Exile - Prologue

Exile - Prologue

As the youngest child of Alpha —, I had a pretty easy going life; free to live my life as I saw fit. My parents' one rule was, do as you wish as long as it makes you happy. And I was happy...until some bastard came along and poisoned my entire family with wolf's bane at what should've been a routine meeting of alpha families. They didn't even spare my brother's pregnant mate! The only reason I wasn't dead alongside them was sheer luck. I decided to stay home to pack for a road trip I was going to start the next day.

No more road trip. No more family.

I'm alone and the luna of a pack that doesn't believe I can be the leader they need. I am alone, but if I had a mate, a strong alpha to keep the wolves at bay, maybe I could pull this off and make my father proud of me.

I should've remembered the old saying: be careful for what you wish for...

This is the story of how my one simple plan to find my mate and rule my pack became anything but simple. Nothing is simple when your mate is a feared, hated, rabid wolf that will snap at anything that gets near him.
