

The Deadly 109

Chapter 109 Completely Lost in Her Own World

A Rehners sharp words lingered, the room shifted its attention to Zachary and Alice, eager to see how she nd react after publicly belittling him earlier.

[wp whispers that Robin was merely a bodyguard rusted by Shirley, today's events revealed his real withority within the hunn Group

The fact that Miller Group had been cklisted from future partnerships with the Dunn Group was shenonly his doing

Under Rohan's cold, unyielding gaze, Alice's face twisted in rage and disbelief.

She spot, voice dripping with indignation, "Robin, you're despicablet

"Do you really think this power y of yours will ever make me respect you?

You're wrong No matter what you do, I'll never look up to you!

"Do you actually believe you hold the same influence as Mr. Gill? You're nothing but a recklesskey," she Zachary gently pulled on her arm, urging softly, "Alice, let it go. Let's just leave."

But Alice shook him off and raised her voice defiantly,

"Why should I stay quiet! This petty man only knows how to pull strings in the background. Does he dare face me head-on

"He wouldn't, all he cares about is showing off his so-called power!"

Robin watched Alice's furious outburst with amusement, as if even associating with him was beneath her.

He chuckled, unfazed. "Ms Miller, whether you think I'm worth respecting or not doesn't concern me. It has nothing to do with today's signing

"And as for our canceled engagement? It wasn't worth a second thought to me, yet it seems you're the one hung up on it. Howme"

A soft wave of light swept through the hall.

Everyone was aware of Shirley's apparent fondness for Robin.

Though Alice was talented and beautiful, she paled in comparison to Shirley.

Clearly, Alice had overestimated her importance.

Zachary, noticing the critical stares around them, leaned in to warn Alice, hoping to cut off the argument.

He knew this was neither the time nor place for her defiance.

If Robin decided to reveal any of their company's vulnerabilities, the fate of the Gill Group could resemble Haven Realty's demise.

He quickly intervened, attempting to defuse the tension "Robin, if the Dunn Group has decided not to sign with us, we understand. We won't question the reasons behind the decision. Let's just move on" But Alice was relentless. "No, Zachary, don't go! We haven't broken any laws. If he shows our numbers, so what? I refuse to believe he can twist the facts into lies"

In that instant, Zachary felt a sudden urge to shake Alice to her senses.

Nopany was entirely clean.

If they had been dealing exclusively in honest money how could they have amassed such fortune so swiftly?

Haven Realty's copse was unfolding right before the eyes.

Did they really want to be next?

Shaking his head, he sighed. "Fine, Alice. If you want to stay and argue, be my guest. I have other matters. With that, he turned and walked away.

A group of reporters blocked his path. "Mr. Gill, why aren't you seeking an exoneration from the Dunns?

Zachary waved dismissively. "It's up to the Dunns whether they choose to partner with us. If they don't believe we meet their standards, then Gill Group will strive to improve. There's nothing more to say." Pushing through the crowd, he disappeared into the bustling corridor.

Determined to confront Robin, Alice felt a tug on her sleeve as Vera whispered, "Alice, let it go. This isn't worth it

But Alice shook her off, dering, "No! I need to know what his real intentions are!"

Robin's cold voice broke through. "Fine, I'll exin exactly why the Dunn Group won't sign with the Miller Group

As he spoke, arge screen lit up with detailed financial records and analysis of the Millers.

Currently, the Miller Group was facing a severe cash flow problem, having defaulted on loans for the past. Two years

Four banks were already in the process of terminating all loan agreements with them and intended to demand immediate repayment of their outstanding debts.

ording to the current analysis, even if the Millers sold off 80 percent of their assets, they would still be unable to pay off what they owed.

If they couldn't secure immediate funding, bankruptcy was inevitable.

The Millers' financial standing and operational issues left them incapable of meeting the requirements to coborate on the Eastvale Ecological Project with the Dunn Group.

The financial information the Millers had presented earlier was false!

The hall echoed with gasps of shock.

It turned out that beneath the grand image the Miller Group had crafted, they were teetering on the edge of ruin.

How could they possibly meet the standards to work with the Dunn Group?

At that moment, every gaze in the room turned back on Alice with scorn.

"Who does she think she is, demanding answers from the Dunns?"

"She's completely lost in her own world, making a spectacle of herself-so pathetic!"

Just as Robin was about to disclose a second troubling issue about the Millers, Vera quickly stepped in, cutting him off. "Robin, let's leave it at this. Just revealing the current information is enough to show that the Miller Group doesn't qualify for the Eastvale Ecological Project.

"Alice, she's given up and doesn't need the Dunns to explain anything to her. Let's end it here, okay?"

Vera's voice was calm yet insistent.

Everyone in the hall turned their focus toward her.

"Isn't that Ms. Silva? Why is she sticking up for Alice?"

"I heard they're close friends."

"And it looks like Ms. Silva has a good rapport with Robin

"Do you think Robin will grant her request?"

Robin paused briefly before responding, "Alright."

Instantly, reporters swarmed toward Alice.

"Ms. Miller, can you shed light on your past engagement with Robin? Why did you break it off?"

Alice clenched her teeth, irritation shining across her face. "We're not equals! He's a nobody-I'd never see him as anything more!"

"Ms. Miller, Mr. Ramsey is reportedly a senior figure within Dunn Group, not just amon brute as you've suggested.

"Also, do you know how he's connected to Ms. Dunn? Could you tell us?"

Frustrated, Alice pushed her way past the crowd. "Leave me alone! I don't owe you any exnations!"

With that, she rushed out of the hall.

"Alice, wait!" Vera called, noticing her friend storming out.

But Robin stepped in her way. "Ms. Silva, just a moment, please."

The hall went quiet.

"As I understand it. Silva Group is fully qualified to parmer with Dunn Group and is currently one of the project bidders.

"If you're interested, I'd like to offer Silva Group the remaining three outsourcing contracts."

Vera stopped in her tracks, turning around to face Rolin.

She intended to decline, but Irvey stood up before she could speak.

He could barely contain his surprise at this sudden opportunity!

"Mr. Ramsey. I'm Harvey, the chairman of Silva Group, and Vera is my daughter.

"Am I correct in understanding that you're proposing Silva Group take on the three development projects Dunn Group has in Eastvale?"

Robin's gaze shifted from Harvey to Vera. "That's right.

"I've reviewed your bid details, and yourpany's qualifications meet the requirements perfectly.

"All three projects could be entrusted to yourpany for development. Ms. Dunn, do you approve?"

Shirley gave a nod of agreement.

Harvey was nearly beaming with excitement.

Thank you, Mr. Ramsey! Thank you, Ms. Dunn! I'll ensure our finance department sends over our funding details right away.

"We're fully prepared and can handle these three projects with excellent quality and efficiency!"

Robin then looked directly at Vera and said, "Ms. Silva, I'd like you to be the one to sign this contract."

Harvey was momentarily stunned.

Robin didn't want him to sign the Eastvale project contract-he was asking for Vera to sign it instead?
"Mr. Ramsey, Vera isn't actually involved in running thepany..."

Robin's expression hardened. "Then I'll retract my offer. If Silva Group isn't interested, we'll leave it at that
