

The Growth 759

Chapter 759 17: Auspicious Celestial Maiden · Celestial Monarch Sha

The clouds parted, and the air roared with an explosion.

A visible shockwave swept across a hundred-mile radius.

Wherever Dongjun and Nagisa's influence reached, it was a scene of devastation.

Trees were destroyed, rivers overflowed, even the mountains and terrain suffered catastrophic damage...

"What an incredible battle this is!"

Beneath the battlefield, which all creatures feared to approach, a phantom-like figure appeared out of thin air.

This figure was only the size of an ordinary human, floating in mid-air like a ghost.

Whether it was a storm or shockwave, they could pass through Him without obstruction, as if He was merely an illusory shadow.

However, when He slowly lifted His head.

Those cold, indifferent eyes could attract anyone's attention.

Anyone targeted by those eyes of death would never think Him just an illusory shadow.

Because He was the Netherworld Celestial Monarch from the Netherworld, the very incarnation of Death in the truest sense.

Yet, compared to other Netherworld Celestial Monarchs, this Monarch aside from those deathly eyes that cannot be directly gazed upon, seemed full of human compassion.

"The creatures living here really got an unexpected disaster."

Celestial Monarch Sha, a Netherworld Celestial Monarch reborn from a True God.

Before becoming the incarnation of the Long-Eyed God, Celestial Monarch Sha was a Goddess of Kindness.

Even after being reborn into a Netherworld Celestial Monarch, Celestial Monarch Sha still maintained His nature as the God of Kindness.

As long as it didn't violate the Reincarnation Laws, Celestial Monarch Sha was actually quite willing to turn a blind eye and in certain special situations, grant mercy to those dying creatures.

Of course, granting mercy didn't mean they didn't have to go through reincarnation.

Rather, it was to fulfill their dying wishes to a suitable extent, allowing them to see their family and friends one last time.

Perhaps it was precisely because of such actions.

Celestial Monarch Sha had another name in the Mountain and Sea Civilization — Auspicious Celestial Maiden.

It's said only those who accumulate virtue and enjoy blessings would be guided by the Auspicious Celestial Maiden to reincarnate in the Netherworld.

Celestial Monarch Sha remained noncommittal about such rumors, but indeed couldn't just watch innocent lives suffer unexpected misfortune.

"Let's go! Consider this an exception!"

With a gentle sigh, Celestial Monarch Sha suddenly waved a sleeve.

In the next second, a raccoon about to be fatally struck by a shockwave was sent out of this perilous area.

Along with this raccoon, other creatures that didn't have time to escape were also sent away from the battlefield.

This was indeed an exception for those Celestial Monarchs who governed death.

Because under normal circumstances, most Netherworld Celestial Monarchs would only look on as these creatures died, then take their souls away afterward.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Celestial Monarch Sha's actions didn't affect the battle between Dongjun and Nagisa.

From Celestial Monarch Sha's perspective, it was clear that the seemingly balanced battle was actually always within Dongjun's control.

Not to mention that Dongjun, as a God, has yet to use His true Divine Power.

By simply dragging the battle out, Dongjun could surely win.

After all, "Divine Mode" is ultimately a special combat technique that exhausts one's potential and burns Life Force.

Once Nagisa enters "Divine Mode".

She must either win with an absolute overwhelming advantage, or self-destruct as time passes.

In contrast, Dongjun, although also squeezing the potential of His physical body.

For a true higher-dimensional God, even if this physical body is utterly destroyed, it is merely a matter of changing incarnations.

Moreover, as the "Spring God", life's vitality from the earth continuously poured into Dongjun's body.

Though keeping "Divine Mode" constant was still somewhat challenging, purely in terms of endurance, Dongjun was undoubtedly a cut above Nagisa.

"This battle no longer holds any suspense."

With a soft sigh, Celestial Monarch Sha ceased to pay attention to the battle in the sky.

Neither Dongjun and Nagisa's combat nor the number of non-normally deceased creatures in this area was the reason Celestial Monarch Sha came here.

Only matters concerning the balance of life and death could alarm a being of the Netherworld Celestial Monarch level.

"Neither alive nor dead, decayed yet undying..."

With a simple step forward, Celestial Monarch Sha's figure disappeared once more, reappearing in the void layer where the giant beast lay sprawling.

"You truly have made a troublesome wish!"

At this moment, the giant beast still lingered in a long-awaited slumber, its body stiff and decaying like a corpse.

Even the Netherworld Celestial Monarch, master of life and death, showed a rare tinge of caution upon seeing the beast's current state.

Its body already dead, even starting to decay.

Yet the beast continued to transform, evolving into new forms even if reduced to mere bones.

And within this continuously evolving decayed body, a trapped girl's soul could only wail and weep, enduring the price of eternal life.

"Pitiful, pathetic. I can't even say 'brought it upon yourself' to evaluate you."

As if hearing Celestial Monarch Sha's words, the once dormant beast began to breathe again.

The girl's soul opened its eyes at this moment, seeing the Netherworld Celestial Monarch, ever exuding an aura of death and peace.

[Are you... here to take me away?]

Recognizing Celestial Monarch Sha's identity at a glance, the girl... or rather Feng Sheng, sobbed softly.

In the legends of the Mountain and Sea Civilization, the Netherworld Celestial Monarch only appeared before the dead.

So when you saw the Netherworld Celestial Monarch, it also meant you were heading towards death.

Unsure whether to be glad to finally embrace death or unwilling to accept the premature end of her life.

Feng Sheng gazed at the legendary "Auspicious Celestial Maiden," eyes filled with both joy and sorrow.

"I would like to take you away, but the problem now is that I can't take you."

With a faint glance at Feng Sheng's soul, Celestial Monarch Sha sighed with a hint of helplessness.

"Since the Divine Lamp appeared, some absurd individuals have been making absurd wishes..."

"I can understand desires for indulgence, wealth, life and death."

"But your current situation is very special—you simply won't die. Even if your physical body turns to dust, your soul will remain conscious."

Feng Sheng looked confusedly at Celestial Monarch Sha, trying to understand the meaning behind His words.

"I don't know if it's because your wish was too special, or because the Genie that fulfilled your wish was too powerful..."

"In any case, right now you have, in a certain sense, already stepped out of the Reincarnation System."

"Your life and death are no longer my concern, at least, for now, I can't handle it..."