

The Growth 713

Chapter 713

At the same time, in the Disaster Realm.

"Yao Xin..."

The Hua She coiled within the great sun also sensed Yao Xin's death, straining its eyes to see what was happening outside.

However, what appeared before Hua She's eyes was the scene of the world first collapsing.

Rumble...

Like a watermelon split open from the middle, bright beams visible to the naked eye turned into sparks illuminating the chaos.

The disintegration of matter and energy turned that world into a transient black hole, swiftly descending from higher dimensions to lower ones.

Without the support of dimensions, uncontrolled matter and energy were transformed back into chaos.

And the world that burst like a watermelon became a star with a physical form in this dimensional reduction process.

It was a star of death, a blazing sun erupting with lava from inside out.

Perhaps due to its fast demise.

This star couldn't even hold out until it fell to the [Fallen Area] before it began collapsing entirely, descending to even lower dimensions.

Hua She felt like it merely blinked.

That ultra-large star, tens of millions of times bigger than a normal star, had already shattered into countless fragments, to the point where even the concept of matter was gradually fading away.

In the [Ascension Area], stars simply cannot evolve into supernovae or truly become black holes.

Even a Supreme Sun like Di Jun can only end up in tatters and become part of this endless chaos.

"..."

Just when Hua She thought it was all over, those stellar fragments suddenly began to spin.

A huge vortex seemed to appear in the void out of nowhere, guiding those stellar fragments to rotate clockwise at high speed, breaking the tranquility of chaos.

It was a transformation of a higher dimension.

Hua She couldn't even comprehend how it saw the concept of "rotation" from endless chaos.

The only certainty was that some force stopped the star's fall and attempted to reorganize these stellar fragments from a higher dimension.

Whirl... whirl... whirl...

In a daze, Hua She seemed to see a "tripod furnace" taking shape.

It was a gigantic "tripod furnace," born on the scale of a world.

With the formation of that "tripod furnace," the stellar fragments that were originally descending in dimensions miraculously achieved ascension.

It was a world...

No, it was a "tripod furnace" of a dimension higher than a world.

The most crucial thing was that the more Hua She looked at that "tripod furnace," the more it felt familiar.

—Yin Yang Trigrams revolving combinations, myriad changes in higher dimensional lower sequences.

Beyond its ancient, mysterious temperament, there were mechanical wheels and buttons completely out of place with its style.

[Isn't that the 'Automatic Alchemy Furnace' concocted by the God of Gods?]

Such a thought flashed through its mind.

Hua She wore an odd expression in silence, intently watching the formation process of the high-dimensional "tripod furnace."

Except for the materials used upgrading from ordinary metals to world fragments.

In every other aspect, that "tripod furnace" was identical to the "Automatic Alchemy Furnace" previously devised by Li Hao.

—Using the world as a tripod, casting stars as the furnace!

—Reversing Yin and Yang changes, breaking the barriers of life and death!

.....

Whirl... whirl... whirl...

Gazing indifferently at the forming [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace], Li Hao's expression was calm yet focused.

This wasn't the first time Li Hao crafted an Epic Level Divine Artifact, but it was certainly the one he invested the most effort and dedication into.

When creating other Epic Level Divine Artifacts, Li Hao was somewhat resigned to fate.

Not pursuing specific functions or effects, leaving the final appearance and effect to destiny.

Only with this [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace], Li Hao decisively eliminated all variables, keeping all changes within his control range.

Therefore, when the [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace] started alchemy, everything around it was completely devoured.

Whoosh!

The vigorous Fire of Chaos burned, with changes of dimensional Yin and Yang mixed within.

Under the devouring suction of the [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace], all the basic elements of Yao Xin's death were completely absorbed.

Absorbed into the [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace] along with Yao Xin were Di Jun, the Jiuge Gods, Di Jun's Divine, and even the shattered [Bai Ze Map].

Boom!

As the [Fixed Star Tripod Furnace] re-forged all these elements.

In the blazing Fire of Chaos, a glittering "Divine Pill" suddenly appeared at the center of the pill furnace.

This "Divine Pill" integrated all the aforementioned elements, exuding a power fluctuation that could be described as earth-shattering.

If a creature could swallow this "Divine Pill," it might simultaneously acquire the full energy of Yao Xin, Di Jun, the Gods, the Bai Ze Map, and the already destroyed world.

Of course, the premise is that the creature swallowing this "Divine Pill" doesn't burst and die.

After all, leaving aside any other additional attributes of this "Divine Pill."

Just the energy of such an ultra-large star, comparable to tens of millions of stars, is not something any creature can digest.

Never mind creatures, even Gods like Taotie, Leviathan, and Sun-Devouring Divine Monarch are incapable of doing so.

However, Li Hao's ultimate goal wasn't to craft a "Divine Pill," so he didn't really care whether this "Divine Pill" could be digested or not.

[Primordial Qi, Mysterious Female self-formed. The Valley God is immortal, the pill breaks to form the infant.]

[I believe this is how the 'Alchemy Technique' should be carried out?]

Under Li Hao's intervention, the "Divine Pill" slowly started to rotate.

Although its rotation speed wasn't particularly fast, each turn absorbed the remaining energy in the pill furnace.

One transition, two transitions, three transitions...

Until the ninth transition, a chubby female infant gradually formed within the "Divine Pill."

This was the reborn Yao Xin.

Achieved through the Qi Refining Technique and Alchemy Skill as a "Divine Infant."

The difference being that typical alchemy and Qi refining utilize Primordial Qi, but this "Divine Infant" was nurtured by the Power of Creation from an entire world.

—Cultivating the Nascent Soul through the External Pill Technique, forging the Primordial Spirit with Supreme Power.

Even the Tao Ancestor who originally founded the "Path of Qi Refining" probably never imagined that someone in the future would use such an absurd method to recreate a Supreme God.

So, when the infant gently opened her eyes, the enormous pill furnace naturally shrank and fell into her palm.

"I'm... alive again?"

Looking at the "sun" that enveloped her from outside, the infant let out a childish and inquisitive voice.

—Intent follows the heart, thoughts change things.

When the infant attempted to stand, her form swiftly reverted to her former appearance as a maiden.

Simultaneously, the "External Pill" originally used to protect her transformed into a garment, with faint traces of Yin Yang and Life Death forces roaming across it.

Even the garment possessed such unimaginable powers, let alone the newly reborn Yao Xin.

With a mere thought, Yao Xin sensed within her body the simultaneous presence of powers from the Supreme Death God and the Supreme Sun as Supreme Gods.

Beyond that, there's also a more vast and grand Power of Creation gestating within her.

This power originated from the Bai Ze Map, yet absorbed the energy of an entire world, becoming the true Power of the Creator.

"I... have become the Creator?"