won't let her hurt you anymore. And I won't let her meet you alone."

"I'm not scared of her."

"But I'm worried about you," he said, "I want to protect you."

"I think she has compromised a lot. Now she isn't against our marriage anymore," Jennifer was in fact quite grateful to Aubree.

"My mother is a bit paranoid," Ivan frowned, "I apologize for that."

But Jennifer didn't care. She understood why his mother had done so, "We should understand your mother. It isn't her fault."

Ivan didn't say anything.

As they got back to Emerald Bay, Jennifer made a sumptuous dinner for him. Ivan only loved the food cooked by his wife.

After dinner, as Jennifer was taking a shower, Ivan put the train tickets to his drawer. Now he had four in total.

These tickets witnessed their love.

Next day morning.

Jennifer received an email from Spencer.

He reminded her of today's meeting.

And Jennifer didn't forget it. She had set an alarm for this meeting.

After she sent an email back to Spencer, she got downstairs to have breakfast with Ivan.

"Mr. Marsh, I cooked those spaghetti in Mrs. Marsh's way. Would you like to have a taste?" Marry tried to cook the breakfast for Jennifer so that she didn't have to be that busy.

Ivan and Jennifer sat before the table.

Ivan held the knife and fork in hand and had a taste of the spaghetti. Jennifer looked at him and said, "You don't have to eat so much. I could find out how to cure your stomach."
