

The Growth of a God

Chapter 15: Chapter 15: Strongest Apostle

The sun returned, and the morning sun rose.

The Dragon-headed Giant in the sky also seemed to have completed its mission, revealing an unprecedented smile of relief.

—Is this the feeling of guarding?

The Dragon-headed Giant never thought that it could attain such immense satisfaction without combat.

Are its fellow kin feeling this same sentiment, which makes them willingly guard this land of mountains and seas?

In this moment, the Dragon-headed Giant suddenly understood its fellow kin from the past.

Perhaps, in their eyes, it was an unstable factor that could cause great calamities at any moment.

Thus, for the sake of this earth, for the land of mountains and seas, they would go to all lengths to seal and suppress it!

—From today onwards, I am the same as you all.

Slowly closing its eyes, the Dragon-headed Giant then felt the fatigue envelop its body.

Persistently lifting the sun back to its original place.

This act was an enormous drain, even for a being like the Dragon-headed Giant blessed with extraordinary talent.

To say it was exhausted would be an understatement of the current condition of the Dragon-headed Giant.

The oil-depleted and lamp-extinguished Dragon-headed Giant couldn't even stabilize its own form, plummeting straight down from mid-air.

Whoosh!

As the Dragon-headed Giant was about to plunge headfirst into the endless ocean, an invisible storm emerged once more.

Just as it had initially held the sun, this time the storm appeared to gently support the Dragon-headed Giant with closed eyes.

However, unlike before, this time the storm was gentle and caressing.

Under the watchful gaze of all living beings, the towering Dragon-headed Giant gradually shrank in the fierce wind, eventually disappearing at the horizon, carried by the storm.

At the same time, the "Eye of the Creator" in the sky swiftly closed.

The divine spectacle of the sun and moon shining together vanished at that moment, leaving only the high-hanging sun in the sky.

.....

Sky City, the grand altar.

Scarface likewise witnessed the Dragon-headed Giant's "lifting the heavens, supporting the rising sun," a scene so overwhelming it hid its inner excitement.

As for the Dragon Wolf Ah Dui beside him?

It had long been trembling in fear.

Until the storm gently lowered the Dragon-headed Giant to the ground; only then did it dare to sneak a glance at the other.

Despite losing the divine power, the Dragon-headed Giant no longer had that towering oppressive aura.

But having regained its body, it still possessed a gigantic form exceeding normal creatures' imagination.

When the gentle wind placed the Dragon-headed Giant back onto the altar, the once vast empty altar was instantly filled.

Whoosh!

It was as if a giant mountain range stretched across the altar.

With its eyes closed in slumber, the Dragon-headed Giant inhaled and exhaled storms with each breath.

Within mere minutes, the altar was enveloped in whirlwinds and mist, continuing to spread toward the entire Sky City.

Witnessing this, Scarface realized it was the "Creator's" protection and blessing for the Dragon-headed Giant.

During the slumber of the Dragon-headed Giant, the wind and mist would cover every corner of Sky City, dispelling any attempting intruders.

"We... it's time... we should leave!"

Scarface gently kicked the still trembling Dragon Wolf, softly speaking as he descended from the sky.

But Scarface knew that the Creator's gaze hadn't shifted away from himself.

The great Creator still had tasks needing him to complete.

Thus, the question arose, what was Li Hao, whom Scarface saw as the "Creator," doing now?

He was busy being shocked, busy rubbing his eyes, busy not daring to believe his own eyes.

From the moment the Dragon-headed Giant chose to become Li Hao's Apostle, Li Hao unlocked the panel of the other, allowing him to directly view the other's attributes.

And that look made Li Hao doubt reality.

[Name: Dragon Head (??)]

[Gender: ??]

[Age: 2684521]

[Race: Evil Dragon]

...

[Talent of a race: Egg-Laying Animal LV5, Large Animals LV5, True Dragon Form LV5, Divine Descendant LV5]

[Personal Talent: Immortal Body LV5, Adaptive Evolution LV5, Curse of the Gods LV5]

...

[Mythical Ability: Half-god Body, Master of Clouds and Rain, Divine Possession, Storm Descending]

[Personal Specialties: Dragon Race Inheritance, Steel Bones, Learning Mastery, Innate Heart Eye, Combat Mastery, Frenzy]

...

[Profession: Divine Apostle, Godslayer, Dragon Mage, Great Sage, Curse Weaver, Soul Master]

[Skills: ??]

[Personal Items: None]

[Personal Attributes: Click for details]

[Power: 20~∞]

[Agility: 20~∞]

[Constitution: 20~∞]

[Intelligence: 20~∞]

[Perception: 20~∞]

[Charm: 20~∞]

[Evaluation: The "Godslayer" who slew gods with mortal body, ultimately paying the price for his arrogance.]

When a newly born Supreme God awakens, this "Godslayer" chooses to become its Messenger, thus breaking the shackles imposed upon himself.]

Indeed, setting aside those messy abilities.

The Dragon-headed Giant's personal attributes surprisingly all started from 20 points, with an upper limit marked as a large ∞.

What does 20 points attribute signify?

Based on Li Hao's own performance, it essentially reached the limit a normal creature could achieve.

Adding the subsequent ∞ mark signifies that 20 is merely the Dragon-headed Giant's baseline.

Or more precisely, it's the baseline that can be observed and identified by the Dragon Race Inheritance, not implying the Dragon-headed Giant's upper limit is only that high.

No exaggeration here, the Dragon-headed Giant is undeniably a stat monster, no wonder it could achieve the feat of godslaying with mortal body.

Moreover, the Dragon-headed Giant's talents and specialties are particularly remarkable.

The talents of the race and personal talents, almost all reached the highest LV5 level.

Equivalent to belonging to the level of "Half-Step God."

Especially in the profession section, Li Hao feels that Godslayer, Dragon Mage, Great Sage, Curse Weaver, Soul Master, may be just professions that can be recognized as valuable by the Dragon Race Inheritance.

As for other professions that cannot be identified and labeled by the Dragon Race Inheritance, they are possibly more numerous, not fewer.

In any case, from the personal specialties and professions, Li Hao only saw the bright "straight-A student" attribute of the Dragon-headed Giant.

Li Hao even suspected whether the Candle Dragon had such an exaggerated personal panel before ascending to godhood.

In the entire personal panel, opting to become Li Hao's Apostle only added three entries for the Dragon-headed Giant.

One was the [Divine Apostle] in the profession list.

The other two were [Divine Possession] and [Storm Descending] in mythical abilities.

To be honest, Li Hao learned for the first time that becoming a god's Apostle could count as a profession?

Does this mean the Dragon-headed Giant can job hop?