

The Growth 739

Chapter 739 21: Inheritance of the Sun God

The rebirth of the Golden Crow is not a process that goes smoothly on its own.

The accumulation of energy, the selection of a host; if any condition is unmet, the Golden Crow will restart the resurrection ceremony.

Or more precisely, the flames that spread like disaster across the world are part of the Golden Crow's resurrection ceremony.

Unfortunately, the appearance of Demon Vanquishing Seven interrupted this resurrection process.

Realizing that Little Golden Crow·You Wen was about to perish, Demon Vanquishing Seven proactively went to the core of the "Abnormal High Temperature Area," relying on its robust body to forcibly absorb solar particles and heat.

From this perspective, this is also one major reason why the "Abnormal High Temperature Area" in the Mountain and Sea Realm didn't spread as rapidly as in other worlds.

Taking advantage of its strong transformation module.

Demon Vanquishing Seven simulated the environment and energy needed for the birth of the Little Golden Crow, making its own body part of the ceremony.

Until the Little Golden Crow developed its own will and regarded Demon Vanquishing Seven as its mother...

Thus, this crisis that should have swept across the entire Mountain and Sea Realm was quietly resolved by Demon Vanquishing Seven.

If it weren't for the intervention of Shu Hai and others, Demon Vanquishing Seven might have stayed in the core area of the "Abnormal High Temperature Area," absorbing solar particles and heat to help the Little Golden Crow grow.

As the saying goes, a blessing in disguise.

And precisely because of the arrival of Shu Hai and others, Little Golden Crow·You Wen was prematurely nurtured, and Demon Vanquishing Seven thereby avoided the fatal fate of becoming the Golden Crow host.

Otherwise, the day Little Golden Crow·You Wen was born would have been the day of Demon Vanquishing Seven's destruction.

This is the fate of all Golden Crow hosts, and also the beginning for the Little Golden Crow to rid itself of external interference and reclaim its identity as the "Son of Emperor Jun."

"So, not only Demon Vanquishing Seven, but the Sun Goddess also interfered with the Golden Crow's resurrection ceremony?"

Blinking with slight confusion, Duo Mu asked curiously.

"Yes, according to the data collected by Demon Vanquishing Seven, that seems to be the case."

Involving his field of expertise, the Flame Race finally seemed less socially anxious.

"Analyzing based on known data..."

"In the final moment of revival, Little Golden Crow will use the violent True Sun Fire to burn everything, then transform into the sun, obtaining past-life memories and inheritance."

"But that Sun Goddess...gave the Little Golden Crow a new inheritance even before that."

Saying this, the Flame Race turned his head with a somewhat strange expression.

There it was, the theoretically sun-transformable Little Golden Crow, nestled obediently beside Demon Vanquishing Seven, showing no signs of danger.

"That inheritance... helped the Little Golden Crow master the sun's power in advance!"

With a slight sense of realization, Shu Hai finally felt at ease.

It seems that the Sun Goddess is indeed reliable and didn't cause trouble for the Mountain and Sea Realm over such a crucial issue.

"Uh, I have a question now..."

Suddenly raising his hand, Duo Mu stared intently at the Little Golden Crow and asked.

"After receiving the Sun Goddess's inheritance, will this Little Golden Crow still become the 'Son of Emperor Jun'?"

.....

[Son of Emperor Jun?]

Looking with interest at the young Little Golden Crow, Li Hao had already formulated his answer to Duo Mu's query.

With Emperor Jun already deceased, the newly born Little Golden Crow certainly won't be the "Son of Emperor Jun" anymore.

Deprived of the ancient inheritance and power from its father's side.

As Little Golden Crow·You Wen's Divine Format grows once more, it will be more influenced by its mother.

Sun Goddess·Xi He might be a bit temperamental, but she definitely doesn't have Emperor Jun's violent disposition.

This way, even if Little Golden Crow recalls Emperor Jun's legacy in the future, its demeanor will be more gentle and rational than it was before its rebirth.

[It feels like a parental battle for the right to educate their child...]

Blinking involuntarily, Li Hao grew curious about how Emperor Jun and Xi He raised their children back then.

Does Xi He's current method count as forcibly altering her children's personalities?

In any civilization, child education is notoriously tricky.

In this regard, even the Sun Goddess Xi He is not exempt.

[This is only the first Golden Crow; there are nine more to go.]

His gaze shifting beyond the Mountain and Sea Realm, Li Hao looked toward the worlds nearby.

With the super sensing ability granted by the [Vast Heaven Mirror], Li Hao effortlessly pinpointed the locations of the other nine Golden Crows.

Compared to their tenth sibling — Little Golden Crow·You Wen, the situations of the other nine Golden Crows are much more complicated.

Among them, the strongest Little Golden Crow has even completely hatched, becoming a small sun in that world.

However, this little sun isn't the "Source of Life" bringing vitality to the world, but the violent "God of Destruction."

Wherever it passes, rivers dry up, the earth cracks, and the temperature of the entire world rises by dozens of degrees.

The rest of the unborn Little Golden Crows, although temporarily falling short, also faintly exhibit that violent nature.

[It seems Xi He's plan to reclaim the remaining nine Golden Crows won't be simple...]

Without any intention to assist Xi He, Li Hao watched calmly as her incarnations traveled across various worlds.

Beyond the Mountain and Sea Realm, Xi He's incarnations were far less restrained.

With the power of the Supreme Fire God, Xi He forcefully ventured into those worlds, attempting to reclaim her children.

For Xi He, as long as the Creator of the Mountain and Sea Realm doesn't intervene, she has no fear of those worlds' beings and gods.

[Aside from the Golden Crows, there are also the rather unruly Moon Rabbits...]

Shifting his gaze once more, Li Hao observed the Moon Rabbits appearing in other worlds.

While the commotion they caused wasn't as intense as the Golden Crows, the impact was far greater in many counts.

After all, other worlds lacked City Guards and had no [Artificial God] capable of single-handedly defeating gods.

[It looks like the Mountain and Sea Realm is destined not to have peace anytime soon.]

Li Hao didn't care about those Golden Crows and Jade Rabbits, nor did he mind Xi He's presence.

The Golden Crow that appeared in the Mountain and Sea Realm, he planned to hand over to Hua She as a Divine.

Because Taiyi, determined to ascend the ladder to divinity, clearly had no intention of long-term service as a [Sun Lord].

As for the Jade Rabbit named "Gu Tu"?

Li Hao felt that if it knew its place and was willing to join the Mountain and Sea Civilization, he wouldn't mind recreating the ancient spectacle of "Two Moons in the Sky."