

The Growth 307

Chapter 307 - 22: Guide · Omega (Part 1 of 3)

[When you resort to violence to prove yourself...]

[No matter how noble your intentions, you are merely becoming another set of 'gods' above all beings.]

Li Hao's voice was rational and sharp, piercing the essence of the Godslayers' actions in one sentence.

[These are necessary sacrifices...]

[Any attempt to overthrow the old order and establish a new one can never be peaceful or smooth sailing.]

[However, I must admit that our civilization has indeed veered towards some form of extremism.]

After a brief silence, the Godslayers recounted to Li Hao a story of Pandora World, one different from any previous version.

The Godslayer Civilization is not one that values territories greatly; it has many standards and reasons for invading worlds.

But generally, worlds targeted by the Godslayer Civilization are those where internal civilizational development is hindered, giving rise to numerous Desecrators.

In the eyes of the Godslayer Civilization, only such worlds are valuable.

After all, what the Godslayer Civilization needs is the hungry wolves daring to bare fangs at the Gods, not those lambs who have completely lost themselves under the divine system.

In fact, except for rare exceptions like the Divine Fall Realm.

The vast majority of worlds that can nurture Desecrators are ones where the ruling Gods are exceedingly harsh and brutal.

Under such circumstances, the civilizations and life within start resisting the rule of the Gods, naturally producing a large number of Desecrators.

In these numerous Desecrators, as long as one can stand out and become a true Godslayer, the efforts of the Godslayer Civilization would not be in vain.

The initial Pandora World was exactly such a world under the high-pressure rule of the Gods.

Yes, the appearance of Godslayers was never proactive; it resulted from the Desecrators of Pandora World seeking external aid.

The ensuing events were predictable.

The Godslayer Civilization responded to the cries for help from Pandora World and appeared there.

It was a thrilling battle, a siege war specifically targeting Pandora's Gods...

In that great battle, the numerous and uniquely skilled Godslayers personally stepped in, leaving Pandora's Gods defeated and fleeing in disorder.

Ultimately, they even had to abandon Pandora World directly, taking along some of their still-devoted followers as they departed.

As for the causes of Pandora's Gods' disastrous defeat, they are many.

The most crucial point was that Pandora's Gods dared not take the field personally, embodying the stance of "Saint" against the Godslayers.

On the other hand, the Godslayers, each with rich battle experience and glorious feats of Godslaying, had little fear or dread.

With such gains and losses, Pandora's Gods retreat became inevitable.

But would you say this war was won by the Godslayer Civilization?

Not necessarily.

Because Pandora's Gods almost suffered no personnel losses and managed to withdraw completely from Pandora World.

While the Godslayers, though battle-hardened, inevitably lost some members and faced some internal conflicts.

One could say being entrusted at a critical moment might be an exaggeration.

But as a member of Quantum Life, who treaded the path of light, Omega became the "Enlightener" of Pandora World in these circumstances.

Omega is considered a dove faction within the Godslayer Civilization, not advocating the use of martial power to make the Gods retreat.

Rather than attacking divine authority, Omega hoped to guide all beings to awaken and let them resist the injustice and oppression brought by the Gods autonomously.

It is precisely due to this philosophy that Omega is skilled at nurturing civilizations.

In terms of internet novel refreshing vocabulary, Omega is a typical representative of the farm-growing faction.

Growing slowly and peacefully, developing under the radar...

Unfortunately, Omega's efforts backfired in Pandora World.

The Pandora Civilization, grown under Omega's guidance, just as it had once desecrated Pandora's Gods, rebelled against its Guide again.

This led to the subsequent spread of petrification viruses and the collapse of the Pandora Civilization.

[Is this self-inflicted?]

Having listened to Omega's description with a strange expression.

Li Hao really didn't know how to evaluate the situation of Pandora Civilization as "traitors".

Next, Li Hao posed a question that had puzzled him for long.

[Why didn't the Godslayers choose to annihilate Pandora Civilization?]

Omega indeed died, but the Godslayer Civilization behind it was no idle eater.

According to common logic, Pandora Civilization's rebellious behavior was destined to be cleared by Godslayers.

Otherwise, similar situations would become increasingly frequent in all worlds ruled by the Godslayer Civilization.

[Did you stop them?]

Thinking over and again, Li Hao reckoned that only this reason could explain the Godslayer Civilization's inaction.

And indeed, just as Li Hao expected, Omega, seated on the Golden Throne, nodded across from him.

[Why?]

When Li Hao expressed his confusion over Omega's choice, he received an unexpected answer.

[What do you think is the most formidable weapon of the Godslayers?]

[Power? Technology? Faith? Thought? Or something else?]

[Actually, none of these. What is most precious is the rebellious spirit.]

[Rebellion against the Gods, rebellion against authority, rebellion against their own circumstances...]

[In Pandora Civilization, I saw this spirit of perpetual rebellion, an indomitable spirit of dislike for lagging behind.]

Looking at Li Hao, who seemed at a loss for words, Omega continued further.

[Rescuing them from divine oppressive rule does not mean they must submit to the authority of the Godslayer Civilization.]

[Pandora Civilization's rebellion against me proves that it is a rare "Desecrator Civilization".]

[With a little cultivation, this world can continuously produce Godslayers who disregard divine authority, like your Divine Fall Realm.]

With a slight pause in tone, Omega's next words utterly shocked Li Hao.

[Exchanging my Godslayer's death for a world that can continuously cultivate Godslayers is worthwhile!]

[Everything occurring now also proves my idea.]

[Regardless of any difficulties, any authority faced, Pandora World's beings absolutely never give up rebellion.]

Upon hearing this, Li Hao instantly had a realization, an epiphany.

[You were never a true God, you never had any means of Resurrection from the start...]

[You spread rumors of your Resurrection in Pandora World just to ensure its beings continued their rebellion, just to let the Godslayer Civilization witness their true worth!]

Laughing once again, Omega's figure began to gradually fade, and the Golden Throne beneath showed signs of petrification.

[Indeed, we are different from that bunch of Pandora Gods.]

[This world's civilization was awakened and reborn under my guidance, how could I possibly destroy them myself?]

[Now Pandora World's civilization has proven its worth, and I no longer need to continue playing the role of the "Evil People".]
