Chapter 605 - 15: Divine Kingdoms Filling the Sky

"Is this the Disaster Realm?"

Standing atop the Creator Altar, Yao Xin looked up at the reappeared sky, with a touch of disappointment in her words.

At this moment, Sky City had not activated any ecological simulation system, so everyone was looking at the genuine sky.

Unfortunately, the sky of the Disaster Realm was far less beautiful than that of the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Gray mist shrouded the entire sky, with stars shining even during the day.

If not for the bright sun in the sky, constantly illuminating all directions, Yao Xin couldn't even be sure whether it was day or night.

Because the stars hanging in the sky corresponded to the Gods of the Disaster Realm.

Due to the overwhelming power of the Gods, the stars symbolizing their existence competed with the sun and moon, regardless of day or night.

This kind of situation, where the Divine Power was so strong that it affected the basic operation rules of the world, would cause unimaginable disasters in any world.

Only the Disaster Realm not only adapted to the rule of the Gods but also inversely affected the power of the Gods themselves.

Moreover, with a divine perspective, Yao Xin saw under these stars the Divine Kingdoms belonging to the Gods.

In fact, not all Gods of the Disaster Realm built their Divine Kingdoms on the ground.

Besides the Divine Kingdom occasionally floating in mid-air like Sky City.

More capable and selective Gods would hide their Divine Kingdoms amidst the space-time rifts or even directly open up a subspace.

Just like the stars in the sky, these Divine Kingdoms built by the Gods naturally revolved around the Disaster Realm, becoming a part of the natural phenomenon composing the Disaster Realm.

Those Earthly Divine Kingdoms established on the surface only occupied a third of the total number of Divine Kingdoms in the Disaster Realm.

"Now is not the time to dwell on these..."

Just as Yao Xin was fully concentrated on distinguishing the Divine Kingdoms hidden within the subspace, Hephaestus suddenly spoke, as if sensing something.

And as if confirming Hephaestus's words, a sudden vibration spread throughout the entire Sky City.

Rumble...

The intense vibration did not collapse any structure of Sky City, yet a vague sense of crisis surged in everyone's hearts present.

"What happened?"

Kangtao instinctively widened his eyes, casting his gaze toward Hephaestus.

"The 'Artificial God' you've constructed... has attracted a rather troublesome being."

.....

The Energy Area of Sky City.

This is the energy center of the entire Sky City, also the location where the [Super Large-Imaginary Number Core] is placed.

There are no Mountain and Sea People residing here, only some staff specifically responsible for maintaining the normal operation of the entire energy system.

Among these staff of various forms, the Feathered People, who are smaller in size and adept at flying, serve as the main force here.

In the Mountain and Sea Realm, Feathered People are not a specific race but a general classification, usually referring to those races evolved from birds.

Over time, the mixed and intermingled settlement of various Feathered People gave birth to new generations.

Though these new generations roughly resemble human forms, the colors of their wings at the back differ substantially.

The mainstream new generation of Feathered People typically favor white wings, while the slightly alternative might choose to dye their wings in other pure colors.

Feathered People who prioritize strength might implant various styles of steel feathers in themselves.

However, there are always exceptions.

Yi Hou, born in Immortal Land, who consistently retains the original culture and traditions of Feathered People, is one of them.

Whether due to mixed bloodlines or inheriting the lineage of peacock-like birds, Yi Hou has had multicolored wings since childhood.

When Yi Hou spreads his wings, it's as dazzling and striking as a peacock displaying its feathers.

Unfortunately, such multicolored wings of Yi Hou are not favored within his tribe, and instead, he has been regarded as a Mysterious Creature since young.

Thanks to the Mountain and Sea Civilization's inherently high acceptance of Mysterious Creatures, Yi Hou's distinctiveness did not bring too much trouble upon him.

Even so, Yi Hou chose to ascend to Sky City upon adulthood, distancing himself from his kindred who harbored strange looks towards him.

At least, those Feathered People able to ascend Sky City mostly have their aspirations.

Compared to external anomalies, they care more about the work capabilities of colleagues, sharing long-term cohabitation.

In this regard, Yi Hou can be considered the most reassuring existence among the Feathered People community.

Whether it's individual power or overall working ability, Yi Hou ranks prominently in Sky City.

Otherwise, he wouldn't have been chosen as the person in charge of [Super Large-Imaginary Number Core], specifically responsible for guarding and maintaining the entire Sky City's power system.

"What's going on?"

Rushing to the scene immediately post-vibration, Yi Hou lightly flapped his wings, levitating in the air.

Not far beneath him, a giant [Imaginary Number Core] was faintly visible, creating visible energy tides around it.

"I don't know!"

"The 'Imaginary Number Core' suddenly went out of control!"

The reply Yi Hou received was from a MinAseerpentg She descending from the heavens, who arrived at the scene even before Yi Hou.

It was under this MinAseerpentg She's orchestration that the energy center temporarily activated the Solar Furnace as a backup energy source, preventing the catastrophic fall of Sky City from the skies.

"Suddenly went out of control? Is it related to the anomaly earlier?"

Glancing at the Solar Furnace placed in an octagonal formation near the [Super Large·Imaginary Number Core], Yi Hou's Prosthetic Eye instantly analyzed their limits.

These Solar Furnaces were originally used to manufacture Sun Coins, functioning as devices for daily energy and currency use.

Now tasked with maintaining the operation of the entire Sky City, it was evidently beyond their capacity.

Based on the current consumption rate, these Solar Furnaces could only sustain Sky City's present operational state for eighteen hours tops.

Once the time is up, the entire Sky City will utterly crash.

"Not quite sure."

Confused, MinAseerpentg She shook her head, having checked the database for the reason behind the out-of-control event earlier.

Contrary to MinAseerpentg She's expectations, the database didn't reveal any anomaly information.

"If that's the case, it appears I must delve into the 'Imaginary Number Core' myself to see what the situation is."

Upon hearing Yi Hou's intention, MinAseerpentg She protested immediately.

"No way! That's too dangerous!"

"If anything happens, you'll be directly drawn into the Void!"

"With some luck, you may appear near a world, but most likely you'll be shredded by the Void's power!"
