

The Deadly 116

Chapter 116 Jonah Ferguson

Jonah looked at Robin, hesitating for a moment, think he must have misheard.

Robin extended his hand, signaling for Jonah to pass over his phone.

Only then did Jonaly realize that what he had heard was indeed true.

Fearful, Jonah covered the microphone and whispered Mr. Ramsey, it's the Devil, the second-inmand of Mr. Rygar."

"I know," Robin nodded. "Aren't you looking for me to take over your Infinity Tower?"

"How can you confidently proceed with the construction of the Infinity Tower when these tangled issues remain unresolved?" Shawn's call came in unexpectedly.

In his moment of panic, Jonah hadn't fully understood that Robin was indicating he would take over the Infinity Tower.

Now, regaining hisposure and reflecting on Robin's words, he felt a surge of excitement, his body trembling with anticipation.

Jonah recognized that today he might have genuinely found his savior.

He quickly handed the phone to Robin.

Robin said indifferently, "Shawn, how much does Jonah owe you?"

On the other end of the line, Shawn was taken aback by the sudden question.

How could Jonah be with this man?

For a moment, he was unclear about the relationship between Robin and Jonah.

"Mr. Ramsey? Uh, Jonah borrowed a billion from me a while back, and after nearly six months, he now owes Abyssal Dominion two billion, including interest. "I see," Robin responded indifferently.

"Put a hold on that debt for now. Release his wife and daughter. I'm taking over the Infinity Tower, and he'll repay you in a week," Robin commanded.

On the other end of the line, Shawn felt a wave of desperation wash over him at Robin's words.

If Robin was taking over the Infinity Tower, would he ever be able to collect that money? "Release them immediately. Do you understand?"

"Yes! Of course! Mr. Ramsey, I'll take care of it right away!" Shawn replied, not daring to question him. "Mr. Ramsey, I'll personally see them home, and I guarantee no one will lay a finger on them," Shawn.

assured.

10 free Coins

Jonah can repay Abyssal Dominion the principal only he doesn't have to worry about the interest. He can pay it back whenever he wants-even if he chooses not to at all. Tell this to Mr. Rygar

Robin replied coldly. "A debt is a debt: it must be repaid! The two billion will not be a penny less!"

"Yes, yes, Mr. Ramsey. I'll follow your instructions completely," Shawn immediately responded.

Shawn thought to himself, Whatever you say, Sir. Money nothing compared to a life

Robin tossed the phone back to Jonah..

At that moment, Jonah felt as if he were living in a dream.

He had thought he had reached a dead end today, facing ruin not just for himself but for his wife and child as well.

He never expected that this young man before him would miraculously help him find a way out!

If it hadn't been for Robin, even if he had managed to get past the bank, his troubles would have only worsened.

Shawn and his gang of ruthless thugs wouldn't easily let things go.

His final one would surely be the ruin of his family.

At that moment, Robin appeared like a divine savior, lifting him from the depths of despair with a single phone call.

To Jonah's surprise, Shawn actually released his wife and daughter.

"Make a call to your wife and daughter to confirm they're safe, and then we can talk," Robin said, noticing Jonah's fearful expression as he gestured toward the phone.

"Otherwise, if your mind is distracted, you won't be able to concentrate on the Infinity Tower negotiations," Robin remarked.

Jonah nodded, trembling as he dialed his wife's number.

After a video call with his wife and daughter, he waspletely reassured that Shawn had truly let them

1. go.

In fact, Shawn had personally driven them home, repeatedly apologizing to both of them.

This oue left Jonah stunned.

Aside from Rygar, there was no one else in Harmonfield who couldmand Shawn's loyalty.

Who was Robin, really?

Jonah looked up at him in awe.

So young, yet already the CEO of Dunns Eastvale, and he demanded the respect and obedience of Shawn, known as the Devil!

Jonah studied the remarkable young man before him closely.

He realized that meeting Robin today truly offered him a chance at salvation.

With a deep breath, he felt the immense weight on his heart lift significantly.

After a brief moment of joy, Jonah suddenly became alert.

In all of Harmonfield, no one wanted to take on the Infinity Tower project.

Yet Robin showed no hesitation at all.

Could it be that he had some hidden conditions?

"Mr. Ramsey, this is our first meeting and you're aware of the current state of the Southvale site, so how much are you willing to offer for the Infinity Tower? Jonah asked cautiously, trying to regain hisposure.

Robin recognized that Jonah still doubted his ability to manage the Infinity Tower.

Jonah, you've always believed that the Southvale area would be a focal point for investment and development in Harmonfield, and you're correct.

"While Southvale is closest to the Havenport Economic Zone, the city government has overlooked its development for many years.

"Many people are aware that the Southvale site used to be a graveyard.

"Over the past three years, your investments alongside some developers in Harmonfield have slightly improved the environment in Southvale.

"But in the couple of years, with investors withdrawing their capital from Southvale, the land has returned to its former state.

"Still, I believe that investment and development in Southvale are only a matter of time.

"As andmark building in the area, the value of the Infinity Tower is irreceable.

"The city government will eventually develop this area, and when they do, it will undoubtedly receive significant investment.

"If Dunns were to take on the Infinity Tower now, it would be a highly profitable investment."

Hearing Robin say that, Jonah felt an instant connection, feeling as if they were long-lost friends.

"Mr. Ramsey, in over a year of visiting so many people, I haven't encountered anyone who expresses such insightful thoughts as you do.

"It's my own ignorance! I should have realized that the Dunn Group's board would only appoint someone with extraordinary vision and insight like you as the CEO of Eastvale.

"I apologize for having underestimated you, Mr. Ramsey

Then, Jonah bowed.

He sighed heavily.

"While you are the CEO of Eastvale, will Ms. Dunn and the board agree to let you purchase the Infinity Tower from me?

"Even if Ms. Dunn agrees to your acquisition of the Infinity Tower, will the upper management of the Dunn Group be willing to invest 10 billion to make the purchase?"

Robin chuckled. "Mr. Ferguson, I've stated my intention to buy the Infinity Tower, so of course, we can afford the ten billion."

Jonah immediately jumped up from the sofa. "Mr. Ramsey, are you serious? Are you really willing to pay ten billion for the Infinity Tower?

"I know you're a visionary with a brilliant business mind.

"But ten billion is no small amount; it will require approval from the upper management of the Dunn Group's board.

"Can this transaction bepleted today?"

Jonah, feeling anxious, voiced his urgent concern. "If the funds aren't secured, the bank will seize the Infinity Tower immediately."

Robin chuckled softly. "You don't need to worry about the funds. Once the transfer contract for the Infinity Tower is signed, the money will be transferred to your account right away."

"Even if we can't complete the full fund transfer in time, there's still another way to collaborate."

"We can help you resolve all your debt issues first, and then we can discuss the next steps for cooperation, including getting the Infinity Tower back under construction as soon as possible." Jonah could see that Robin was serious, and he nervously asked, "Mr. Ramsey, are you really prepared to spend ten billion to buy the Infinity Tower?"

Robin nodded at Jonah, whose eyes were filled with hope.

"You've invested nearly 20 billion in the Infinity Tower over the past three years; how could I offer you only ten billion? That would be quite unreasonable." Jonah was confused about Robin's meaning. "Mr. Ramsey, are you implying..."

Robin gave him a reassuring pat on the shoulder. "You should have a financial record of all your investments in the Infinity Tower."

"Bring those to me tomorrow, and the Dunn Group will meet that amount! We can go over the details then."

Jonah thought he must have misheard.

"Mr. Ramsey, are you saying that you're willing to buy the entire commercial area of the Infinity Tower for nearly 20 billion?"

Robin nodded. That's correct, you heard me right."

"If the city government decides to invest in the Southvale area again, property prices will shoot up quickly. Won't you regret it then?" Jonah shook his head. "Mr. Ramsey, I'm already at my wits" end.

"Even if the value of the Infinity Tower increases tenfold or twentyfold tomorrow, I won't be able to make any more money by then.

"If I hadn't met you, Mr. Ramsey, I would have lost everything today, falling into an abyss.

"Your help in getting me through this crisis is a tremendous blessing.

"And now you're willing to take on the entire commercial area of the Infinity Tower for 20 billion? You're giving me a second chance at life! "Mr. Ramsey, you've saved my family!

"How could I possibly go back on my word once the property values in Southvale rise?

"Otherwise, I would be worse than a beast.

"But waiting for the city government to invest in the Southvale area might take another ten or 20 years."

Robin chuckled lightly. "Alright then, I'll inform Ms. Dunn to take care of your matters with the bank first. and then we can discuss the Infinity Tower." Jonah felt as if he were in a dream.

He had gone through countless struggles and faced relentless ridicule over the Infinity Tower, thinking he was beyond hope.

He never imagined he would meet Robin in those crucial final moments!

He sincerely said to Robin, "Mr. Ramsey, thank you!"

Five minutes later, at the Dunn Group headquarters, several major shareholders and executives, including Howard, arrived for an urgent meeting. Everyone unanimously opposed Robin's acquisition of the Infinity Tower!