

The Growth 579

Chapter 579 - 49: Ten Thousand Demon Legion

As the captain of the "Weihe Combat Team," Xiang Yao has always been active on the front lines of the most dangerous space-time rifts.

Because of this, he was among the first to notice the anomaly.

Rumble...

With a sound as if the world were collapsing, two seemingly unrelated space-time rifts not far away mysteriously fused together.

The next moment, those two space-time rifts suddenly fused into an even larger space-time rift.

This seems like a truly incredible event.

The two space-time rifts each represent different worlds; they are merely connected to the Celestial Human Realm, with no relation to each other.

However, these two theoretically unrelated worlds took the initiative to merge the space-time rifts.

"What happened?"

The members of Xiang Yao's team all raised their heads to look at the merged space-time rift, their eyes filled with confusion and astonishment.

Because the space-time rift was not just a simple merger; it even displayed a specific form.

It was a broken "Wheel Ring"—a "Secret Wheel" made of space-time fragments.

As if some special ritual, when the space-time rift took the form of a "Secret Wheel," a chaos storm from beyond the world suddenly poured into the Celestial Human Realm.

Under the erosion of this chaos storm, the sky was no longer sky, the earth was no longer earth, and the ocean was no longer ocean.

All materials and powers constituting order were reduced to their most chaotic state.

And within this boundless chaos, a peculiar creature entirely pink and occasionally emitting a screech suddenly appeared.

The pink flames ignited nearby materials in a phosphorescent state.

These bizarre creatures, engulfed in pink flames, had three or four pairs of arms, five or six wings, epitomizing chaos and disorder.

Especially the lower body made up of countless entwined tentacles.

Occasionally closing, occasionally opening, creating a sense of rotting horror and eeriness.

—The Ten Thousand Demon Legion: Rotting Demon!

.....

"Retreat!"

"There's too many of them; they've exceeded our capacity!"

Without a moment's hesitation, realizing the danger, Xiang Yao made this decision immediately.

"Wait, I've received a new distress signal..."

At this moment, the Steel Azure Dragon soaring in the sky suddenly spoke.

Thanks to remote drone signal relays, the Steel Azure Dragon's communication range far exceeded that of the other team members.

Thus, in most cases, the Steel Azure Dragon acted as a signalman, specializing in receiving those communication signals from the Mountain and Sea People.

Whenever another Mountain and Sea Person sent out a distress signal, the Steel Azure Dragon would immediately report it to Xiang Yao.

In fact, this is also one of the major reasons Xiang Yao's team is always active on the front lines.

Aside from repelling powerful enemies from other space-time rifts, their other task is to rush to aid those Mountain and Sea People who encounter danger.

This situation is not uncommon; it can even be said to be the norm now in the Celestial Human Realm.

"Send me the exact coordinates!"

Glancing around, Xiang Yao decisively made his decision.

"I'll go rescue them; the rest of you retreat for now and inform the members at the back about this 'anomaly'!"

Hearing this, the other team members did not hesitate for a moment and immediately covered each other as they retreated backward.

It's true that the Mountain and Sea People are strong allies, but this doesn't mean they only fight alone.

When monsters from a different space-time appear in legion form, it's best to unite with the local forces of the Celestial Human Realm for sieges and counterattacks.

"Hoo!"

Watching his teammates depart, Xiang Yao took a deep breath.

The next second, a special black metal spread across the surface of his Flesh and Blood Armor, quickly enveloping him within.

This is the [Nanometer Armor] from the subterranean city—Yaojing.

As a Mountain and Sea city built by the Burrowing Insect Civilization.

Yaojing is located in the Underworld of the Mountain and Sea Realm, usually unnoticed.

However, only Xiang Yao, who once lived in Yaojing for over a hundred years, knows how terrifying this city truly is.

Yes, unlike most cities in the Mountain and Sea Realm, Yaojing is a "living" city.

In the distant past, when Burrowing Insects had not fully adapted to the environment of the Mountain and Sea Realm.

To survive in an air, environment, and gravity completely different from the Marz World, they specifically developed a special nano-enhancement device.

After injecting this nano-enhancement device, Burrowing Insects would naturally generate a type of nanoworm in their bodies.

This nanoworm continuously enhances the physical qualities of Burrowing Insects, improving their genes and bodily structures until ultimately evolving new generations of Burrowing Insects.

This is the prototype of the [Nanometer Armor] currently used by Xiang Yao.

Over the long years that followed, as Burrowing Insects gradually adapted to the environment of the Mountain and Sea Realm, they attempted to develop new functions for these nanoworms by combining the Implant Technology of the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Unfortunately, as expected, the nanoworms went berserk in the process.

A terrifying nanomachine frenzy swept through the entire city, almost destroying the new generation of Burrowing Insects.

It was at this time that Xiang Yao received the task and, together with other Half-god Level powerhouses, was fortunate enough to head to Yaojing to quell the crisis caused by the nanoworm rampage.

When Xiang Yao and the others arrived in Yaojing, the entire city had already been devoured and assimilated by nanoworms, turning into a "living" mobile city.

Without biological wisdom, yet possessing a strong instinct to attack...

In order to "live," the nanocity would instinctively attack and assimilate any creature trying to enter it.

Xiang Yao almost got assimilated and became part of that city.

Until the crisis was finally resolved, Yaojing was appeased by an Immortal and given its name, Xiang Yao was able to survive by chance.

Since that crisis, Yaojing has become a unique lifeform—an Epic Level creature existing in the form of a "city."

The Burrowing Insects continued to live within Yaojing, while Yaojing roamed the Underworld, carrying the Burrowing Insects.

Xiang Yao, who survived by luck, coincidentally achieved symbiosis with some nanoworms, gaining the current [Nanometer Armor].

"User permissions detected..."

"Approval granted for using Transcendental Arsenal..."

"Artificial Muscle Fiber Hardening Program completed..."

"Thermal, Photon, Radiation, Static, Energy Refraction, and Absorption systems ready to initiate..."

"Entering combat readiness, please select the corresponding mode!"