

The Growth 612

Chapter 612 22: Stars Falling

[Nuo God?]

[Is this the mass-produced version of the Artificial God?]

In the midst of it all, Li Hao focused his gaze on the Nuo God, whose blue face, fanged mouth, red hair, and gold ornaments were the very definition of terror and awe.

Although compared to the initial prototype, the Nuo God belongs to the subsequent mass production models, lacking in functionality in various aspects.

Yet, coupled with a powerful pilot, it can still break through the limitations of the Ascension Ladder and temporarily possess combat power capable of rivaling that of a Demigod, or even the Divine Incarnation.

After all, not all Demigods and Gods excel in combat.

The Mountain and Sea People chosen to pilot the Nuo God, however, are undoubtedly the most elite combatants.

Swoosh—Bang!

When the enormous Nuo God disregarded its own destructive power and officially joined the battle, the outcome was already a foregone conclusion.

No matter how many alternate-space-time identical bodies the Cat-headed Wizard summoned.

The Nuo God, which topples everything through pure force, could easily kill them, showing little sign of being constrained throughout.

However, as the battle continued, Kangtao noticed something very peculiar.

No matter how many casualties there were, the Cat-headed Wizard never took a step back, not even caring about the alternate-space-time identical bodies' casualties.

[It's as if... they're intentionally stalling for time!]

With this thought flashing through his mind, Kangtao did not hesitate at all and turned to target the not too far away Super Large-Imaginary Space.

Whoosh!

The right arm raised swiftly changed and reassembled.

With both biological traits and mechanically unique structures, Kangtao's arm transformed.

In an instant, a Quantum Light Cannon that drew energy directly from the Power Melting Furnace took shape, and the surging energy fluctuations emanated.

This is the capability of the Nuo God, as well as an embodiment of Kangtao's will.

Though a mass-produced model, the Nuo God does not have a uniform standard specification but can continuously evolve new abilities and forms according to different users—a super armament.

After all, the Nuo God is known as the "Body of God" within the Mountain and Sea Civilization.

If its ceiling was set at the moment of its creation, that would be too inconsistent with its name's grandeur.

"Are you mad?"

As the Quantum Light Cannon was about to fire, the initial calmness of the Cat-headed Wizard finally broke.

Attacking the energy core of one's city?

The Cat-headed Wizard couldn't believe the opponent would be this crazy.

"I'm not mad, I just made a rational judgment."

The voice of Nuo God was loud and low, and the Cat-headed Wizard even heard a tone of determination in it.

"You've been stalling for time, isn't it to await the birth of that New God?"

"It's the will of the Sky City, and the 'Imaginary Number Core' happens to be the heart of Sky City..."

"So no matter what you're plotting, if I just destroy the 'Imaginary Number Core,' I can naturally disrupt your plans!"

The battle continued around, yet Nuo God's words alerted the Mountain and Sea People still fighting nearby.

Including Marquis Yi, the Mountain and Sea People, directly or indirectly, started to shift their battlefield toward the area of the Super Large Imaginary Number Core.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Watching the battle's aftereffects start to influence the energy tides around the Super Large Imaginary Number Core bit by bit.

Seeing this scene, the confident posture the Cat-headed Wizard had no longer could hold, and like a truly frenzied feline, he roared angrily.

"Destroy the energy core of this city, and this city will fall too..."

"Without the shelter of this city, you are destined not to survive in this world!"

The Disaster Realm is a world ruled by Gods; a civilization without the protection of Gods is bound to become a delicious "feast."

The Cat-headed Wizard's patron, the Artificial God Matot, may indeed have its own plans and intentions.

But his action to awaken the will of the Sky City, in a sense, indeed achieved the purpose of protecting the Mountain and Sea People.

"In this world, only Gods can combat Gods, what you are doing now is just digging your own grave!"

The Cat-headed Wizard's words were both a warning and a reminder.

The blue-faced, fanged, red-haired, gold-banded Artificial God across the battlefield might have touched the realm of Demigods, but it was never a true God.

At least, the Cat-headed Wizard did not believe the other could protect their kin from Gods everywhere in the Disaster Realm.

If Gods could be so easily confronted, the Cat-headed Wizard would not have chosen to join Matot's faction and become one of the countless denizens within His many train carriages.

"We're not like you!"

No longer engaging in extensive dialogue with the Cat-headed Wizard.

As a standard Skeleton, Kangtao's education from a young age always taught him that the more frantic and angry the enemy is, the more it indicates he must be doing something right.

As for what might happen after Sky City falls?

Let's discuss that after Sky City collapses!

At worst, they could spend some more time gathering resources and build another Sky City again.

Anyway, the Mountain and Sea People are no lost civilization with missing technology; they have a full set of blueprints and technology to rebuild a Sky City.

"We indeed are different!"

Perhaps seeing traces of his civilization from Nuo God, the Cat-headed Wizard became even angrier after a brief silence.

"Because I wouldn't gamble my kindred's life, much less ignore an Apostle's warning!"

Just as the words fell, the Cat-headed Wizard waved his gigantic Magic Wand again.

In the next instant, a piercing screech suddenly came from outside Sky City, accompanied by the metallic crashing sound of gears turning.

Hoot! Hoot! Hoot!

In the astonishing gaze of those bearing the Name of the Mountains and Seas, a giant train, whose head and tail were indiscernible, appeared out of thin air and surrounded Sky City.

This giant train traveled so rapidly that a peculiar vortex storm formed around it.

Most critically, the Cat-headed Wizard apparently received some power from this giant train, with his body uncontrollably swelling and enlarging.

"Starfire... come forth!"

With just a howl skyward from the Cat-headed Wizard, stars in the sky were forcibly pulled down.

Stars fell from the sky, transforming into countless meteorites rushing toward Sky City...

During this process, the giant train, its head and tail unclear, slowly turned, its carriages revealing glimpses of strange and bizarre lives peering at Sky City.

Facing the meteorites so near, the passengers in the carriages did not show a trace of panic.

Because all the passengers knew, that star symbolized "God," and they, blessed by God, would not be harmed by the star at all.