

The Growth 79

Chapter 79 - 7: All Attribute Points Allocated to Intelligence! (2/5)

Night falls, the time is evening.

The dim sunlight filters through the gauzy window screens into the room, where Li Hao's newly purchased computer is undergoing its first boot trial run.

The result is perfect, this two-thousand-yuan configured machine can even smoothly run some large single-player games with low configuration requirements.

If there is any defect, it is probably that Li Hao doesn't have money to connect to the internet line and can only access the internet through the hotspot WiFi shared by his phone.

In this regard, Li Hao seems indifferent.

After all, his current phone is nothing short of a miniature supercomputer that can smoothly run the mini version of the Civilization Game, its performance far surpassing that of regular phones.

Moreover, the reason why Li Hao acquired this computer wasn't purely for internet access.

Snap!

Skillfully snapping his fingers, a book emitting an ancient and mysterious aura appeared in Li Hao's hand.

This was the Chronicles of Time, transformed from the Candle Dragon Pearl, and it was also the true control center of the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Despite being in the Fallen Area belonging to Earth, the Chronicles of Time couldn't exert its true power.

But Li Hao wasn't planning to utilize the Chronicle of Time's abilities; he simply wanted to make some modifications to it.

In fact, ever since learning he became the Creator of another world, Li Hao has been pondering how to be a qualified Divine Spirit.

This isn't some self-deluding arrogance; it merely stems from the sense of responsibility brought by this title.

However, Li Hao's main body is on Earth and he can only enter the other world in his dreams to exert his influence.

Before ascending his main body to the Ascension Area without abandoning his flesh.

How to compensate for his absence in the Mountain and Sea Realm during the day became a problem Li Hao always wanted to solve.

Until the appearance of the Civilization Game made Li Hao suddenly realize that he might have been overcomplicating the problem.

"Since the existence of the Gods can become a part of a game..."

"Then operating a world as if it's a game doesn't seem to be too big of an issue either?"

Vaguely muttering, the Chronicles of Time in Li Hao's hand emitted a faint glow at that moment.

Without a moment's hesitation, Li Hao simply and brazenly slapped the Chronicles of Time onto his newly assembled computer host.

Whoosh!

Following that, it was as if a replica of the Civilization Game Invitation's scene assimilation with the phone was occurring.

The computer host emitted the same glow as the Chronicles of Time, and its essence underwent an astonishing transformation at that moment.

Unfortunately, Li Hao didn't have a very advanced aesthetic, nor did he understand how to upgrade his computer components on a micro level.

Therefore, the computer host assimilated with the Chronicles of Time still maintained its original appearance and configuration.

The only difference was that an unnamed software program appeared on Li Hao's computer screen.

"Indeed, it's feasible!"

Somewhat excited, Li Hao looked at the unnamed software program.

Li Hao knew that it was the Chronicles of Time in the form of a program, a real channel that directly connected to the Mountain and Sea Realm.

Resolutely naming this program "Mountain and Sea Realm", Li Hao almost without hesitation directly clicked on this program.

Beep!

Accompanied by a crude prompt without any sound effects.

A massive map panel encompassing the Mountain and Sea Realm proudly displayed on Li Hao's computer screen.

With the movement of the mouse, Li Hao could selectively zoom in on any corner of the Mountain and Sea Realm, observing every happening within it.

Although he temporarily couldn't achieve the all-encompassing, detail-informed view as in his dreams, it roughly met Li Hao's demands.

Most importantly, this program was just like a real program, which could be programmed and modified through the Chronicles of Time.

"Hmm, it seems besides studying computer hardware, I also need to learn programming."

Slightly troubled, scratching his head, Li Hao knew his learning tasks became more burdensome.

Luckily, when he went to the computer city lord to get his computer, he not only bought some books related to electronic information engineering, but also picked up a basic introductory programming textbook.

Thinking about it, Li Hao decided to open his personal panel.

He first reduced power, agility, constitution, perception, and charm all to the normal human level of 10, then immediately used the 50 remaining attribute points to increase intelligence.

"Ah!"

Never having tried such an extreme attribute allocation, Li Hao instinctively cried out in pain.

Having long been accustomed to his "super human" identity, Li Hao once again felt that long-lost sense of weakness.

His body seemed to become sluggish, his perception seemed impaired, and even breathing took much more effort...

In exchange for a weakened body, Li Hao's intelligence, already far exceeding that of normal humans, seemingly became the God of Wisdom at that moment.

The knowledge points he had read and memorized in the past became readily comprehensible and absorbable to him at that moment.

Looking at the table, he could analyze its making process and further think of superior structures...

Looking at the computer, he could comprehend its composition and value, further thinking of better configurations...

...

At this moment, anything Li Hao set his eyes on could become a source of inspiration for him.

The more knowledge Li Hao has stored, the more inspiration he could derive, making him increasingly impatient with the simple and error-prone lifestyle and habits he had before.

"There's even a side effect of turning into an obsessive-compulsive disorder?"

Strongly enduring the throbbing pain and burning sensation transmitted from his brain, Li Hao clearly realized his brain was being overloaded.

The seventy points of intelligence brought about equally remarkable consumption and heat.

With Li Hao's current average human physique, he couldn't possibly bear the burden created by this extraordinary brain's thoughts.

If there were a thermometer at hand, it would show that his current body temperature had surpassed the physiological limit of fifty degrees.

The only reason Li Hao was still alive was purely due to the effect of the Immortal Body, and the additional boost and protection provided by the Candle Dragon Mask he was wearing.

Even so, Li Hao still couldn't help but open his third Celestial Eye at his brow.

Along with the Candle Dragon Mask, originally disguised as "Li Hao", was also forced to revert to its original form.

"God of Gods!?"

This scene fell into the eyes of Hua She beside him.

It was as if Li Hao had suddenly lost control and reverted to his form with a Dragon Head and human body, the Celestial Eye at his brow manifesting a scarlet hue.

"I'm fine, I just validated a hypothesis of mine."

Reaching out to calm the panicked Huo Dou at his feet, Li Hao smiled and said.

"The result was slightly better than I imagined..."

"Hmm, let's temporarily name it the 'God of Wisdom' mode!"