Chapter 1331

Therefore, they had no idea what Sean was up to yet.

However, what they did know was that Sean had led them to numerous successful battles.

This time, they would not lose either.

However, it was not the right time yet.

Therefore, not all of Sean's plans would be revealed.

"Commander, you were brought up by Old General, but you're very different from him."

Zander followed Sean's gaze and looked outside for a moment before saying suddenly.

"What do you mean?"

Sean was confused.

"I think..."

"Old General prefers to take the straight way and uses tactics less."

"And you like to plan everything and make the best use of everyone's potential."

Zander looked at Sean and said what was on his mind.

It was what Zander thought sincerely after spending time with Sean.

He found Sean to be so thoughtful. It was as if he was in control all the time.

Sometimes, Sean did things Zander did not understand or even thought were pointless.

It was like chess. A lot of Sean's moves seemed like dead ends.

However, when Sean made the real killing move, Zander realized that every move Sean had made was prepared for the final killing move.

Everything was linked with one another. Every move counted.

Therefore, Zander was shocked and confused.

After all, Sean had always received Old General's teachings.

However, Sean's behavior was so different from Colin's that Zander was somewhat confused.

"Yeah, maybe I took after my parents."

Sean was silent for a moment before shaking his head and chuckling.

"Your parents..."

Queen Children’s Orphanage.

A brand–new BMW X3 blocked at the gate.

Five minivans also turned off their engines and waited behind the BMW.

No fewer than 30 people were standing in the yard, and Albert was among them.

Caitlyn and two caretakers led all the children to hide in the classroom.

May stood outside the door with her arms spread wide.

“Aunt May, calm down.

“I’m not going to do anything to the kids.”

Albert said with a sneer, several phones in his hand.

He had confiscated Caitlyn, May, and the rest’s phones.

It was to keep Caitlyn from tipping Sean off.

Albert thought that if Sean knew he had brought so many people with him, Sean would be too scared to come.

Therefore, he would never give Caitlyn a chance to warn him.

“Albert, I didn’t expect you to go this far.”

Her face ghastly pale with anger, May said through clenched teeth as she pointed at Albert.

“Haha, isn’t it you who made me who I am?”

Albert sneered and blamed it all on May.

“You’re a son of a b*tch!

“Aunt May raised you too. Why is Brother Sean great?

“How can you blame your Aunt May for going astray yourself?”

Caitlyn yelled to Albert from the room window.

“Shut the f*ck up!

“Are you looking for trouble?”

Albert snorted coldly and walked toward the classroom.

The children were too frightened to breathe and huddled in the corner.

Sean's words immediately infuriated Albert.

"Who are you to make me do whatever you say?"

"Who the f*ck do you think you are?"

"I'm telling you. I'm not returning the things, and you'll have to leave one leg behind today!"

Albert's eyes were cold.

Sean had already folded the cuffs on both sleeves.

"You won't listen to reason.

"You just insist on making me fight fire with fire!"

Sean finished and stepped forward.

"F*ck! Kill him!"

Albert was unafraid today.

He brought over dozens of people today. Could they not defeat Sean?

Others had the same idea as Albert.

Sean was alone. They did not take Sean seriously.

Dozens of young men rushed toward Sean.

Before Albert could catch his breath, Sean slapped him again.

“I tried to reason with you, but you didn’t listen.

“You didn’t appreciate my kindness.”

Then came another slap in the face.

The three slaps left Albert dumbfounded, and his nose was bleeding violently.

This time, May watched and did not stop him.

She thought of Albert as her child, so she endured it as best as she could.

However, she eventually saw Albert for who he was.

“Wait and see!

“Sean, my name isn’t Albert Neeson if I don’t kill you today!”

Albert swore through gritted teeth and went to pull open the door of the BMW.

“If I remember correctly, you got this car using my supplies.”

Sean asked indifferently, picking his ear.

“So what if it is?”

Albert froze before asking through clenched teeth.

“The car’s mine.

“Touch it, and I’ll kill you.”

Sean slowly looked up at Albert, his eyes cold.

“You!

“Fine! Just wait and see!”

Albert eventually chickened out from driving the car. Instead, he got into the minivan nearby.

Caitlyn locked eyes with Sean.

She tried to say something. However, catching the look in Sean's eye, her mouth moved, but nothing came out.

"You should trust your brother."

Zander added.

"Should I trust you like I did when I was little?"

Caitlyn was silent for a few seconds before suddenly blinking her eyes and saying.

"Haha, of course."

Sean nodded and replied with a hearty smile.

"Okay!"

Caitlyn said no more and nodded deeply.

"Close the door and draw the curtains.

"Come out when I call you."

Sean touched Caitlyn's head again and whispered.

It was noisy and chaotic.
However, Albert and the rest were so loud that they did not notice the sounds.
Even if they did, they thought it was noise from the distant streets.
“Ray’s quick.”
Sean blew his fingertip and said with a smile.
“It shows that he hasn’t forgotten the iron law of his time in the army.”
Zander nodded gently and stood behind him.
No one dared to disobey the iron law of the army.
Opportunities on the battlefield were fleeting, and they never came again once you lost them.
Even a one–minute difference could result in the death or injury of countless people.
Therefore, Sean asked Ray to arrive in a few minutes, and he had to be there with men.
Being one second late would be a grave crime that could warrant execution.
“Sean, go ahead.
“How do you want to die today?
“Based on our childhood relationship, I can let you choose how to die.”

Albert closed in on Sean with hundreds of men.

“Let me choose?”

Sean slowly looked up at Albert.

“Yes, I’m letting you choose. Go ahead!”

Albert sneered. He was currently less than 20 meters away from Sean.

“Get down on your knees and bow ten times.”

Sean put away the nail clippers and spoke lazily.

“What? Hahahaha!”

Albert froze slightly before laughing.

“You’re smart, Sean!

“You know you should be the one kneeling and bowing to me? But isn’t it a little late to do that now?”

Albert’s face was full of disdain. He had expected Sean to flee by now.

“I’m talking about you.”

There was a touch of playfulness in Sean’s eyes.

“F*ck! Why do I get the feeling these guys are tough? Should we run?”

A young man next to Albert was a little pale.

Thugs were fine with bullying honest people.

When facing someone tough, they would begin cowering right away.

“What are you afraid of?”

“Though they have more people than us, we have weapons.”

A middle-aged man wearing a gold chain had a calm look in his eyes.

Albert brought hundreds of men, and some of them were tough.

The strong men with shaved heads were members of the underworld.

It was not as if they had never seen anything like this before.

“Yes! Knock them down!”

Albert was eager to try.

“Go! Charge!”

“Kill them!”

The two sides yelled and rushed toward each other together.

However, the gap in strength was too big to be leveled by tough talk.

The men Sean asked over were brave soldiers.

One hundred thousand personal guards who were good at fighting.

The elites of these personal guards were far more powerful than the special forces.

These guys were so good they could beat 10 burly men with ease.

Albert and the rest underestimated Sean's soldiers after all.

As soon as the two parties clashed, the men on Albert's side were knocked to the ground.

Even though they were holding weapons, they could not even touch their clothes.

These soldiers were far better than ordinary people in terms of reaction speed and physical strength.

Thugs like Albert were no match for them.

In less than a minute, half of Albert's hundred men had been knocked down.

"I'm done fighting! I'm done fighting!"

Sean smiled and nodded.

“I’ll find you if you don’t come.”

Sean hung up as soon as he finished.

Albert and the rest only listened in silence as they dared not even make a sound.

“Tell me who your boss is.”

Sean asked indifferently, looking back at Albert.

He was not only going to take care of Albert today, but he was also going to take care of the people behind Albert.

It was the only way he could prevent future problems.

Otherwise, even if Sean killed Albert, Albert’s boss might avenge Albert.

If Sean were not around, Caitlyn and the rest would be the ones to suffer.

Brother Sergio sneered, about to give instructions to attack.

However, he instantly swallowed the words after getting a good look at Sean’s face.

Who did he see?

The nightmare of his life!

He remembered how ruthless the young man surnamed Lennon was.

When he worked for Tyga, he was living it up, and nobody dared to mess with him.

However, the young man surnamed Lennon killed Tyga with everyone watching.

However, nothing happened to him. He was safe and sound.

After Tyga died, his men went their separate ways.

Brother Sergio also left the place and worked for Kenneth.

However, he did not expect to meet Sean when he was already hiding there.

“Don’t move! You’re not allowed to move!”

Brother Sergio grabbed a young man, who was about to strike, his eyes full of horror.

“Mr... Mr. Lennon, why is it you...”

Brother Sergio shuddered and went up to greet Sean as he bowed.
