

The Deadly 42

Chapter 42 Being Followed by Assassins

Vera nced at Robin's stern face and erupted in giggles. "Haha, our most expensive mansion in Harmonfield, Vi One on Dawnsfire Heights Estates by Crescent Lake! "Alright, I'll drive you home!"

Vera started the engine of the sports car but remained stationary.

Noticing that Robin was still calmly seated in the passenger seat, one would think his house was genuinely located in the vi area at Dawnsfire Heights Estates. "Haha... Robin, I truly admire you!

"Are you for real? Is the most expensive vi in Dawnsfire Heights Estates actually yours?"

Robin stared at Vera, who was currentlyughing hysterically, and responded, "Yes, and what about it? Let's go! What's so funny?"

Tears started to form in Vera's eyes from all theughter.

"Robin, you're so amusing! If you were a stand-upedian, you'd surely be the nextedy legend! Haha...

Robin frowned and nced at his reflection in the rearview mirror, finding himself quite handsome.

He looked over at Vera, who was still laughing wildly, and said earnestly, "Hey, cut it out!

"I need to know, do I really seem that poor? In reality, I'm quite rich. I have at least trillions in my bank account...

Vera kept laughing. "Haha... You're so funny, Robin! Can you please stop joking? I'm going to die from laughter, haha..." Seriously!

What's up with these women?

Is it necessary to wear a massive gold chain, sport a big gold watch, and drive a fancy car to be seen as wealthy?

No more comments!

Think whatever you like, as long as it makes you all happy.

After a while of laughing, Vera finally managed to regain her composure.

Robin looked at her and pressed his lips together, saying, "Calm down, don't tug too much. Concentrate on driving. I'm still here!" Vera suddenly ceased her laughter.

It was only then that she recognized she had been so carried away that she had forgotten to keep herself in check.

Feeling embarrassed, she quickly adjusted her clothes.

"You cheeky guy! Alright, no more joking around.

"Now, tell me, where do you live?

"If you don't have a place to stay at the moment, I can take you to the closest hotel so you can book a room.

"Dawnspire Heights Estates-it's a bit of a distance from here.

"If I actually drive you there, and you say it's not where you live, are you just lying with me?" This belongs to NovelDrama.Org - ?.

Robin let out a sigh, "You're such a handful. Who's messing with you?

"If you don't want to take me there, I'll just grab a taxi myself."

With that, Robin reached for the door to exit the car.

"Alright, alright, I believe you. Let's go." Vera pressed the gas pedal, and the Porsche sports car sped away like an arrow.

She was curious to find out if this man was genuine or not.

Could it be that, as Alice suggested, this guy is just really skilled at pretending?

"Dawnspire Heights Estates is located on the eastern outskirts of the city.

"This vi area is categorized into three levels. Vi One area started at one billion.

"The highest-level area, Area One, is situated at the very top."

"There are only five vis in this area. Vi Two until Vi Five are already taken, but Vi One has remained unupied since its construction. "Rumor has it that Vi One is owned by a very mysterious person.

"No one has ever had eyes on his true face. Oh, wait-it's you! Haha...

Robin nodded, "Technically, it wasn't mine in the past, but it is mine now and will be in the future."

Seeing the serious look on Robin's face made Vera smile even wider.

Is this man a graduate of the performing arts?

His acting skills are truly exceptional.

Noticing that it was still early, Vera suddenly recalled a thrilling and entertaining spot.

"Robin, there's a really fun place on the route to the Dawnspire Heights Estates.

"It's still early. Should I take you there to check it out?"

"A fun place? What do you mean by fun?" Robin yawned lazily and inquired.

"A spot for exhilarating car races," Vera exclaimed.

"The Spiral Heights of Dawnspire Mountain features a winding road that circles up to the top.

"Many people enjoy racing there, oftening together topete in various thrilling styles.

"The most exhrating of these is the "life and death speed" game.

"Each bet involves a sports car valued between five to ten million.

"Even though idents leading to crashes and fatalitics happen frequently, racing enthusiasts never seem to lose their passion for it.

"Robin, do you want to join?"

"I'm not going!" Robin answered immediately.

"I have a deep respect for life and find that reckless stuff uninteresting."

"Tsk! You're such a coward! No wonder Alice isn't fond of you!" Vera scoffed, casting a disdainful nce at him.

Robin's mouth twitched slightly. He wanted to argue that it was Alice who was blind to the truth. Suddenly, he noticed two Hummer SUVs trailing them at a fixed speed in the right rearview mirror. Close to the Hummers, there were also two dump trucks, each weighing 60 thousand pounds.

The two Hummers and the two dump trucks were clearly part of the same group.

Judging by their positioning, it appeared they were following the Porsche sports car that Vera was driving.

Could these individuals be Vera's enemies?

Or were they targeting me specifically?

At this point, it was unclear.

They were still within the city limits, surrounded by numerous cars and pedestrians moving all around.

It wasn't easy to investigate them in this busy area.

Instead, he would rely on the Dark Web to uncover these people's real intentions before taking any action.

Before long, the Porsche left the lively city center and merged onto the Eastern Suburb Ring Road.

This road was the only route leading to Dawnspire Heights Estates.

The view was wide, with only a few cars and people on the road.

This part of the Eastern Suburb was designed as a luxury residential area by the Harmonfield City Government.

The navigation system displayed the road conditions up ahead.

Dawnspire Heights Estates was less than twelve miles away from this point.

The entire route was nearly a straight path, featuring two intersections and a single T-junction along the way.

Robin glanced at the rearview mirror.

The two Hummer SUVs that had been tailing them the entire time were still casually keeping pace, less than a hundred yards back. However, the two dump trucks were nowhere to be seen.

This tracking approach felt somewhat basic.

Yet, from this recognizable scent, it could be deduced that they belonged to a group of assassins.

Still, it wasn't clear who their intended target was.

Were they enemies of the Silvas, or were they seeking revenge against Robin?

If they were after him, there would be no need to investigate further.

The Dark Web assassins stationed nearby to safeguard him would notify him immediately.

After that, they would get orders to either run an assassination or detain the other side.

A minute later, Robin received the update.

The two Hummer SUVs were associated with Liam from Universal Group, and four assassins had been hired by someone named Pablo.

These assassins had begun tailing him three hours prior.

Five minutes earlier, they verified that Robin was on his way to the Dawnspire Heights Estates.

The four assassins nneed to stage a car ident along this route to eliminate him.

The Dark Web assassins asked for instructions on how to proceed.

Instead of authorizing them to act, Robin opted to manage the situation personally.

The mountain road to the Dawnspire Heights Estates includes three intersections in total.

Pablo's team would most likely attempt their strike at the middle intersection.