

The Deadly 34

Chapter 34 Butcher

Sean's unexpected appearance also surprised Rygar.

Sean had a fierce reputation-everyone knew that not a single fighter from Abyssal Dominion had managed to beat him.

Kyler Quinn, known to avoid business-world conflicts, rarely let his disciples get involved outside their circles.

Yet now, with Sean stepping into this territory, it raised questions.

Was Kyler aware of this move? Or had the Hamiltons already allied with Brookhaven Martial Alliance?

If so, the Hamiltons recent maneuvers in Harmonfield seemed more formidable than expected.

Rygar looked at Robin, wondering how the so-called Heir of the Gilded Dragon, the VIP for the Queen of the Night, would respond. Seeing Sean appear, Shirley was also shocked.

Although she knew Robin's skills, she felt uneasy with a ruthless opponent like Sean.

His sharp, predator-like gaze sent chills down her spine.

Seeing that Liam had brought in such a fierce helper, the other guests instinctively stepped back.

From the back of the hall, Alice chuckled mockingly.

"Robin just doesn't know when to quit. He's so cocky with the Dunns behind him. Now that he crosses Mr. Liam, he's doomed!" Zachary snorted. "He won't get another chance this time. Sean is a devil, a killer who shows no mercy.

"He's never lost, and anyone who's crossed him has ended up dead or disabled!"

Vera was astonished as she gazed at Robin.

From the momentum alone, Sean seemed to tower over him.

For anyone who hadn't seen Robin in action, he looked like no real threat—calm and indifferent, a gentle smile on his face. Apart from being handsome, there was no indication that he had any skill.

Could he withstand the challenge from Sean?

Liam sneered at Robin, who hadn't spoken up, taunting "Mr. Ramsey, are you scared? Perhaps you've never seen how we settle things here. "When it's down to it, strength is what matters most. So if you're not ready for the consequences.. don't go too far. It could cost you!"

At that moment, a sultry voice cut through the tension as a figure entered the hall. "What's going on now? More trouble? You all never fail to bring drama!" Instantly, the crowd parted, making way for Daphne, whose arrival was met with cheers,

The heads of various families respectfully bowed and greeted her with smiles, "Greetings, Ms. West!"

"Ms. West, I'm Eden Sidney from SkySouth Corporation...

"Ms. West, it's an honor to meet you....

Daphne acknowledged them with a charming smile and nodded as she entered, nked by her maids and bodyguards led by Rowan and Rita.

Making her way to the center, she asked, "Mr. Rygar, Ms. Dunn, Mr. Liam-I thought you were getting along. Why the sudden tension?"

Rygar responded with only a sneer, while Shirley stood in silence beside Robin, her gaze icy.

Liam exaggerated the southern development zone dispute, muttering bitterly, "Ms. West, don't you think they're purposely defying me?"

Daphne chuckled lightly. "Mr. Liam, I'd say that's on you. Since you handed over the southern development zone to Mr. Rygar, what happens afterward is no longer your concern. Mr. Rygar has the right to make his own decisions about it. Who he passes it on to or how he handles it is entirely his business.

She gestured for a waiter to bring four glasses of red wine and continued, "Let's let it go. Today's a rare opportunity for everyone to gather. Let's stay friendly and focus on prosperity!"

"It isn't a big deal. Don't escalate the situation and ruin the harmony, Mr. Liam. Let your man leave."

Liam, however, made no move to take the wine, his expression growing colder. "Let it go? Ms. West, we're talking about a piece of land worth billions. There's no way I'm letting it slide!"

A tense silence fell over the room, Daphne's smile fading as she replied, "So, Mr. Liam, are you suggesting that you still want to push things here?"

Liam gave a sly grin and pointed at Robin. "This worthless guy messed up my plans over and over tonight. I want to settle the matter in the southern development zone with him the hard way!" Daphne's face turned steely. "Mr. Liam, let me remind you that Violetcrest is my domain. Anyone who wants to cause chaos here needs to get my permission first!"

All the guests tensed, feeling the chilling air that emanated from the queen of Violetcrest, Daphne's temper something they'd only heard about before.

"If you're determined to take action here, Mr. Liam, then so be it, she signaled for Rita to clear the banquet hall immediately.

In seconds, the hall emptied, leaving guests lingering just outside, murmuring about the showdown they expected to unfold.

"It's the first time I've seen Ms. West this angry-her power is intense!"

"Looks like Robin's in big trouble

Inside, Liam stood his ground, now even more thrilled by the challenge. "Ms. West, even though this is your territory, I ask you not to get in my way. This is between me and him." Daphne chuckled. "On my grounds, you can't act whatever you like!"

Liam smirked. "So, you're determined to make this your business, are you?"

Taking a step back, he signaled Sean, who moved around, his gaze chilling as he assessed Daphne and the others.

Rowan charged forward, aiming a sharp kick toward Sean's shin.

Soon, he and Sean were locked in a heated exchange. But after only three moves, Rowan's strength was waning..

Rita watched anxiously, sweat forming on her brow as Sean's punch finally sent Rowan to the ground. But he wasn't finished

Known as a ruthless butcher, no opponents could be left unscathed under his attacks.

Sean leaped high into the air and came down fast, knee aimed straight for Rowan's chest.

Kita couldn't bear to watch. She knew that if Sean's knee connected, Rowan might be dead or disabled for life.

Daphne's frown deepened. She sensed what might be but felt unable to act.

The Soul-Eating Charm Robin had expelled from her body left her weak, and he had warned her against using her vital energy for now.

All she could do was stand by helplessly and watch Sean kill Rowan

Rygar was also solemn.

Sean was every bit the fearsome reputation he'd earned

More importantly, if Liam aimed victory tonight, he and the Dunns would be in danger

Liam's plans were wicked.

Just then, Robin spoke up, breaking the silence. "What kind of garbage move is this?"

As Sean's knee was about to make contact, Robin casually gave him a light shove, sending him flying back 15 feet as if he'd been hit by a massive weight. Rowan stared in disbelief.

He had a front-row view of Robin's seemingly effortless move and couldn't wrap his head around how he'd done it.

Before anyone could react, Sean leaped back up, angrier than ever, and swung his fist at Robin

At that moment, Robin extended a hand to help Rowan to his feet, his back still turned to Sean

"Mr. Ramsey, look out!" Rowan gasped, noticing Sean's fist coming straight for Robin's head

Robin sighed. Without turning around, he calmly pulled Rowan to the side and delivered a kick to Sean's back.

With a loud crash, Sean's nearly 300-pound frame shot across the room like a cannonball, flying into one of the pillars. His body twisted awkwardly, and his