

The First Heir 1561

Chapter 1561

Hearing this, Martha became even more anxious and said angrily, "Old man, what do you mean by that? Do you think he still dares to hit me? If he dares to hit me again, I'll get Wynn to divorce him! This loser doesn't respect me as his mother-in-law at all!"

"Divorce? Do you really think Wynn will divorce him now? The baby in her belly will be born in a few months."

Charles sighed.

"Why not? Do you think our family can't survive without Philip?"

Martha retorted furiously, "I'm telling you, Charles Johnston, put away your thoughts of flattering him. Philip only has a bit of money now and knows some people. If you really compare him to those people outside, he's still far from them!"

Martha was very clear about who Philip was. Even if he became a king one day, Martha would still despise this piece of trash!

Hearing these words, Charles shook his head helplessly and continued to read his newspaper.

The investor behind Beacon Group?

Martha was taken aback as she mumbled inwardly. 'What does Philip mean by that?'

Was it possible that the investor behind Beacon Group had something to do with him?

"What do you mean? If you have something to say, just say it. Don't beat around the bush," Martha said with a skeptical look in her eyes as she observed Philip.

Philip chuckled and said, "I transferred all the funds of Milanelson Angel Investment Group to Beacon. Once Beacon suffers any major financial disruption, the funds will immediately be injected. If you wanted to look into me, why didn't you get someone to investigate this? It's such a pity. Maybe you could have found something."

Philip really had to take his hat off to Martha for going to such an extent.

The reason she checked up on him was all because of money.

When Martha heard Philip's words, her heart thumped. He had transferred the funds of Milanelson Investment Group?

It was all under Beacon's name?

Philip was not just trying to coax her, right?

Victor Bell stepped forward, glanced at the dozen or so hooligans in front of him grimly, and shouted, "Who sent you here? If you tell me, I'll let you go!"

Victor was angry. Those who dared to stop Philip's car were simply looking for death!

The man in the lead chuckled and said, "Oh, are you impersonating street punks by bringing so many henchmen with you? If you had asked around, you would've found out that this territory belongs to me, Marvin!"

"Also, who the hell are you? Is there someone like you in Riverdale? How come I've never seen you before?"

The man continued mocking as he jabbed the baseball bat in his hand directly on Victor's chest. His attitude was extremely pompous.

Victor lowered his eyebrows and looked at the baseball bat on his chest. The corners of his mouth twitched as cold intent appeared on his face.

When had Victor Bell, one of the three major underground forces in Uppercreek, ever been provoked like this?

"Do it! Beat them up until they tell us who sent them!" Victor roared furiously.

In an instant, the dozen or so thugs behind him rushed out in a swarm and fought with the group of hooligans.

Bernard hurried back to First Palace, yelling as he entered the door, "Martin, something has happened!"

Martin was drinking coffee and reading the newspaper at this time. Seeing Bernard rushing back in a fluster, his eyes were filled with displeasure as he asked, "Why are you panicking like this?"

Martin had learned to maintain his composure by now so that he would suit his image as the chairman of Beacon Group.

Seeing that flustered look on his third brother, he was naturally displeased.

Even after getting rich, this younger brother of his still could not get rid of those bad habits.

Bernard panted and said, "That, that Philip Clarke..."

Upon hearing this, Martin was overjoyed. He abruptly stood up with a face full of excitement and said,
"How did it go? Have you captured him? Let's go! Take me there!"

Bernard did not move. He waved his hand and said, "No, we didn't catch him."

Victor anxiously got down from the car as well. He got their men to surround Philip and closely guard him.

As soon as Philip got out of the car, his cold eyes swept over the entire area. As far as the eye could see, dozens of people were fiercely staring at him.

"I don't want to cause trouble. Tell me where Martin Johnston and Bernard Johnston are," Philip said loudly.

Even in this situation, he did not show any fear.

This display alone made the dozens of people across the street a little startled.

In the crowd, someone shouted, "Who the f*ck do you think you are? You want to see Master Martin and Master Bernard? Dream on!"

"Philip Clarke, I recognize you as the worthless son-in-law of the Johnston family. You won't get away today. Tell your men to obediently withdraw and kneel on the ground!"

“Vifhoever dares to touch Mr. Clarke will be messing with me, Theo Zander!”

Theo Zander!

The big shot of Riverdale!

He was a prominent figure in this area!

At this moment, his motorcade had stopped in front of Beacon Group's building!

A dozen black Mercedes-Benz cars were lined up in a row. The doors opened and dozens of thugs in black suits stepped down, completely surrounding this place! Theo also ran over briskly.

Upon seeing Theo, the man who was arrogantly trying to teach Philip a lesson before turned grave and gloomy. He stood to one side.

Who would have thought that Theo would return at this time!

According to the information received, Theo should be holding a chamber of commerce over in Penhart. How could he have come back so soon?

“Mr. Theo, this is Beacon's internal affairs. I'm afraid it's inappropriate for you to interfere like this.”

The man in the suit and leather shoes, whose name was Blake Poole, had a pale face at the moment. He spoke in a cold voice.

As a result...

Theo just flicked a glance at him, raised his hand, and gave him a slap across the face. He shouted, “Blake Poole, are you worthy to talk to me like that?”

He was a character who had retreated to the background. Finally, he appeared again today!

It was only because Martin Johnston of Beacon Group had offered a large sum that could help him regain control of Riverdale.

This was the main reason Douglas was willing to step forward this time.

As a person got older, their movements would also get slower. Douglas did not wish to continue living his life like this.

Riverdale had been under Theo's rule for many years and it was time for a change.

Theo's expression froze when he saw Douglas appearing with his people. His heart became heavy.

Why did Douglas emerge all of a sudden?

Could it be that all these things were connected? Immediately after, Theo turned to Douglas and said solemnly, "Fourth Master, what do you intend to do?"

After seeing his son being beaten up, Douglas was naturally angry and said furiously, "Theo, don't think that I don't dare to do anything to you just because you rule over Riverdale! Making a move against my son means you're disrespecting me!"

Everyone turned to look at where the voice came from and saw dozens of people approaching.

The leader was an old man with a walking cane, looking to be about 60 or 70 years old. He was dressed in a white suit with a string of rosary in his hand.

He was Webster Shaw, the chairman of Loyale Group. He was a former major underground force in Riverdale! In terms of seniority and influence, Webster was definitely above Theo!

In Riverdale, many underground figures only got to their current positions because of Webster.

Instantly, the entrance of Beacon Group became jam-packed with people.

The people here served their own masters.

Everyone dared not take the matter lightly.

Webster's pomp was grand when he showed up earlier. He leaned on the cane in his hand and looked at Theo coldly.

Douglas quickly got up from the ground, ran to Webster, and shouted, "Uncle Webster, you're finally here. Any later and I would've been killed by Theo! He doesn't even care about you now. You have to step in for me."

Philip finally understood after Theo explained.

Then, he turned around, looked at Webster blandly, and asked, "Are you Webster Shaw?"

"How dare you?! Who told you to talk to Uncle Webster like that?! Apologize on your knees at once!"

Standing behind Webster, Blake immediately pointed at Philip and chastised him.

He could not wait to break Philip into tiny pieces!

If not for Philip, Blake would not have been embarrassed in front of Webster.

The worse thing was, he was obviously such a loser, so what right did he have to be so cocky?

Webster looked sideways at Philip again and sneered, "Young man, it seems that you have some status. Otherwise, Theo wouldn't be helping you like this."

Philip laughed and said, "In ten minutes, you can declare Loyale Group bankrupt."
