

The Growth 263

Chapter 263 23: External Brain-Computer (2/3)

When that giant winged serpent appeared in the sun once again.

The Mountain and Sea People, led by Tianyou, also returned to the Mountain and Sea Realm.

As for the [Gods' Calamity] at the [Multiverse Game Hub], it chose to temporarily shut down due to the overwhelming number of players clearing it.

Only when Li Hao restarts the "Game Realm" will the Mountain and Sea People have the opportunity to play various NPC roles again.

Indeed, Li Hao never intended to let the "Game Realm" become a fixed true game from the start.

Being born on Earth, he knows better than anyone that no game can be maintained forever.

Even the best divine work, with increased completion rates and the fading novelty, sees fewer participants over time.

Therefore, to ensure the Mountain and Sea People can access more outside information, the true game in the "Game Realm" must change periodically.

In fact, Li Hao had already planned out the future developmental paths for the "Game Realm."

If the Mountain and Sea Realm's technology hits a bottleneck, then a sci-fi themed true game should be created to attract those races with advanced technologies.

If the Mountain and Sea Realm wants to study a certain [Ascension Ladder], then a myth-themed true game should be created to inspire and assist the Realm's Ascenders.

Galactic exploration, intelligent mechanism crisis, ancient gods descending, post-apocalyptic wastelands, martial arts cultivation, outer god invasion...

Li Hao has enough themes in mind to update the "Game Realm" content, and if not, he can even have the Zhiku members or Tranyas participate in its design personally.

Li Hao does not mind that expenditure at all.

The pairing of the [Cup of Hygeia] and the [Void Divine Hall] is known as the most perfect perpetual motion machine.

Combined with the powers of the [Celestial Tao System] and the [Chronicles of Time], creating and reshaping worlds is merely a matter of proficiency for Li Hao.

Unlike other Creator Gods, each act of creation and reshaping of worlds leads to significant consumption of power.

If careless, facing a bunch of scheming Divine or Clan members, there might even be a chance of failure.

Central City, underground transportation station.

The Fire Raccoon Rat, having been on duty for over a year, was busily guiding those Mountain and Sea People who needed help.

Especially when encountering those newly descended original beings, the Fire Raccoon Rat would patiently explain where to go for help and how to become a qualified Mountain and Sea Person.

Over time, nearly half of Central City knew there was a little, very enthusiastic Fire Raccoon Rat in the underground transportation station who loved helping others.

"You haven't implanted any implants?"

This Fire Raccoon Rat had just sent away a Three-tailed Fox seeking help when a familiar voice came from behind.

"Tianyou?"

Immediately turning its head, the Fire Raccoon Rat looked at Tianyou with delight.

At this moment, Tianyou appeared before the Fire Raccoon Rat in pure skeletal form, yet it still recognized him at a glance.

Because the Fire Raccoon Rat wasn't just relying on its eyes to recognize someone.

The demeanor, aura, and even the soul were more trustworthy than appearance.

"Long time no see, Xiaohuo!"

Smiling as he greeted the Fire Mouse, Tianyou was as adept as a long-unseen old friend.

Although the two had only met once before, Tianyou felt a natural fondness for the Fire Raccoon Rat.

Especially after learning about its deeds over the past year, Tianyou genuinely admired this little Fire Raccoon Rat.

After all, not everyone can maintain their original intention amidst the temptation of Central City's prosperity.

"It hasn't been that long! Time goes by quickly here."

The Fire Raccoon Rat deftly jumped onto Tianyou's shoulder, excitedly sharing its experiences over the past year.

"Did you know? I only just found out that the MinAseerpentg She does not rely on wings to fly..."

"And the legendary Nine-tailed Fox, it only grows a tail every hundred years..."

"I recently encountered a group of Merfolk; they were so wealthy! They gave me a Jue Pearl just for asking directions!"

The usual friendly chatter, the familiar torrent of words...

Tianyou didn't interrupt the Fire Raccoon Rat, merely smiling and silently listening to its tales.

Until it mentioned that a certain institution recently released a new implant, Tianyou finally asked curiously.

"Why haven't you implanted any implants?"

"When you first came to Central City, wasn't it to implant a prosthetic eye to navigate for yourself?"

Facing Tianyou's inquiry, the Fire Raccoon Rat shook its head, answering playfully.

"Wasn't it that I knew nothing a year ago?"

"Now I've been in Central City for a year, how could I casually implant something just for a little navigation function?"

Just like an old hand, the Fire Raccoon Rat's manner of speaking made Tianyou chuckle.

"Now I'm saving up Sun Coins, planning to first implant a high-end 'brain-computer' before considering other implant types."

The Fire Raccoon Rat's size limits the size and number of implants it can have.

In this situation, prioritizing an upgrade to brain computation is indeed an optimal choice.

"Since you don't plan to implant yet, why not wait a little longer?"

In the Fire Raccoon Rat's surprised gaze, Tianyou revealed insider information known to few.

"Soon, Central City will team up with the Immortals to launch a truly external brain-computer."

"That external brain-computer is no bigger than a walnut, so even a Mountain and Sea Person of your size can use it as a pendant."

"While it can't solve all your implantation issues, the additional computation power can help you adapt to more advanced implants."

His tone paused briefly, then Tianyou further elaborated.

"Most importantly, that external brain-computer is a ticket to another world, marking the start of a new era in implant technology."

Not doubting Tianyou's words, the Fire Raccoon Rat couldn't help but become curious about whether the external brain-computer was as impressive as he claimed.

"A ticket to another world? A new era of implant technology?"

"Is it really that amazing? And where did you get this information?"

Glancing at the Fire Raccoon Rat on his shoulder, Tianyou just smiled softly and said.

"It's a hundred times more amazing than you imagine; you might even gain a completely different future because of it."
