

The First Heir 144

Chapter 144

Such a man was simply the prince charming of every woman!

His wife was too blissful and fortunate.

The bank teller on duty felt envious as jealousy began to well up in her.

“Hurry up with the process. I have to go grocery shopping with my wife,” Philip said calmly.

Patrick was taken aback. Nevertheless, his face had a bright smile on it as he instructed Yolanda to process the transaction on the spot.

Philip only needed to provide them his ID card to authorize the transaction. That was the so-called VIP treatment!

One billion in deposits!

It was an accomplishment that Patrick never imagined he would achieve in his lifetime!

With such an achievement, the following year’s branch presidency would definitely be his!

“Mr. Clarke, your wife is very fortunate indeed to have a husband like you,” Patrick complimented.

Philip merely responded with a faint smile. After everything was done, he left.

When Patrick returned to the main lobby, he explained to Martha, “Auntie, I’m so sorry. There was an error in our banking system just now. There’s only one hundred thousand in this card.”

cards had been hollered, “Impossible! There’s one hundred billion in it for sure! I counted how many zeroes there were! You’re lying. You must

one could control Martha’s system. I hope you can come to an understanding of our ganging up and

Patrick angrily, pulled Philip’s hand, and said, “Philip, call the police. The bank is trying to in the card. How could there be and shouted, “You, you! You’re trying to cheat me of my money! I don’t have a son-in-law like you! Get lost! That money belongs to mood at the moment was

to believe or listen to everyone’s help did they manage to persuade

quickly sent her mother
the supermarket to get some groceries
a dedicated nurse to take care of her, she was no longer very him in her voice that was like a baby's happiness as he bopped her on the nose and asked, "Were you a good her hands as she said with a grin, "Mila has been Mila up and
and found Patrick. She asked, "Manager Carson, tell me, was there only one hundred thousand in Wynn felt that Philip had lied
she clearly noticed the reactions of several bank tellers.
of the ordinary