

The 80s 346

Chapter 346: The Initial Contest

Cheng Su turned around, and a radiant face appeared before her eyes, with trendy big wavy curls and a curvy figure. Were those eyes the legendary "Soul-Attracting Eyes"?

The woman also walked in a very enchanting manner, now smiling at her, her eyes...

Were filled with eagerness and a hint of provocation.

Cheng Su's eyes instinctively narrowed as she could already deduce that this stranger in the courtyard was very likely from the military doctor team sent to the grassroots level; she just didn't know if this was a military doctor or a nurse!

Moreover, the woman's outfit was definitely not from an ordinary background.

Take a look around the courtyard for 'modern' women; considering the current season, who isn't wearing pants, a long shirt, and a simple jacket? Those who are slightly more fashionable might wear a skirt with a sweater, and even then, the styles aren't particularly trendy.

Yet, the one in front of her, dressed like this, she wondered who she was trying to seduce, Cheng Su silently mocked in her mind.

She was dressed in a dark wool skirt, an off-white sweater, and high-heeled leather shoes, had a touch of makeup, and displayed her good figure, which if worn around the military district, would likely make those single soldiers, long without companions, take cold showers every night in the freezing weather.

Hold on, was that a military uniform she carried in her hand?

If the enemy didn't move, she wouldn't move; Cheng Su calmly waited.

While Cheng Su was assessing her, the woman, who was actually Chiang Qing, had also sized up Cheng Su from head to toe.

No, it was when Cheng Su had just had a row with someone's daughter-in-law that she had already had a good look from the side.

Commander Qi's wife, Cheng Su, came from a rural background, and it was said she was involved in some business; having a fallout with an illiterate sister-in-law was nothing out of the ordinary. Commander Qi had truly wasted himself!

However, her outfit was indeed different from the other daughters-in-law in the courtyard.

Dark pants, a high-neck pink sweater, and a small coat over it, hmm, what style is this, a suit style?

And looking at her, with a ponytail and rather delicate features, she was passable but no match for herself.

Chiang Qing instantly felt at ease but upon noticing Cheng Su's height, she couldn't help but hiss—it was over 1.7 meters, taller than her.

Between assessing and mocking each other, the two women had already completed an initial showdown just by standing across from one another.

"Sister-in-law Qi, hello, I'm Chiang Qing, a military doctor who has just arrived at the grassroots level, and I live next door," Chiang Qing said with a smile, extending her hand.

So she was that military doctor, attractive, with a respectable job, dressed fashionably; it seemed her background couldn't be too bad either!

Cheng Su thought quietly to herself and also smiled as she reached out to shake her hand, "Hello, Doctor Chiang, I am Cheng Su!"

Chiang Qing watched as she withdrew her hand and said, "Miss Cheng, are you heading out?"

"Yes, I am. May I ask what brings you here?" Cheng Su inquired about her purpose.

Chiang Qing laughed as she brushed her hair aside and said, "Then I am really lucky. If I had been just a couple of minutes slower, I would probably have been greeted by a closed door early in the morning."

Cheng Su raised her eyebrows and smiled lightly, waiting for her to continue.

Chiang Qing then lifted the military uniform in her hand and gazed into her eyes saying, "Commander Qi's coat ended up with me, and I've come to return it. It just so happened that I caught you as you were leaving. Isn't that a coincidence?"

While speaking, she keenly observed Cheng Su's facial expressions, wanting to see even the slightest change, but Cheng Su continued to smile.

Chiang Qing frowned slightly. This woman, hearing that her husband's clothes were with another woman, wasn't angry at all?