

The Deadly 115

Chapter 115 If I Go Back on My Word, I'm A Beast

Before Robin could respond, Vera held up two bank calls in front of Alice. "These are Robin's, and they hold around 500 or 600 million."

"Alice, if you're genuinely willing to go through with this transaction, we can verify the funds now and handle the paperwork. Once that's done, the transfer can proceed immediately." Robin nodded at Vera and said, "Alright, I'll leave this in your hands. When the time comes, I'll sign the transfer agreement."

Then, he headed directly into his office.

"Uh, Robin..."

Seeing Alice actually transfer her Southvale plot, Zachary hurried after Robin. "I've got a Southvale plot too. Any chance you'd consider buying mine along with hers?"

Robin paused, eyeing Zachary with interest, and chuckled. "Absolutely, I'll buy it! Why wouldn't I? You all probably don't know yet, but Southvale's value is about to double!" Alice scoffed inwardly. Only an idiot would fall for that!

Zachary inwardly sneered. Robin, you're such a fool! The value of Southvale isn't about to double, what a joke!

Still, he maintained an overly agreeable facade. "Exactly If I weren't in a hurry to recover my funds and pay back Shawn's loan shark interest, I wouldn't even consider selling my Southvale plot."

"Are you sure you won't regret selling to me now that Southvale's prices are set to rise?" Robin said, casually pulling out his phone to record the conversation while ncing between Alice and Zachary Alice huffed. "Robin, do you really think I'm as naive as you? Once I, Alice Miller, sell my Southvale plot, no matter the price, I won't have any regrets!"

Robin smiled slyly. "But what if it suddenly skyrockets to 15 billion, 20 billion, or even more in just a few days? You won't regret it then?"

Alice snapped back, "It's just money! Look at you, acting like you've never seen the world! If I go back on my word. I'm a beast. Does that make you feel better?!"

Robin shrugged. "Alright, I believe you. What about you. Zachary?"

Zachary jumped in eagerly, "Absolutely! Once something is sold, it doesn't matter the price-I'll never regret it. That's a fundamental principle. Just like Alice said, if I go back on my word, I'm a beast!" "Perfect! I'll offer you 400 million for your Southvale plot. How about that?" Robin said, a smirk curling at the corners of his mouth.

"Four hundred million?" Zachary's smile immediately vanished. "Alice's plot is the same as mine. Why is mine only 400 million?"

If you can't ept that price, then it's fine. I won't buy it!" Robin replied, turning to walk away.

Zachary exurge of rintance

That bed Robin is rallying

1dly million of the price

However, if he didn't sell hus Southwale plot now, it would only lose value over time.

Zonally, it might not even be worth a single penny.

Grieting his teeth, he said. "Wait a minute, Robin Four hundred million it is. I'll sell!"

Cary Deal Robin looked back at Vera, "You add some more money and buy Mr. Gill"snd. If you're worried, just think of it as a loan to me

Vera hesitated for a moment before saying, "Alright, let's go handle the transfer paperwork

She left Eastvale with Zachary and Alice.

Meanwhile, Robin switched off the recording on his phone

He knew that in three days, the price of the Southvale plot would soar by tenfold or even more.

An influx of eager investors would flood the area.

At that time, Alice and Zachary would definitely regret it when they saw that the value of their land had increased so many times

It's better to have a backup plan when dealing with these scoundrels and petty people, to save unnecessary trouble later on.

After Vera and the others left, Robin ran into Jonah as he was going out of Howard's office.

Seeing his dejected expression, Robin knew Jonah must have hit a wall with Howard as well.

Jonah stumbled along, filled with despair, muttering to himself, "I have truly reached the end of my rope! Sigh! There's nothing I can do, it's just my fate, my fate! If God won't give me a way out, no matter how hard I try, it's just wasting time!" "Not necessarily if you meet me!" Robin said, stepping in front of Jonah with a calm smile.

Jonah looked up at Robin and asked, "Who Who are you?"

Robin chuckled lightly, "I'm Robin Ramsey. Are you Jonah Ferguson of Infinity Tower?"

"Robin Ramsey?" Jonah pondered for a while but couldn't recall what this young man did.

Robin scrutinized Jonah's bloodshot eyes and said, "I've heard that you hold projects for Infinity Tower and many commercial blocks in the surrounding area?"

Yes, what do you mean? Jonah's eyes lit up, as if he had grasped a lifeline in a sea of despair.

However, the light of hope in his eyes soon faded again.

Because the person before him looked too young.

Even if he were an executive at the Dunns, it was unlikely he had the authority to manage funds in the "Come with me to the office. We need to discuss Infinity Tower," Robin said, gesturing for Jonah to follow.

Jonah was puzzled. He didn't recognize Robin and, seeing this young face, felt a sense of double Could he be Shirley's newly hired assistant?

However, as Jonah followed Robin to the office, he noticed that the person inside seemed to hold a higher position than Howard.

It seems this young man is indeed Shirley's assistant.

With a mix of apprehension and curiosity, Jonah accompanied Robin to the door of the office and saw the plaque reading "CEO"

It is indeed Shirley's office!

Jonah's hope, which had just been shattered, was reignited.

But then, thinking of the price Liam mentioned, his spirits sank once more.

Does Shirley want to lower the price?

Sigh. At this point, I'll just wait and see. After all, I'm already out of options!

As he entered the office, Jonah noted that it was far more impressive than Howard's.

However, he quickly realized that Shirley was nowhere to be found.

He had never interacted directly with her.

His only encounters had been with her father, Timothy Dunn, a few times seven or eight years ago.

"Please, have a seat" Robin gestured to the sofa, inviting the anxious Jonah to

"How long until Ms. Dunn returns?"

sit down for their discussic

deadline for repaying his bank loanah nced at the clock; he had a little over three hours until the

This meeting could be hisst chance to turn things around.

"Ms. Dunn? She won't be back today," Robin replied tly. "Now, let's talk about the situation with Infinit Tower.

"You? Mr. Ramsey, I'm sorry, but can you really make decisions on something this significant?" Jonah fe his earlier hope faded when he learned that Shirley wouldn't be returning today.

"It's just a matter of tens of billions. Do you really think 1, as the CEO of Eastvale,ck the authority to handle that?" Robin asked with a chuckle. "If you're not interested in discussing it, that's perfectly fine."

"Wait, y-you're the CEO of Eastvale?" Jonah stammered finallying to his senses after a trement.

The Dunns' decision to entrust their most crucial asset to this young man clearly indicated that he won an important figure within the family.

Jonah quickly stood up and shook Robin's hand firmly I apologize, Mr. Ramsey, I didn't know

Robin gestured for him to take a seat. "No problem. I've heard a bit about your situation. Now, tell me how you n to handle Infinity Tower and its surrounding assets"

At that moment, Jonah felt he had nothing left to losedid everything bare.

"Mr. Ramsey, to be honest, I've invested nearly 20 billion in the Southvale project.

"Several investors withdrew midway, and now I'm on the brink of bankruptcy,

"Today is the final deadline for repaying my bank loan, and I also owe Abyssal Dominion nearly two billion. Shawn has taken my wife and child hostage.

"If I can't repay them today, not only will the bank seize all my assets, but Shawn and his crew will also kill my family!

In total, I need ten billion to get through this crisis! Mr. Ramsey, please

Jonah stood up, intending to beg Robin formally, but was pulled back firmly. "No need for that. I'll speak to Ms. Dunn and let her know, the Dunns will take over!"

Just then, Jonah's phone rang. It was a call from Shawn Trembling, he pressed the answer button. Before he could say anything, Shawn's voice came through the line. Jonah, if you can't repay the money today, you know what will happen to your wife and daughter!" In the background, he could hear the desperate cries of his wife and daughter.

Robin frowned and pointed at Jonah. "Give me your phone!"