

The First Heir 1631

Chapter 1631

Meanwhile, in the hotel.

The two Johnston brothers, Martin and Bernard, were having private talks with several key members of the company.

“What? The person you found has failed?” Martin looked furious at this moment, pacing back and forth in the suite in anger.

Bernard stood to the side with his head lowered. His face was full of anxiety and regret. He said, “Martin, don’t worry about it. Even though it failed, Philip won’t dare to do anything about it.”

Hmph!

Martin snorted and said, “What should I say about you? How many times has this been? Can’t you find someone more reliable? Why do you fail again and again?”

Martin almost died of anger. His third brother had gone behind his back to find some hooligans to teach Philip a lesson, but in the end, they were the ones badly beaten up instead!

This fool only knew how to bungle things up!

When Jacky Cullen saw this scene, the corners of his eyes twitched with dissatisfaction. He finished his red wine in one big gulp.

Damn that Russell Carl for stealing the limelight again!

“Jacky, what’s wrong? Are you also upset with that hypocritical act of Russell’s?” On one side, another middle aged man nudged Jacky with his elbow and asked.

Jacky snorted coldly and said, “I just can’t get used to the way he looks. It’s as though everything is within his calculations.”

“Hehe, I share the same thoughts as you. Russell Carl is our enemy. With him around, I’m afraid it’ll be difficult to get any credit in front of Mr. Johnston,” the man took a sip of red wine and said.

Jacky frowned, clenched his fists fiercely, and said, “One Russell Carl is not enough to pose a threat.”

“Jacky, I have to disagree with you on this. Now, Mr. Johnston has attached more importance to him compared to you. If we don’t do something, I’m afraid it won’t be long before Russell will drive all of us out. By then, everything will be over for us,” the man continued.

Hearing this, Jacky scowled. He glanced at the other person and said suspiciously, “What do you mean?”

Looking at the casket Philip had brought over, Martin shook with anger as his face flushed red. He pointed at Philip and shouted, "You! How dare you act so arrogantly?! Are you disrespecting me? Philip Clarke, don't forget that I'm Wynn's second uncle! We're related by blood! If I tell Wynn that you did this to me, do you think she'll stand on your side or mine?"

Martin was fuming. How dare Philip send him a gift like this? Was this not cursing him to die soon?

Bernard also looked angry as he pointed at Philip and shouted, "Insolence! Philip, as a junior, what's your intention in sending such a gift to your elders? If my eldest brother and sister-in-law find out about this, they'll definitely punish you severely!"

Bernard's eyes were cold, and his face was full of anger! This damned Philip was too audacious!

When the others saw Philip giving such a gift, they were also taken aback for a brief moment. Then, they pointed at Philip and berated angrily, "Chairman Clarke, this is too discourteous of you!"

"Exactly. If this matter gets out, I'm afraid you won't have a foothold in Riverdale. We have always placed importance on family virtues here. For a wretch like you to behave like this, it would be a great disgrace!"

Philip chuckled and said, "Martin Johnston, my decision has never changed since the beginning. Since you've chosen to be Beacon and Wynn's enemy, you should've gotten prepared for my retaliation. As

At this moment, Philip was like a battle god incarnate. His face was chilly, and his pupils reflected a biting killing intent! This sight stunned everyone in the suite!

What a shocking aura!

Was this really the usually wretched Philip Clarke?

Too horrifying!

Martin was also shocked by Philip's angry roar. He immediately took two steps back and stammered, "You... What do you want to do..?"

Philip looked grim. Behind him, Theo waved his hand and a dozen thugs in black suits quickly subdued everyone else.

“Let go of us! Who are you to capture us?”

“Let go! Theo Zander, what’s the matter with you? You’re the kingpin of Riverdale. Why are you acting like a bodyguard for this guy?”

“Philip, hurry up and tell them to stop. You’re making an illegal arrest!”

Several people bellowed angrily but Theo and his men would not listen at all.

Therefore, all of them chose to protect themselves at the moment. They lowered their heads and were too afraid to speak up, but they still glanced around furtively.

With a grave face, Philip stared at Martin whose face was flushed. The man was panting aloud. Philip said coldly, “Martin, I’ve given you many chances but you didn’t know how to appreciate them. I’ve considered using money to make you understand the difference between you and me, but after thinking about it carefully, I think it's meaningless. It's better for me to personally let you experience the pain so that you may remember it for a lifetime!"

After that, Philip directly threw Martin on the coffee table and the entire glass coffee table shattered into pieces!

The broken glass stuck to Martin's back, arms, and legs, causing him to grimace in pain!

"Aargh! Philip, how dare you do this to me?! I swear I won't let you off!"

Martin shouted. His back was covered in blood as he crawled away from the broken glass shards with great difficulty. His arms and legs were also bright red.

Immediately after, miserable screams from the crowd could be heard from the suite.

It lasted about ten minutes before Theo wiped his hands with a towel, glanced at the people on the floor, and said, "Deal with it cleanly. Throw them to the next city and let them beg for the rest of their lives."

After that, Theo walked out of the suite and approached Philip who was smoking. He said respectfully, "Mr. Clarke, it's been dealt with cleanly. Where do you want to go next?"

"Go to the media arranged by Martin."

Philip's face was calm as he exhaled smoke while asking, "Is everything else ready?"

Theo nodded and replied, "It's all ready. Not even a smidgen of Mrs. Clarke's secret will be leaked. I've already contacted all the media in Riverdale. As for Martin's people, I've also sent people to monitor all of them. The signal in the area they're in has been cut."

Philip nodded, glanced at the suite, and turned to leave. Theo followed closely behind.

When Bernard noticed no more movements, he got up from the floor and ran to his second brother to help him up. He asked agitatedly, "Martin, are you alright?"

Martin was in pain all over his body at the moment. He glared at Philip who was leaving with a cold expression in his eyes and said grimly, "Quick, take me to the hospital!"

Jim hurried to the nearest computer to take a look. With a twitch of his eye, he said, "F*ck! No internet at this time? What's going on?"

"The neighborhood is being demolished. Could it be that the network cable has been cut?"

"Don't worry, just call and ask."

One of them dialed the number of the telecommunication company. After questioning, he replied, "They said there's no disconnection notice on our side and no one nearby has reported the same problem. It's not the signal."

"How is that possible? Isn't this obviously a case of disconnection?" Someone was anxious.

Jim was also anxious as he glanced at the sky outside. His sixth sense gave him a bad feeling as if something was about to happen.

"Everyone, check your phones to see if there's a signal," Jim quickly said as he took out his phone to check.

"Holy sh*t, there's no signal on my phone either!"

Jim looked at the information with a solemn expression on his face before he looked up at Philip and asked, "Mr. Clarke, are you sure you want to do this?"

Philip nodded and said, "Ten minutes, can you do it? If not, I'll find someone else. If you can, it'll offset your blunder."

Jim gritted his teeth, immediately stood up, and said, "Yes, I can!"

After that, he said to his subordinates behind him, "Everyone, hurry up! Spread the information on this paper to the entire Riverdale in ten minutes!"

Philip did not bother to stay here for long. He simply turned around and left, leaving the rest for Theo to handle.

Ten minutes later in the hospital ward

Bernard rushed into the ward and shouted, "Martin, something went wrong! Jim betrayed us and was caught by Philip. Moreover, media all over Riverdale are broadcasting news about us embezzling Beacon's funds. It's also a trending search on Twitter right now. Even those things about us oppressing people have been dug up. What should we do?"

Martin was lying on the hospital bed, his whole body in pain. Hearing Bernard's words at this moment, he immediately sat up and asked, "What did you say?"

After saying that, he quickly grabbed the tablet handed to him by Bernard and scrolled through the news as well as trending searches.

Several people were already standing in the ward.

Charles and Martha looked anxious and distressed. Especially Martha, she kept pointing at Anne and Lydia while cursing.

Wynn sat on the hospital bed and kept persuading her mother, “Mom, it has nothing to do with them.”

Philip walked in, took a look around, and grabbed Martha’s hand that was about to land a slap on Lydia’s face. He said sternly, “If you dare to do it, I’ll have you end up lying on the hospital bed again!”

Martha turned to look at Philip and was startled as though she had seen a ghost. She shouted, “When did you arrive?”

After saying that, Philip shook off Martha’s hand, causing the latter’s face to grimace in pain.

Her hand had not fully recovered yet. With this aggressive shove from Philip, it was almost broken again!
