

The Growth 592

Chapter 592 - 2: The Resurrection of the Death God

Almost at the same time that Huo Dou, Luo God, and He Feng reunited.

He Bo, thousands of miles away, was also busy with his work, occasionally paying attention to the journeys of the two.

Ever since the last intrusion, this base had been officially exposed to various forces.

For research on immortality and longevity, no matter in which world or era, it has always been the focus of countless people.

Even on modern civilized Earth, extending lifespan is still the wish of the vast majority of people.

Especially for those rich and ruling class, their pursuit of longevity has reached a near-maniacal level.

In fact, He Bo knew better than anyone that not only his own base, but the entire country's border defense lines had entered a state of war readiness.

With the slightest misstep, the Third World War could break out.

And the trigger for this world war is precisely the "Immortal Body" that is still constantly evolving within this base.

"Sir! The individual radar has detected a suspicious target again!"

Just as He Bo was flipping through the documents submitted yesterday, a soldier suddenly pushed open the office door and reported the new situation to him with a tense face.

Currently, besides normal logistics work, He Bo also part-time handles the extraordinary defense duties of the secret base.

This is a department specifically established to deal with those Extraordinary beings.

Because since the Extraordinary intrusion a few days ago, there have been several more cases of intrusion by Extraordinary beings.

To handle those troublesome Extraordinary beings, the higher-ups officially announced the activation of individual radars specially designed for Extraordinary beings.

Considering He Bo's abilities gave him an advantage in reconnaissance, he had to admit that he was indeed the most suitable person for this duty at present.

"Is it the same probing as before?"

Putting down the documents in his hand, He Bo looked up at the soldier opposite him.

On the current Earth, though Extraordinary beings truly exist, their numbers are not as absurdly high as one might think.

To make a rough numerical conversion, in a city of a million people, having ten Extraordinary beings would already be a considerable number.

Therefore, after sending off Huo Dou and Luo God, the total number of Extraordinary beings in the entire base won't exceed five.

The soldier right now is one of them, and he is an extremely rare combat-type Extraordinary being.

He awakened his superpower unexpectedly while serving in the military, and he was then invited to join the top-tier special forces unit, where he performed various classified tasks related to superpower users.

It wasn't until this sudden discovery of an Immortal from thousands of years ago at Kunlun Mountain that he was urgently deployed to the secret base for protection duties.

"It's uncertain; we only know that the number of Extraordinary beings this time is more than the previous ones..."

The soldier shook his head slightly, showing confusion, and just as he was about to continue speaking, he suddenly heard a gunshot.

BANG!

In the soldier's horrified gaze, He Bo did not lower the handgun he suddenly drew but continued to fire two more shots.

BANG! BANG!

Three consecutive shots hit the soldier's vital points, with the last bullet directly shooting him in the head, killing him.

Thus, as the soldier's body gradually returned to its original Caucasian appearance, his identity was self-evident.

Unfortunately, the invader never knew where he had been exposed, leading He Bo to fire three shots without hesitation.

"It's your way of speaking, you fool!"

"Since you chose to disguise as a Chuannan person, you don't need to speak Mandarin so perfectly!"

He Bo wasn't being regionalist with this remark; it was because that soldier's original Mandarin wasn't perfect and had a slight Chuannan accent.

Regrettably, the invader who disguised as a soldier evidently couldn't detect this subtle accent.

So the moment He Bo heard the opponent's broadcaster-like perfect Mandarin, he discreetly extended his hand into the drawer with the handgun.

"But at least this time the invader has grown a brain."

"Instead of choosing to forcefully break into the base, they used this method of secret infiltration."

While saying so, He Bo couldn't help but have a vague sense of foreboding in his heart.

And as if to confirm this ominous feeling of He Bo's, an ear-piercing alarm suddenly sounded outside.

Accompanying these alarms were gunshots and shouts.

"Thankfully, I sent Luo God and them away first..."

Muttering in relief, He Bo then promptly walked towards the outside.

.....

Just as He Bo imagined, unprecedented chaos was happening inside the base.

The man disguised as a soldier had secretly disarmed the base's defense warning system even before arriving at He Bo's office.

Thus, it wasn't until the enemy was at their doorstep that the internal staff and combat personnel realized what was happening.

Furthermore, after the alerts were lifted, those who forcefully broke into the base were no longer just a few Extraordinary beings.

A joint force, evidently mixed from multiple powers, used unknown means to bypass various detection facilities and lurk near this secret base.

When the man disguised as a soldier dismantled the alert system, this force, without hesitation, stormed into the secret base.

Everyone in this joint force was a battle-hardened veteran.

This was evident from their various tactical maneuvers and warfare experience.

With one glance, He Bo could confirm that the secret base's current military force absolutely couldn't withstand this joint force.

"Need to head to the lab first!"

Without the slightest pause, He Bo ignored the ongoing battle outside and swiftly dashed towards the laboratory researching the Immortals.

However, what shocked He Bo was that when he reached the laboratory, it had already been overrun.

"Are there other Extraordinary beings who have infiltrated the base?"

Looking at the soldiers who died tragic deaths, He Bo was not only shocked but also extremely angry.

Because the Extraordinary being who overran this area seemed to possess death-related abilities, his actions desecrated those soldiers who swore to defend it to the last breath.

Skin and flesh turning into liquid, stripping off from the bones...

The soldiers, who died in a gruesome manner, retained their last gesture of holding up a gun, leaving behind only eerie white skeletons.

Also, the Nine Songs God, dormant within He Bo, was awakened by the invading enemy and now appeared in He Bo's consciousness.

[Is it a Possessor of the Death God?]

[No, it's the true Death God resurrected through a human body!]

The voice of the Nine Songs God instantly sank He Bo's heart, as it was his first time witnessing such a panic-stricken expression from the other party.

Evidently, the Death God, resurrected through a human body, has capabilities that threaten the Nine Songs God.
