

The Substitute Bride Triplets And The Impotent Billionaire

A Horrible Dream

Chapter 27 A Horrible Dream

Jarek's eyes met Tinsley and the triplets in bewilderment. Jason, the miniature of him, Ariel, and Mason who had almost the same face as him and their age, Jarek doesn't need to be told that these were his kids.

"You gave birth to my kids?" Jarek walked toward Tinsley. His face was freezing cold, and his figure was straight. Tinsley had a feeling that he was about to strangle her, right here and then.

"Jarek. Wait. Let me explain." Tinsley begged fearfully and pulled the triplets behind her. Had it been she knew, she would never have brought out the kids today.

"Explain what?" Jarek scoffed and began to stride toward her, filled with anger. His figure towered over her, and it repeatedly sent fear down her spine.

"That you had my children and kept them away from me for over 6 years? That we met, but you couldn't tell me you have my kids?" Jarek said coldly.

"Do you want to make my kids fatherless or do you want to introduce someone else as their father? Tell me!" He yelled at her and that made her jump in fear.

"I..."

"You know what? From today onward my kids will never..."

"No. No. No. Don't take them away from me." Tinsley cried out and sprang up from the bed in shock.

Her hand flew to her chest and she heaved out in fear, but she soon calmed down after seeing that she was on the bed and the triplets was right beside her. "It's a relief. He's not here. He's not here." Tinsley uttered while heaving heavily and fearfully.

Suddenly, the lamps were turned on, Tinsley almost froze, but Rory grabbed her hand and pulled her out of the bed in order to not disturb the sleeping children.

"You've been good. What suddenly came over you this evening?" Rory asked immediately they both settled in the sitting room.

"Rory, I'm scared." Tinsley suddenly pulled Rory into a hug. "I had a dream that he took them away from me. What if Jarek took them away?" Tinsley blurted out in panic before she could regain herself.

"It would be better to tell him the truth now, so you can sit and talk about it calmly. I know he may be angry at first, but I believed he'd come around." Rory muttered while patting Tinsley's back.

Tinsley separated from Rory in disbelief, "You knew, already?"

"Yes, I did." Rory nodded her head.

"But I don't think he'll give them to me, Jarek seems to have a girlfriend, what if he wants my triplets to have another mother, how can I accept that? But he's richer than me, so I'll lose in any lawsuit no matter what." Tinsley explained while shaking in fear, which made Rory sigh.

"What will you do?" She asked in concern while massaging Tinsley's trembling hand.

"I can't let him see the kids, once I'm done with the drama and cleaning of the William family, I think I'll leave Ryle," Tinsley explained, which made Rory nod.

"Even though I might lose my potential couple, I'll always support your choice," Rory explained, which made Tinsley nod.

A few days later, Rory and Tinsley found an elite school for the triplets to attend. The triplets was about to alight from the car when Tinsley stopped them.

"So, this is your first day of school in Ryle, you need to be what?"

"We need to be good, Mom." The triplets chimed, which made Tinsley nod her head.

Tinsley calmly turned toward Jason and stared at his blank face. She suddenly felt a headache creeping in, but she tried to hide it, "And Jason, you mustn't in any way hack your school or teacher's CCTV this time around." She warned.

"I know, Mom," Jason muttered nonchalantly because his little mind wasn't in the school's CCTV this time, it was J Empire's own.

"I pray so," Rory said with a burst of mischievous laughter that made Tinsley sigh at her.

"Then let's go."
