

The Growth 454

Chapter 454 - 2: Universal Ascension

Apart from the twelve Supreme Gods, what is the situation with other users of the God of Chaos?

This is a question Li Hao has always been curious about and has constantly explored.

Then, Li Hao encountered many users who developed unique functions from the God of Chaos.

Even though these users do not stand at the pinnacle like the twelve Supreme Gods.

Their development of the God of Chaos's abilities, however, is extremely open-minded.

Especially some lower-rank users, who have no concerns about status or face, and some even don't use the God of Chaos as a Divine Incarnation.

System flow, plug-in flow, behind-the-scenes flow, data flow, player flow, clone flow, pet-raising flow...

As Li Hao interacted with more God of Chaos users, he found himself increasingly enlightened.

Li Hao tried to categorize these users in a way he could understand, but found that his efforts were futile.

Given the unique nature of the God of Chaos itself, its usage is similarly varied.

Whenever Li Hao thought he understood another method of using the God of Chaos, he would find the next user breaking conventions.

After interacting with countless God of Chaos users, he even engaged in direct communication with one from an unknown space-time.

And the way that God of Chaos used this Incarnation left Li Hao astounded.

That person dared to publicly reveal the existence of the God of Chaos to their civilization and opened its usage rights, attempting to enable mass Ascension through its powers.

In a way, that crazy person did succeed.

That was the first civilization of all Gods Li Hao had seen, a Utopia civilization dominated by rational thought.

To be honest, if Li Hao hadn't seen the whole process of that civilization's destruction after jumping the timeline.

He would have doubted if this was indeed the absolute order civilization that birthed the Ninth Celestial Father Hathor.

Unfortunately, this civilization was ultimately not that of the Ninth Celestial Father Hathor.

The one who publicly revealed the God of Chaos and granted every civilization member the right to use it was also not an overpowering force capable of dominating an era.

Thus, when a mighty force far outmatched them eyed the God of Chaos, the fate of this civilization was sealed.

Hence, Li Hao also saw the severe consequences of basing an entire civilization on a single entity.

When that strong entity seized the God of Chaos, they didn't even need to personally destroy the civilization; it ended in self-destruction.

The one who initially revealed the existence of the God of Chaos became the civilization's last survivor.

This wasn't the first time Li Hao had witnessed the destruction of a civilization or a world, but it was the most memorable.

The previous bearer of the God of Chaos, the one who tried to establish a Utopia civilization with individual power, wailed in despair in the Void.

That heart-wrenching despair, that soul-crushing wail, was enough to make listeners sorrowful and to move onlookers to tears.

From the survivor's perspective, this blow was even more painful than death.

Li Hao could see the other party was truly a Saint with the world in their heart.

And when a Saint experiences such desperate blows, the resulting anger and despair far exceed the imagination of ordinary beings.

[Divine Abomination... is being born!]

In the Void, Li Hao heard the wail reverberating, knowing a new Divine Abomination was being birthed.

They were once a world leader, revered by thousands as a Saint.

They were the last survivor of the civilization's destruction, bearing hatred and despair as a vengeful spirit.

They knew clearly their actions had attracted the strong entity's attack, leading to the civilization's demise.

They had never been so regretful, their remorse mixed with intense unwillingness and hatred.

For a Saint who personally guided an entire civilization to Ascension, bringing destruction to their world was an event that crushed their beliefs and rationality.

In this extreme hatred and despair, the one who had refused communication with Li Hao before now actively voiced their plea.

"I want revenge!"

"No matter the cost! I want revenge!"

"I know you have always been watching, God of Chaos from another space-time!"

"As long as you can give me the power for revenge, I am willing to be your marker in this era, becoming your Incarnation walking in this time!"

The Saint's voice echoed throughout the Void, that despair mixed with a cry for longing reached Li Hao's ears.

Yet faced with such a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, Li Hao fell silent.

Indeed, Li Hao was the God of Time, but it didn't mean he could casually interfere with the river of time.

On his timeline, in worlds governed by the Celestial Tao System, Li Hao, wielding the Power of Space-Time, was indeed a being of omnipotence.

However, once the scope expanded to All Heavens and Myriad Realms, Li Hao's powers seemed a bit lacking.

After all, in currently accepted information, only the thirteen Celestial Fathers can expand their influence across All Heavens and Myriad Realms.

However, using this unique Incarnation of the God of Chaos, combined with a coordinate and Incarnation existing in other space-times, Li Hao can interfere with alternate space-times to a certain extent.

In fact, Li Hao originally intended to connect with other space-time God of Chaos entities and observe their action modes and philosophies.

But the Saint's words now caused Li Hao some wavering.

This is not because Li Hao's ambition was expanding, not satisfied with his original timeline.

The true cause of Li Hao's wavering was his seeming guess of the identity of the strong entity destroying the Saint's civilization, deducing the time coordinate of this era.

[Could it really be such a coincidence?]

[Or is this the inevitability of obtaining the God of Chaos?]

Gazing deeply at the despairing, pleading Saint, Li Hao knew his next decision was crucially important.

This decision could perhaps influence whether his past self acquires this Incarnation of the God of Chaos.

[Effect precedes cause, reshaping the timeline...]

[This might be something every God of Time faces while mastering their power!]

With a gentle sigh, Li Hao did not glance at the Saint again but rather closed his eyes in some helplessness.

"Gus, I really don't wish to communicate with you like this."

"I have always disliked taking advantage of others' vulnerabilities, even though you repeatedly refused to engage with me before!"
