

The Growth 330

Chapter 330: Fifth Apostle: Earth Apostle

In the Mountain and Sea Realm, there are myths and legends.

From the Central Fertile Plains to the Four Extremes and Eight Directions, every place has its own unique myths and legends.

And with the increasing number of innate gods and acquired gods, these myths and legends continue to grow, with new ones emerging every day.

The most recent and widely circulated myth is the appearance of the Celestial Pillar—Stabilizing Needle.

Ever since the Giant Turtle was slain by the Dragon Child, the South Sea has gradually returned to tranquility.

However, this does not mean that the disaster caused by the Giant Turtle has ended.

On the contrary, the "clog" of the Bottomless Abyss has long caused an imbalance in the ocean currents of the Four Seas, and a visible great flood is accumulating, brewing.

In this situation, four "Celestial Pillars" quietly appeared at the centers of the north, south, east, and west seas.

They were once the limbs of the slain Giant Turtle, but now they have become incarnations of the earth's power.

Supported by these four Celestial Pillars, the previously chaotic ocean currents were cleared, and the surging seas returned to a state of calmness.

Like four Stabilizing Needles, as long as these four Celestial Pillars exist, the balance between the ocean and land will continue.

For there always exists a special cycle between the ocean and the earth.

When the ocean's power exceeds that of the land, these four Celestial Pillars will transform into the earth's power, and vice versa.

Theoretically, these four Celestial Pillars are the "super-large meteorological instruments" of the Mountain and Sea Realm, capable of regulating and interfering with the weather across the entire realm.

Thus, the Mountain and Sea People have established cities and subsidiary institutions around these four Celestial Pillars.

Those cities are responsible for protecting the four Celestial Pillars, while the subsidiary institutions are in charge of researching them.

After all, if they can complete the reverse engineering of these four Celestial Pillars, the Mountain and Sea People might be able to create their own "meteorological weapons."

By artificially creating natural disasters like earthquakes, tsunamis, heavy rain, mountain floods, avalanches, heat waves, and mist, they can transform the battlefield environment to achieve their own military purposes.

This is the so-called "meteorological weapon," a large-scale weapon of mass destruction used in most worlds.

Of course, the Mountain and Sea People are not deliberately researching this "meteorological weapon" to invade other worlds.

The essence of this "meteorological weapon" is interference with the natural environment, an advanced civilization's transformation of its own world.

When such technology is used for military purposes, it's naturally called a weapon.

But if the Mountain and Sea People do not use it for military purposes, it becomes an environmental protection technology that can maximize the transformation of the natural environment.

Especially for a civilization like the Mountain and Sea People, with their vast and complex sub-groups, they are tirelessly striving to maintain ecological diversity.

However, aside from researching these four Celestial Pillars.

Some members of the Zhiku who know the inside story choose a more convenient shortcut—namely, seeking out the gods who created these four Celestial Pillars.

He is the New God born from the battle that slew the Giant Turtle, the master of the earth, and the fifth Supreme Apostle restored under the Creator.

Like the other four apostles in the Divine Sequence, this newly emerged Earth Apostle is the incarnation of the Mountain and Sea Realm's land, an equal supreme existence with the Ocean Apostle Jiao Ling.

Thus, in the Mountain and Sea Realm, apart from lightning, life, and motion, the apostles symbolizing storm, earth, flame, ocean, and death have all returned to their places.

.....

In the depths of the South Sea, near the Bottomless Abyss.

"Is this the Longbo Country?"

With a human body and snake tail, Yuyu stood on the continent formed by the Giant Turtle's shell, a sentimental expression in his eyes.

This continent spans nearly forty thousand kilometers in diameter, overall presenting an elliptical turtle shell shape.

Not the usual Mountain and Sea People reside here, but rather gigantic Epic Creatures.

"This is simply a world of giants..."

"An independent ecological sphere outside the Mountain and Sea Realm..."

Taking a deep breath, Yuyu was immediately shocked by the abundant oxygen level on this continent.

As long as they don't become Ascenders, these gigantic Epic Creatures are heavily reliant on high-concentration oxygen.

The fact that this continent boasts such high oxygen levels means the Epic Creatures living here don't need to exist as scattered individuals like those in the Mountain and Sea Realm.

If they can break reproductive isolation, the Epic Creatures on this continent can form a large-scale group, forming a true race concept.

"That girl is truly capable, it wasn't in vain that I gave her the 'Candle Dragon Bone'."

With a smile on his lips, Yuyu's gaze followed deeper into the continent.

There, Yuyu seemed to see the Dragon Child, who had transformed into the Earth Messenger, frowning and listening to the chatter of Tianyou and Gu Zhu.

Using the Candle Dragon Bone as a medium, the Dragon Child evolved into a god, yet still requires learning.

Fortunately, she can already roughly control her size, so there's no need to worry about the daily hassle of learning and living.

Wearing clothes she wants, eating food she desires, playing in places she fancies...

The Dragon Child now lives the life she once dreamed of, aside from needing to receive education and study.

If there's anything the Dragon Child feels lacking, it's that her father, Uncle Feishu, and Uncle Yuyu haven't witnessed her growth, a bit regretful perhaps.

"Oh, Long Bo! I hope you won't be beaten black and blue by your daughter when you return."

"Hmm, but I do look forward to that day coming..."

"After all, you really are quite punchable."

Gently twisting his tail, the snake-like Yuyu chuckled softly as he murmured forward.

From the Dragon Child's insistence on naming this new continent "Longbo Country," one can see her deep obsession.

Yuyu doesn't doubt for a second that if Long Bo continues to stay in the Netherworld, the Dragon Child will surely storm in to bring him back.

"This world is ultimately the world of the young, their growth is much faster than we imagined."

Recalling not long ago when he was trying to solve the Dragon Child's size issue like Long Bo.

Now, with a blink of an eye, the Dragon Child not only mastered her abilities but also overcame the limits of the Ascension Ladder, becoming a True God walking the Mountain and Sea Realm.

"Great Creator! Thank you for sheltering the Dragon Child!"