

The Growth 706

Chapter 706 12: Red Alert Status

The high-temperature anomaly in the Mountain and Sea Realm was not first noticed by Shu Hai.

As the Sun God of the Mountain and Sea Realm—Hua She sensed the anomaly earlier than any other gods.

The abnormal high temperatures appeared all over the Mountain and Sea Realm...

Oceans evaporated, ocean currents changed, and even the atmospheric cycle encountered problems.

Fortunately, this wave of abnormal high temperature was gradually escalating.

Otherwise, even the Mountain and Sea Civilization would be unable to resolve the negative impacts brought by this high temperature anomaly in a short time.

Even so, the Celestial Pillars erected at the four poles operated to their limits.

These were the Celestial Pillars formed from the limbs of the Giant Turtle slain by Earth Apostle Dragon Child.

These Celestial Pillars have the ability to balance the earth and sea climate and serve as the ballast for the Mountain and Sea Realm.

As long as these four Celestial Pillars exist, the Mountain and Sea Civilization can maximize the maintenance of the current environment by regulating the climate.

But with the appearance of this high-temperature anomaly, the four Celestial Pillars have already been working overtime.

The high temperature twisted the air visible to the naked eye, forming a mist around the four Celestial Pillars.

The agitated Heaven and Earth Primordial Qi frequently lost control, forcing epic creatures of the Mountain and Sea Realm to migrate repeatedly.

Those epic creatures were super beings capable of altering the natural environment, and their migrations naturally affected the whole ecological balance of the Mountain and Sea Realm.

To cope with these migrating epic creatures and Wilderness clans, the Mountain and Sea Civilization has already entered into a red alert state.

Cities along the way proactively evaded and guided...

The Mountain and Sea People spontaneously searched for new suitable living environments for these creatures and clans...

This is the biggest difference between the Mountain and Sea Civilization and other civilizations, they never considered themselves superior to other beings.

Nowadays, those epic creatures and Wilderness clans, who have yet to discover wisdom, might become members of the Mountain and Sea People in the future.

Therefore, helping them now is helping oneself in the future.

[So, where did it go wrong?]

Observing everything happening on the earth, Hua She was perplexed.

During these few sun and moon cycles, Hua She attempted to raise the height of the sun to lower the ground temperature, but it only temporarily curbed the temperature rise.

Hua She also considered whether the problem arose from the Day of Sin.

Utilizing her authority as the Sun God, Hua She also elevated the Day of Sin, predictably without any effect.

After all, the essence of the Day of Sin is a divine abomination, with far less obvious impacts on world cycles compared to a true sun.

The Mountain and Sea Realm can do without a Day of Sin but cannot do without the current sun.

Hua She also once exchanged thoughts with other gods.

Whether it was the Star God or other gods, they knew even less than her about this anomaly.

Until the Supreme Death God Yao Xin from the Netherworld dispatched her Netherworld Celestial Monarch to the sun, Hua She suddenly realized.

Since it was not an internal issue of the Mountain and Sea Realm, the cause could only lie externally.

A distorted space-time barrier surrounds the Mountain and Sea Realm, shielding it from the influences and harm of the All Heavens and Myriad Realms.

Because of this space-time barrier, Hua She had not considered the disaster might originate outside the Mountain and Sea Realm.

[What's happening outside?]

With this question flashing through her mind, Hua She opened her eyes within the sun and gazed beyond the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Unlike other gods of various authorities, Sun Gods are immensely powerful and supreme entities in any world.

Observing and detecting abnormalities outside the world and being vigilant of external disasters' impacts on this world are the basic duties and abilities of every Sun God.

Although Hua She is playful, she still acts professionally within her authority's scope.

[What is that?]

It didn't take long for Hua She's gaze to penetrate the distorted space-time barrier, seeing the chaotic void beyond.

The first thing that caught Hua She's eye was the stirred waves of chaos surrounding.

Among those chaotic waves, thousands of worlds were displaced, and various disasters descended upon their interiors.

If not for the space-time barrier, the Mountain and Sea Realm would have been one of those thousands of worlds.

Immediately after, Hua She saw the culprit causing all this.

It was a huge, dazzling world.

Compared to other worlds, that world was indescribably complex.

It's understood that in a high-dimensional perspective, worlds are never simply describable by size.

Unless they have fallen to the Fallen Area and become decrepit, the interior of worlds is infinitely large, with differences only in whether resources and species are abundant.

In most cases, to judge whether a world is strong, its complexity offers some clues.

At this moment, the world before Hua She's eyes was highly complex.

However, Hua She, as the descendant of the Winged Serpent God and having followed Li Hao for a long time, quickly discerned the abnormality of the world.

This complex world did not form a complete cycle and order but was merely sustained by a powerful force.

Every moment, this world is walking towards extinction.

Yet that force is so powerful, powerful enough to even offset the internal consumption of the world.

[Is it a Sun God?]

As a fellow Sun God, Hua She quickly determined a Sun God of near-unbelievable strength was sustaining that world.

When this Sun God returned from the Dimensional Gap to the Ascension Area, the radiance emitted was sufficient to light up millions of worlds.

By comparison, causing mere ripples in the chaos was already the most negligible impact.

The abnormal high-temperature rise in the Mountain and Sea Realm was the residual power of that Sun God.

Boom!

Just as Hua She was still pondering the origins of the Sun God, another roar echoed in the chaos.

The next second, a massive fish appeared from the void and fiercely struck that Sun God's world.

Sizzle!

Instantly, the space-time barrier around the Mountain and Sea Realm trembled.

The few worlds closest to their clash visibly experienced disruptions.

Although uncertain of what impact the disruption would have on the living beings within, Hua She clearly did not hold an overly optimistic view.

[Is that a Hunting Fish? An extraordinary apostle of the God of Gods? What's going on?]

This thought flashed through her mind.

Just as Hua She intended to continue observing the battle, she was stunned to discover that the dazzling world was heading towards the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Also, the giant fish pursuing the dazzling world became more aggressive and increasingly violent.
