

《The Mysterious CEO》

186 Something wet and sticky...

Before, their boss could reply...

'Boom...'

"Boss..."

A large bomb blast went off in the adjacent room and dark fumes engulfed in the entire room. No one could see anything inside it.

Maybe there was an alarm for the girl that it was a time to wake up. In the pitch dark room where even the light of the moon and stars were halted by the window and curtains. The girl suddenly opened her twinkling eyes because of the sound of the bomb. Even though the sound insulation of the room was good, but not good enough against the sound of the bomb.

Again she found herself in an unfamiliar atmosphere, there was darkness in this room, but she felt warm here.

Where was she?

How did she end up here?

The girl started to think hard so that she could remember something about her current surroundings. She was immersed in her thoughts that she didn't remember that she had just heard the sound of the bomb blast outside the room.

Little by little...

She started recalling everything, starting from her adoption by the man to the end of being saved by the same man...

This time, neither she wanted to run away nor she wanted to stay here. If she would run away from here, she didn't know what kind of horrible life she would have ahead or if she would stay here, she didn't know what would that man do to her? She really had no clue what to do next. Life had become an unpredictable endless torture session for her!!!

She curled up and stayed here. She felt warm and secure here. It was okay if no one would come here to serve her water or food. She was longing for security and warm nothing more or less.

'Snap...'

'Snap...'

It seemed that the security and warmth for which she yearned, wasn't in her destiny yet. Hearing the sound of the bullets were coming from outside the room, made her shiver in a cold sweat. She covered herself with the blanket tightly.

'Snap...'

'Snap...'

Many bullet sounds and screaming voices of the men could be heard, but no one came inside the room.

'Snap...'

'Bang...'

'Bang...'

.
. .
. .
. .
. .
. .
. .
. .
. .

Who knew how much time had passed, the sound of the bullets stopped finally.

----

The warm sun rays spread throughout the sky after a long dark night, the birds were chirping and singing after seeing the warm rays which signaled a new day.

Although the sunlight had spread its warm rays to every other inch of creation, it didn't seem to reach inside specific villa as it was stopped by windows and doors.

There was dead silence in the villa, unlike the chaos that had happened last night. No one knew what exactly happened except those that were involved.

What was the outcome of the last night battle?

Who was able to save themselves and who wasn't?

...

When the sound of the bullets stopped, the girl went back to sleep for a time but again she was abruptly awoken from her peaceful sleep. She didn't want to wake up and leave this bed as she felt secure here, but she started feeling pain in her body because of the length of time lying on the bed and her stomach growled in protest.

After struggling for a while, the girl stepped out of the bed and took tiny steps towards the door. It seemed that she had slept for a long time that her body became numb as she was having difficulty in walking.

After a lot of effort, she finally reached near to the door. She raised her right hand towards the doorknob, but she was hesitating to open the door. After gathering a lot of courage, she turned the doorknob and opened the door.

'Pank...'

She slightly stuck out her head out in fear to see if someone who would try to hurt her then she would shut the door tightly. However, she didn't notice that the lock of the room was unlocked.

She looked outside for a while and found no one...

There was no one...

Was she alone in this villa?

Then what was all that noise from the last night?

She put one foot outside the room after mustering up a lot of courage, there was darkness. Only faint light came from outside which was enough to see the surroundings.

She continued to move forward, she took every step carefully and kept on looking at her surroundings before continuing further. If she saw a tiny bit of a threat, then she would dash back into the room and lock the door!

After suffering for so long, she didn't have trust in anyone. If she could have a choice, she would have ran away into the forest where there was no human beings. If she got the chance, maybe she would definitely do that.

She continued further, but suddenly, she stopped!!!

The lights were not so bright, so she couldn't see what it was but she felt something wet and sticky under her feet. She tried to look at what exactly it was but she couldn't see it clearly enough.

She looked up and saw that this sticky thing was coming from the room adjacent to the room from where she came out.

She hesitated for a while and then decided to go over there. She took every step carefully and slowly, as soon as she was getting close to the room, she smelled something disgusting. She couldn't figure it out... what the heck was that?

The door was slightly opened, she tried to look inside but to no avail. In the end, she became impatient and she raised her hand to push the door.

As soon as she opened the door, an indescribable scene came in front of her sight, which spread down the cold chill in her spinal cord. Unbeknownst to her she started shivering!!!