

The Enticing CEO's Chosen Bride Novel

Chapter 17

Feeling pissed off about the situation, Viviana couldn't just sit back and take it. So she hopped out of the car

Seeing someone getting out from the car, the waiter at the door heard a voice from his earpiece, his face instantly shifted, and he shut down the reservation machine right in front of Viviana.

Viviana halted, her anger spiked up

This was clearly a setup!

Grinding her teeth, she still walked up to the waiter, and asked coldly.

"What's up with your place? Why are you targeting us? Do you pick and choose customers?"

The waiter had a plastic smile plastered on his face, politely responded,

Yes madam But you are the only customer we singled out!

Viviana was livid, and she almost collapsed,

"You! I'm gonna file a complaint!"

"Feel free"

The waiter still kept his polite smile, not bothered about the complaint at all.

His attitude left Viviana perplexed, becoming more cautious.

This restaurant wasn't just any place. It had stood the test of time, there must be a reason. The arrogance of the staff made her wonder who the hell owned this place.

But-

"We didn't steal, didn't rob, didn't cause a ruckus here, why are you treating us differently?!"

Viviana's momentum was a bit less than before, but she was still fuming inside!

"Because you offended the future wife of our boss" The waiter said.

Viviana froze.

The waiter was also caught off guard.

He just repeated what he was told in his earpiece!

He knew the manager of this place, but as for who the real boss was, he had no clue.

And he was totally in the dark about this future wife!

So when Viviana asked him who the future boss lady was, he could only answer—he couldn't disclose.

Viviana's face was flushed, gritted her teeth, was about to turn around and leave. She then saw two staff members coming out of the restaurant, leading a menacing dog with fiery red fur, strutting out fiercely.

Upon spotting Viviana, the fierce dog roared and started jumping around, as if ready to pounce on her anytime!

Viviana stepped back, clutching her chest, her face turned pale.

Then, she saw another waiter put a bowl of meat in front of the big dog, who sniffed it and started eating.

This was a blatant insult.

Viviana was utterly embarrassed, her face was beet red She stood there for a while, speechless, then clutched her chest, turned around and walked back to the car. All this caught the eye of Carolina. As Viviana approached, she asked softly.

“What happened?”

Viviana said. “I have no idea, they said we offended the future wife of their boss. But how could we know who their future lady boss is?”

Carolina furrowed her brows upon hearing this,

“Is there a misunderstanding?”

How could they offend someone?

Viviana said “I don’t know.”

Viviana was both shocked and angry. She had no mind to figure out what was going on.

“Alright, get in the car! It’s getting late. Let’s go to another store to buy some food for Keira! There must be some misunderstanding.” Carolina said thoughtfully.

How could they offend someone for no reason?

If they really offended someone, it must be Chloe who unknowingly pissed someone off.

Over the years, the Summers family had endured so much cold shoulder and mockery because of her.

Thinking of this, she was filled with anger.