Flirting

Chapter 40 Flirting

Soon she branched to a restaurant and bought two lunch boxes, then she drove her car to Rory's company.

She walked out of the car but not before putting on her glass.

Tinsley's beautiful appearance sparked conversation, but she ignored them, and she was only allowed entry after it was confirmed by Rory that Rory knew Tinsley.

Tinsley was about to ride the elevator when she came across a handsome, masculine man who was about to ride the elevator also.

"Ladies, first." The man said and Tinsley nodded.

"Thank you." She replied and inputted the floor she was going to.

The man's eyes seem to light up after seeing Tinsley's input, "Top floor? Are you Rory's..." The man faked a cough. "I mean President Rory's friend?"

Tinsley squinted her eyes at the man bewaringly before replying, "Why?"

The man shrugged, "I figured out since she's the one who dominated that floor."

"No, I don't know her." Tinsley spat out and suddenly pulled his ties while batting her eyes seductively. "You're really handsome, can I have your number?" Tinsley flirted.

The man had a frown on his face and he asked, "Are you flirting with me?"

"It's obvious, or what does it look like?" Tinsley shrugged at him and batted her eyes at him innocently. "Don't you think I'm beautiful?" She continues.

"Of course you're beautiful, but I don't like ladies who throw themselves at men like this." He replied and pushed her away from him.

"Is that a decline? It hurts." Tinsley muttered from her side of the elevator. "Or do you want me to come at it again? I promise not to throw myself at you." She whispered with an innocent smile.

"Sorry, miss but I have someone I'm interested in." The man stated in a calm tone.

"Such a lucky woman," Tinsley said while smacking her lips together in irritation, but her gesture looked cute. "Who is she? Rory? Is it because she's rich? Let me tell you I have an identity bigger than her, and I'm richer." Tinsley bragged.

The man's lips twitched thinking that he had never met such a shameless woman before, but why does the elevator ride seem slow enough for him to accommodate her endless chatter?

"I can't find you in the top wealthiest woman's list." He replied to her with a snort.

"Ha." Tinsley flipped her hair seductively, but the man didn't even bat his eyes. "It turns out that's what you want. Should I just apply for..."

"Enough lady." The man said in a strict voice. "I have someone. Please respect my choice." The handsome man who couldn't take it anymore finally cautioned with displeasure.

"Rory, found a good choice this time. Better take care of her well, or else I'll kick your ball." Tinsley finally laughed loud and walked out of the door, leaving the man who was still stunned by everything that played out.

"Excuse me," the man called out and hurriedly followed her.

"What? You want to ask if I was being real or not? Guess!" Tinsley replied with a light smirk on her lips and began to walk toward Rory's office.

"You..."

"Tinsley!" Before the man could finish his words, a call from Rory interrupted their conversation.

"Tinsley, you didn't tell me you're coming?" Rory walked towards them but upon seeing the man, she blushed into a deep red.

Seeing Rory acting shy and unusual to herself, Tinsley immediately pulled her away.

"He's the one, right?" Tinsley chuckled at Rory's love struck behavior.

Rory nodded at her, but she soon pouted sadly, "I'm afraid that he has someone else..."

"He didn't."

"How'd you know?"

"I tested him."

"Huh."

"We met in the elevator..." Tinsley said and began to explain everything that happened during her ride in the elevator.

"Onyx has always been gentle. He must be angry at your actions for him to caution you." Rory explained.

"So his name is Onyx? He has such a beautiful name. Thankfully, you found someone good this time."

"So what's up with your shoot? And your sis? What have you been hiding from me? shoot."

"That damned Tinsley, I couldn't reach her at all," Lillee yelled after trying Tinsley's number but to no avail.

The security continued to scroll through his social media while occasionally laughing. Due to the nature of his job, he couldn't help but keep quiet.

Inwardly, he felt that this actress Lillee is stupid.

Since when had she been here that she was yet to be picked up?

If not, he doesn't want to violate the rule here. He'd have to tell Lillee that White Tigress wasn't in the building

"Mom, can you get a hold of Tinsley? I don't understand what that bitch is doing? Is she playing with me?" Lillee spat out her thoughts without remembering to add a filter because she was actually tired of being played with and holding her anger for that bitch.
