

The Growth 254

Chapter 254 14: The Creator's Genesis (2/3)

In order to obtain information about the Yawei God, and to prevent those fallen Yawei Gods from causing chaos on Earth.

Li Hao made a deal with the "God of Games, Contracts, and War-Tranyas" of the Donovan God, and agreed to provide the other party with an exclusive "Game Secret Realm."

This was not a sudden whim of Li Hao's.

In fact, Li Hao had realized long ago that a Supreme God like him should possess the ability to truly create a world.

However, due to various reasons and restrictions, Li Hao had never thought of trying to practice this possibility before.

This was unrelated to ability; it was purely a matter of cognition.

Before becoming the Creator, Li Hao was just a mortal, an ordinary student contemplating how to pass the college entrance exam.

It wasn't until Li Hao noticed Hua She gradually becoming addicted to the various games created by Tranyas that he suddenly realized — isn't this the best "creation template"?

There was no need to create a perfect world from the start, but rather to perfect a world step by step from simple to complex.

Isn't this a suitable way for a novice Creator to practice?

After all, except for those innate Creator Gods, how many Gods can create a perfect world in one go?

Those defective worlds used for practice, in the end, are either reshaped or abandoned, which is extremely wasteful.

If these defective worlds could be reformed and used as Tranyas's gaming grounds, it seems to be the maximum utilization of waste.

And in the [Civilization Game], such games established on the foundation of the real world are often referred to as "True Games."

[So, is the 'Multiverse Game Hub' essentially a training ground provided by the Donovan God for novice Creators?]

With this thought flashing through his mind, Li Hao quickly shook his head, denying this speculation.

Because according to Li Hao's observation, most of the real worlds in the [Multiverse Game Hub] are actually a certain world of All Heavens and Myriad Realms.

The Gods who contacted Tranyas opened their worlds to them, then utilized the power of "players" to achieve and realize their certain purposes.

In other words, this openness is limited and time-bound.

Once the Gods achieve their purposes, the "game" established on the [Multiverse Game Hub] will close, no longer allowing external "players" to enter it.

This is different from what Li Hao is about to do—he is going to create a completely unrestricted open world.

[Essentially, the 'Multiverse Game Hub' is like the Divine Fall Realm, it is a 'window' for the Donovan God to the outside.]

[And what I'm going to do is to create a 'small window' attractive to most living creatures and even Gods within the framework of the 'Multiverse Game Hub'.]

The endless void, the gap between dimensions.

This is the convergence point of countless worlds, as well as a place most living beings and civilizations can never reach.

Here, time and space do not exist, and matter and energy are merely byproducts of occasional dimensional intersections, the void being the eternal unchanging essence here.

However, when a massive time-space vortex appeared out of thin air, this eternal silence was broken.

Swoosh!

Under the constant influx of energy from the [Cup of Hygeia].

The void seemed to be stirred and exploded by an invisible hand, giving birth to the initial "world" form.

That was a world of pure energy, an energy dimension that is constantly disappearing.

Its existence requires the support of almost inexhaustible energy and the continuous intervention of the Creator's will.

Under such circumstances, the [Celestial Tao System] representing Li Hao's will appeared.

Taking the initial energy dimension as a cornerstone, the initial land, oceans, mountains, and rivers began to manifest, gradually completing the material dimension of this nascent world, constructing the initial cycle.

Then, this not-yet-perfect world started moving—the concept of time was thereby born.

If left on its own, this world with only energy, matter, and time dimensions might truly be born billions of years later, thus nurturing its unique form of life.

Because this is the method by which a Creator creates a world—allowing the nascent world to naturally operate and complete itself, evolving step by step into a truly high-ranking God.

Unfortunately, Li Hao didn't have the patience to wait billions of years.

Thus, a familiar time-space vortex appeared at the edge of this world, firmly protecting and confining it.

That is the power of the [Chronicles of Time], serving as the credential of Li Hao's authority as the "God of Time."

Boom!!!

The simultaneous operation of the three epic divine artifacts: [Cup of Hygeia], [Celestial Tao System], and [Chronicles of Time], caused the entire void to start collapsing inward.

The initial cycle began to become complex, and the dimensions within the world began to differentiate one by one.

Just when the "Primordial Power" was about to be born, the intervention of the [Celestial Tao System] appeared again.

In this newborn world created by Li Hao, Gods with "Primordial Power" are not allowed to be born.

Or more precisely, those Gods with complete Divine Format and Divinity are not allowed to be born, there are only Divine Positions infinitely subdivided to the microscopic level.

Of course, these Divine Positions also have a more colloquial name among players—Profession Sequences.

However, this is still far from enough.

To make this world more like a game, the [Celestial Tao System] once again called upon its vast database.

During the continuous recombination of energy and matter, under the frequent intervention of the [Celestial Tao System], a dimension born from information yet different from it appeared—the Cyber Dimension!

This special dimension, originating from the Cyber God and reappeared in David, became the fourth dimension of this newborn world.

As a result, everything in this world will be presented in a digitized manner and can be artificially changed.

Unfortunately, before the delighted behind-the-scenes Li Hao could celebrate his surprisingly successful first attempt, an unexpected and reasonable shock spread throughout the world.

Crack!

This newly born world, without having time to leave any traces, collapsed unexpectedly.

The shattered dimensions and world fragments disintegrated, ultimately transforming into endless nothingness.

Having witnessed all this, Li Hao fell silent for a moment, and then began his second attempt at creation.

Failure is the mother of success.

A true Creator can only create a qualified world through numerous attempts.

If the first attempt fails, try a second one, if the second one fails, try a third...

Now, Li Hao has enough time and ability to explore new realms, and he is quite happy to do so.
