

The First Heir 1611

Chapter 1611

Since the last time she was humiliated by Philip during the engagement banquet with Howard Lowe, Ruby had held a grudge against Philip. She had always wanted to seek revenge on him.

As she had met him by chance today, the hatred buried in Ruby's heart sprouted again!

"Ruby, is this really that wimp Philip Clarke you told us about?"

"This man is too powerful, isn't he?"

"So what? He beat up Lou Webb, the younger brother of Dru Webb! He's done for!"

Several of Ruby's best friends looked at Philip with shocked expressions.

Ruby had done her best to discredit Philip in front of them.

"Dru Webb? In that case, Philip is doomed! The Webb brothers have a notorious reputation around here!"

Ruby frowned and secretly took out her phone to take a picture of Philip at this time.

At this moment, Philip flexed his arm with a cold chill on his face.

Everyone was stunned.

Unexpectedly, the young man in front of them was so reckless and did not know what was good for him!

This guy was Dru Webb, a famous figure in these streets. He had people, money, and power.

At this moment, the crowd was busy discussing.

“I’m telling you, he’s done for. After messing with the two Webb brothers, even ten lives won’t be enough to save him.”

“He’s really too arrogant. Does he really think he can face a dozen people on his own?”

“He’s just a rash young man. He’s gone and done it now. He’ll definitely get beaten up and end up a fool!” Ruby blinked and frowned helplessly.

Philip was really too foolhardy. To challenge Dru Webb was simply looking for death.

It was good to let Philip suffer a little so that he would know the gap between him and others.

"What mistake?"

Dru frowned. "Kid, are you trying to buy time? Well then, I'd like to hear what mistakes I've made."

Dru was not in a hurry. He sneered, unconcerned. How could a loser like Philip pose a threat to him?

"Actually, this isn't your territory but mine," Philip said calmly as his searing gaze fixed on Dru.

This company, along with this building, belonged to him. Naturally, this territory also belonged to him.

Dru was taken aback before he raised his head and laughed, saying, "Oh boy, you're really such a prat! What did you just say? This is your territory? Where the hell did you get the confidence to brag like this?"

This kid was really interesting to have the guts to brag in front of so many people. What did he mean this was his territory?

Was he saying that he owned the number one food delivery company in Riverdale?

Ridiculous!

What a joke!

Philip shook his head, a faint smile appearing on his lips. This Dru Webb was about to die and he still had not figured out what was going on.

This scene happened to fall into Dru's eyes. What was the meaning of that? Was this guy laughing at him?

How Philip wanted to punish them depended entirely on his mood. No one could stop him.

"Master Theo, what do you mean? I've been with you for four years and am also a well-known figure in this area. What do you mean by lecturing us now?"

Dru's eyes were cold and looked grim as he clenched his fists tightly.

What was wrong with Master Theo?

Master Theo was turning his back against them without warning. This was something that had never happened before!

This scene was naturally seen by the crowd and everyone was baffled.

"Dru Webb, you're such a fool! Have you forgotten that I gave you the position you're in now? Very well then, I'll confiscate everything you have today!" Theo roared. Dru was really looking for death.

Dru's eyes narrowed. He was completely annoyed and said sullenly, "Brother Theo, are you really going to do this?"

However, Theo could not be bothered with him. Instead, he turned around, very respectfully bent 90 degrees to Philip, and said, "Mr. Clarke, I'm sorry, it's all my fault. I taught him poorly and raised such an ungrateful thing. How do you wish to deal with him? One word from you and I'll have someone do it right away."

Mr. Clarke?

Theo actually addressed him as Mr. Clarke and with such a respectful attitude too!

Looking at Gopher Delivery Services behind him, Philip stepped in.

The employees in the company were working hard, and the atmosphere was not bad.

Philip's appearance made the female receptionist perplexed for a moment. She got up, walked over with a gentle smile on her face, and asked, "Hello, are you here to apply for a job?"

Philip chuckled, shook his head, and said, "No, I'm here to see your general manager."

The female receptionist looked at Philip suspiciously. She did not treat him differently just because he was dressed in an ordinary outfit. She smiled slightly and asked, "Do you have an appointment? Our general manager is in a meeting, so she's not free right now."

Philip nodded, found a spot to sit down, and said, "It's okay, I'll wait."

The female receptionist smiled and poured him a cup of tea before she returned to work.

Herb immediately laughed and said, "What did you say? I'll regret it? You're just a nobody. What right do you have to say such arrogant words? You're just here looking for a job. Who do you think you are? Are you worthy to see our Miss Summer?"

Herb was unhappy. This fool was really cocky.

However, Philip's face remained calm. He glanced at the trembling female receptionist standing there and said, "Don't worry, this matter has nothing to do with you."

The female receptionist was full of panic and suspicions. She glanced at Philip and hesitated for a moment before saying to Herb, "Mr. Lyon, don't be angry. I'll deal with it."

After that, she hurriedly faced Philip, grabbed his hand, and pulled him out. She said, "You should leave quickly. You don't know Mr. Lyon's temper. It won't end well for you if you offend him."

Philip looked at the woman who was dragging him away, smiling faintly at the corner of his mouth. Such a kind hearted person.

He got out of the other party's hold and calmly said to her, "Don't worry, I'll handle it."

A small character like him was not worthy of his attention.

The few security guards immediately turned around, looked at Philip coldly, and said, "Dude, excuse me, but you need to leave."

These people were new recruits and naturally did not know Philip.

Philip looked calm and did not say anything. He merely took out his phone and dialed Agnes' number.

At this moment, Agnes was discussing business with a few investors inside the conference room.

Suddenly, her assistant hurriedly ran in while holding a phone in her hand, saying, "Miss Summer, your phone is ringing!"

Agnes' face went cold as she turned her head to the assistant. She reprimanded, "Can't you see I'm in a meeting? What phone call? Just reject it."

Agnes was a strong career woman with a clear distinction between public and private affairs. She would never answer personal calls during working hours.

The female assistant was at a loss and said, "Miss Summer, you have to answer this call. You told me before that as long as this number is calling, it must be handed to you no matter what."

She ran over and snatched the phone. The caller ID showed that it was Philip

Philip nodded, smiled slightly, and looked at Agnes, saying, "Agnes, there's no need to address me as the chairman. I'm just a sleeping partner."

Agnes said, "We have to follow the company's hierarchy."

She turned her head, stared angrily at the security guards who were going to make a move on Philip, and yelled, "Who told you to be disrespectful to Chairman Clarke?"

Those few security guards were so frightened that they hurriedly bent down and said, "Miss Summer, we didn't know he's the chairman. We were just following orders."

"Hmph!"

Agnes snorted and said coldly, "You can pack your things and leave after getting your salary from the finance department."

Hearing these words, the security guards all panicked and hurriedly knelt on the ground, begging for mercy, "Miss Summer, please spare us. We really didn't mean to do it."

Hearing Agnes' words, Herb was dumbfounded. With a face full of confusion, he asked angrily, "Miss Summer, what are you doing? You actually hit me? I'm the vice president of this company! Can you fire me just like that? Besides, what did I do wrong?"

Herb was very annoyed. It had not just been a day or two since he coveted Agnes' position as general manager.

By doing this, was Agnes trying to get rid of competition?

Of course, he would be angry!

Agnes smiled coldly and said, "Your wrongdoings? Your biggest mistake is being disrespectful to Philip Clarke!"

Philip Clarke?

Herb turned his head, looked at the man standing next to Agnes, and suddenly understood. Was this guy a relative of Agnes? Agnes wanted to fire him because of a relative?

After saying that, the security guards quickly rushed over, grabbed Herb, and said, "Sorry, Mr. Lyon."

Herb was dumbfounded. He struggled and hissed, "Damn it, are you crazy? I'm the vice president. Let go of me! He's nothing but a piece of trash but you're listening to him? It's just Agnes Summer. What are you afraid of?"

Until now, Herb still thought that these people were doing this because of Agnes.

Agnes just flicked him a cold glance before leading Philip into the conference room.
