

Triplets On SM 1561

Chapter 1561-allard and asked curiously, "How come it's gotten smaller?"

Mr. Ballard walked over to take a look. He then smiled and explained, "That's because this Venomous Insect relies on human flesh to survive. Now that it's removed from the human body, it's normal for it to become smaller."

"Looks like it's losing weight quite quickly."

As she said those words, Molly used a set of tweezers to fiddle with the Venomous Insect.

This gave Edmund the goosebumps and he glared at Molly as if he had seen a ghost.

'She's so pretty, but I've never expected her to have such disgusting interests as well. How can she have the same reaction as Logan? How can she not have any reactions when faced with something so disgusting? That's just sick!' Edmund exclaimed inwardly.

Guessing what he was thinking, Mr. Ballard patted Edmund's shoulder and said with a smile, "Edmund, it's something that you'll rarely see. Using it as research might be able to improve the current medical technology by a lot."

Edmund locked gazes with Mr. Ballard's expectant eyes and laughed awkwardly. "You're right, Mr. Ballard. I was being a little too shallow."

With that said, Molly and Logan couldn't help but laugh.

Logan then said, "Molly, do you want to see my research data?"

Molly's eyes lit up and she quickly nodded her head. "Of course, I want to take a look."

She had always been interested in such things.

Seeing that Molly couldn't wait, Logan couldn't help but let out a helpless smile and went to fetch the report.

"This is the data that Edmund and I have obtained so far."

Logan handed the report to Molly.

The latter took the report and looked at the data carefully.

There was no expression on her face. She seemed to be very serious.

Molly only raised her head after she had finished looking at the data. She said with a frown, "Looks like this Venomous Insect is way more toxic than we thought."

"How can something so disgusting not be toxic?" Edmund pursed his lips.

Molly glanced at him and her eyes darkened. "Eaton's just a madman. He really doesn't care about anything!"

If it weren't for that madman, neither she nor Mr. Ballard would have come in contact with Venomous Insects for the whole of their lives.

At the mention of Eaton, the smile on Mr. Ballard's face disappeared. He then asked in a deep voice, "Have you found him?"

Molly had told him about Eaton's escape before. Two days had passed and the island was only so big. It was unlikely that they couldn't find Eaton.

“No.” Molly shook her head. A worried look appeared slowly on her face. Her grip tightened on the report.

Whenever she thought of the fact that Eaton wasn't found yet, she would become worried. She was really worried that Eaton was going to ruin her plans.

“Don't worry. We should have faith in Sean.” Mr. Ballard tried to comfort Molly.

Edmund also nodded in agreement. “That's right. Mr. Anderson can save Logan, so Eaton will be no trouble at all for him.”

After hearing those words, Molly felt warm deep down. She then finally smiled.

“Yes, I know.”

The most important thing for Molly at the moment was to stabilize Kara's health status and take the Venomous Insect out to cure Sean.

With that thought in mind, she calmed down and went back to her own research lab with Mr. Ballard to continue making the medicine.

During the night, Sean came to the research laboratory to pick Molly up as usual.

The street lamps on both sides of the road were lit up. Molly sat in the passenger seat and saw that there was a car behind them as she looked at the rearview mirror with the corners of her eyes.

At first, she didn't really care about it, but after taking two turns, the car was still behind them. This caused Molly to feel that something was wrong.

‘Why do I feel that we're being followed?’ wondered Molly.

Sean noticed her strange behavior and asked, "What's wrong?"

Chapter 1562-The sudden sound made Molly come back to her senses. She turned and locked gazes with Sean's caring eyes. Her lips curved into a smile and said, "Nothing. It's probably because I'm too worn out, so I feel a little ill at ease."

"Get some rest when we get back. Don't overthink things." Sean caressed her hair.

"Okay." Molly nodded.

She glanced at the rearview mirror and realized that the car behind them had already disappeared, so she breathed a sigh of relief.

Molly felt that she was indeed a little overreacting.

Sean saw the change in Molly's facial expression. Something flashed in his dark eyes.

During the night, when Molly and the children had fallen asleep, Sean got out of bed and walked downstairs.

He then called for Tony and gave him some orders before going back upstairs to rest.

On the morning of the next day, Molly woke up. As soon as she opened her eyes, she saw Sean sitting on the edge of the bed.

She couldn't help but smile. She sat up and asked, "How come you haven't gone downstairs yet?"

"I'm waiting for you."

Sean reached out and caressed Molly's hair. He looked at her with his passionate eyes. "Don't go to the research laboratory today."

“How come?” Molly was a little taken aback.

That was when Sean smiled and said in a gentle voice, “I’ll take you somewhere.”

“Where?”

“You’ll know when we get there.”

Seeing that Sean was not telling her, Molly pouted her lips sulkily. “I’m not getting up until you tell me!”

“Oh?” Sean cocked his brows. “Then I’ll take the children there and you can stay at home.”

With that said, Sean pretended to get up and leave.

Seeing this, Molly quickly grabbed him. “I’ll get up right now.”

Sean smiled and looked at Molly dotingly. “Alright, I’ll wait for you.”

The family had breakfast and then went out.

The car drove steadily on the road and the three children sat in the back obediently. Molly looked at the view outside the window which was flashing by.

She then suddenly frowned and turned to look at Sean. “Isn’t this the way to the seaside?”

“Yes.” Sean’s lips curved into a smile.

“You’re not taking us to the seaside to have fun, are you?” asked Molly.

“You’ll know when we get there.”

Sean was still telling Molly nothing.

“So childish,” Molly mumbled.

She didn’t expect that a person as domineering and authoritative as him, would actually enjoy playing such childish games.

Sean heard those words and couldn’t help but smile even more.

About 20 minutes later, the car parked outside a villa.

“This is...”

Molly got out of the car and looked at the villa in front of her.

“This place is closer to our underground research base.”

Sean walked over and wrapped his arms around Molly’s shoulders.

Molly turned and locked gazes with him. “So... are you going to change the place we live in?”

Sean nodded with a smile and then called the three children to head inside the villa together.

The villa’s renovation was simple and grand. There was everything that they needed and the house had been cleaned thoroughly.

“Daddy, I like it here.”

“Me too!”

The three children headed straight to the French windows as soon as they walked into the house.

Molly followed them over and only then did she realize she could see the ocean on the other side of the house.

Standing on the balcony, she could enjoy the great view.

Claudia’s eyes were flashing and couldn’t wait to go on her tiptoes to take a look.

Molly liked this place as well.

She especially liked the blue ocean surface which was shining under the sun.

There was a cool breeze as well. Sitting here in the evening with a little beer and listening to the sound of the waves would definitely be an enjoyment.

Molly’s lips curved into a smile as she turned around and walked up to the man.

“I like it here as well.”

Sean wrapped his arms around her waist and said softly, “I’m glad you like it.”

Chapter 1563-After moving home, Molly packed her room simply before going to the underground research base.

However, just as she arrived at the store above the underground research base, she suddenly felt that someone was watching her from behind.

Molly stopped walking, frowned and turned to look back.

There weren't many people on the streets and nothing seemed out of place.

Molly wondered if it was just her imagination.

However, she kept getting the feeling that something wasn't right.

She looked around her and only walked into the store when she saw that nothing was wrong.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the street, a person walked out from behind the billboard. It was Eaton.

He wore a cap, face mask and sunglasses. He was completely disguised so that no one could see his face.

At that moment, his dark eyes were locked in the direction that Molly had just gone in.

The store wasn't big and even looked a little old. From the looks of the store, it wasn't somewhere special.

In the past, he had gone in before and it was just a normal store.

However, whenever Molly went inside, she would spend a whole day in there.

Eaton knew that there had to be something special about the store.

He guessed that this was the place where Kara was kept hidden.

With that thought in mind, a sneer appeared on Eaton's face. His lips parted and he mumbled, "Molly, you want to save Sean, but you have to get my permission first!"

Thinking back to the torture he had suffered recently, his heart was filled with hatred.

'Molly, I'll pay Sean back the pain that I've suffered tenfold!' Eaton exclaimed inwardly.

Eaton's eyes were dark and as he took one last look at the store. He then turned and left.

Molly walked into the research lab and her eyelids began jumping.

She subconsciously wanted to raise her hand to press down on her eyelid.

A bad feeling arose in her heart.

Mr. Ballard saw the state Molly was in and asked with concern, "Hey, Molly, why are you pressing down on your eye?"

Molly lowered her hand and blinked her eyes. "Nothing. It's just that my right eyelid just suddenly started jumping. I don't know why."

Mr. Ballard smiled when he heard those words. "You're not superstitious, are you?"

Molly looked at him but didn't say anything.

"I know you've been under a lot of pressure lately. It's probably because you haven't had a good night's rest. Don't be so worried...- Mr. Ballard tried comforting Molly for a while and then gave her something to do to keep her distracted.

Molly hoped that the jumping of her eyelid was because she didn't sleep well as well.

However, for the next few days, her right eyelid kept on jumping. It was as if her eyelid had gone out of control.

The unease she was feeling grew stronger and stronger.

"How come you've been so uneasy recently? What's wrong?" asked Sean as he spotted something was wrong with Molly.

"Nothing. I just keep getting the feeling that something bad was about to happen," replied Molly.

Sean raised his hand to gently massage Molly's temples." It's probably because you haven't had a good night's rest.

You've been too busy lately."

"Yeah, probably." Molly nodded.

Sean pinched her nose and smiled dotingly. "Since you haven't had a good night's rest, then get some rest for the next couple of days and don't wear yourself too much."

Molly thought about it and felt that Sean had a point. She couldn't focus on her job, so she might as well get some time off.

"Alright, I'll do as you say."

With that, Molly gave Mr. Ballard a call and told him about her situation.

The latter didn't have anything against her decision. He even told her to rest well.

"Don't overthink things and don't put yourself under so much pressure. Since I'm here, then I'll definitely help you deal with the Venomous Insect within Sean's body."

After hearing those words, Molly felt warm inside. The unease that she had been feeling for the past few days dissipated a little as well.

Chapter 1564-During the two days of rest at home, Molly spent time with the three kids.

Occasionally, she asked if Eaton had been found.

As long as Eaton was not found, Molly could not feel at ease.

"We'll find him soon."

Sean answered, his eyes gleaming coldly.

Molly believed in him and Tony's abilities.

In the evening, she received good news.

"Molly, Kara is getting better. It's time to transfer Venomous Insect."

Mr. Ballard smiled with relief on the other end of the phone.

Molly was excited. "Then I'll go to the research laboratory tomorrow."

"OK."

After hanging up the phone, she couldn't wait to tell Sean the news.

At that moment, Sean was washing up in the bathroom.

For the past few days, he had been experiencing burning sensations in his heart.

Yet Sean did not want Molly to worry, so he didn't mention it.

"Sean."

When Molly saw that he hadn't come out after so long, she pushed the door open.

Sean turned his head.

Their eyes met.

For a moment, Sean's eyes were cold and unfamiliar.

It was as if he didn't know Molly anymore.

But the next second, Sean became gentle again.

Molly froze in place and had a bad feeling.

She thought, 'It was not my illusion just now, right?' Molly's hands at her sides were unconsciously clenched, and her face turned gloomy. She wondered if Sean had been affected by Venomous Insect.

"What's wrong?"

Sean noticed her strangeness. He frowned slightly and asked in a soft voice.

Molly was pulled back to the present. Her beautiful eyes stared at him closely as she asked tentatively and cautiously, "Sean, did you feel any discomfort just now? Or did you find me unfamiliar?"

With her heart in her throat, Molly nervously waited for his answer.

"No."

Sean shook his head and smiled, "You're my wife. How could I find you unfamiliar?"

"But..." Molly bit her lip, sure that she did not hallucinate just now.

Sean knew she was anxious again.

He wrapped his arms around her resignedly and gently reassured her, "I know you're afraid I'll be affected by Venomous Insect, but don't worry. I won't forget you.

"You don't believe me anymore?"

He looked down straight into her eyes full of trepidation.

Molly blurted out, "Of course, I believe you. It's just that..."

"Now, now, don't overthink it." Sean changed the subject and asked, "Why did you come to me?"

When he mentioned it, Molly remembered that she had forgotten something very important. She hurriedly held his hand, saying in a somewhat excited tone, "Mr. Ballard said that Kara was getting better and that it was time to transfer Venomous Insect."

At that, Sean was slightly surprised. At the same time, he felt relieved.

He smiled and said, "That's really good news. So..."

Gently pinching her nose, he continued, "You don't have to worry anymore. I'll be treated tomorrow."

Molly said, "Yeah."

However, she couldn't feel at ease until the Venomous Insect in his body was lured out.

After washing up, Sean pulled Molly into bed and held her in his arms quietly.

"What's up?" Molly was keenly aware that something was wrong with him.

Sean smiled and said gently, "I just want to hug you."

Chapter 1565-As she listened to the steady thumping of his heartbeat, the crisp freshness of his breath lingered at the tip of her nose. Molly's restless heart was temporarily calmed.

Taking a deep breath, she said, "Once the venomous insect in your body is removed, we'll return to the Grandset."

She yearned to leave the island and its troubles behind, to live a peaceful and quiet life with her family.

Sean lowered his head and kissed her hair, murmuring, 'Til do as you wish."

His hot breath was sprayed on her neck, making her heart skip a beat.

She rolled over and hugged his waist tightly, their bodies pressed close together.

“Sleep and get refreshed,” Sean said as he gazed down at her.

“Okay,” she replied with a sweet smile before closing her eyes.

She didn’t see the dim light that flickered in his eyes.

His hand tightened around her as he stared at her face unblinkingly, as if trying to imprint her image in his heart.

The night grew deeper.

The once-bustling island fell silent, shrouded in eerie darkness.

Outside the old storefront of the Shepard family’s underground research lab, a figure wearing a cap appeared.

Eaton stood before the store, cautiously surveying his surroundings.

For days he had been secretly observing the store.

He had figured out that it was just a front for something else.

It was a cover.

As for what was behind the scene...

Every time Molly entered, she would spend an entire day inside.

Eaton suspected that there were underground research rooms within.

Both as doctors, they were familiar with this kind of thing.

The old neighborhood was dead quiet.

At night, it was like a ghost town with no surveillance around.

After pausing for a moment, Eaton quietly pried open the lock and slipped into the store.

He was so bold because he had confirmed that no one was inside.

Earlier, an old man and two young men had quietly left.

These were all people related to Molly.

Eaton knew that this was his chance.

Soon, he looked around in the light of the street lamp shining in from the window.

The furnishings were quite old.

There was nothing other than the mottled walls and the broken cabinets.

Eaton strolled around but found nothing.

He couldn't help but be a little suspicious.

Had he been wrong?

But this place didn't seem like one could stay peacefully for a day.

Maybe there was a secret chamber.

With this thought in mind, he began to feel along the walls with his hands.

He pressed and knocked about.

Ten minutes later, near a cupboard, he made a discovery.

The ornaments of that spot were odd.

A flash of joy crossed Eaton's eyes.

He subconsciously touched a vase that was set up on the cabinet.

It sagged in the next second.

Then, a whole wall next to it slowly parted from the middle, revealing a dark stairway.

Eaton was overjoyed.

He had been right. There was really something inside this place.

Without hesitation, he walked straight in.

Not long after, the wall closed again.

And silence returned to the store.

Eaton didn't care. Following the passage, he slowly walked down.

Soon, he got a full view of the basement.

It was completely different from the dilapidated store above.

Inside, it was decorated according to the standards of an institute with medical equipment and cabinets filled with various drugs. It was no less impressive than a research room at the base.

Chapter 1566-Eaton was pretty shocked because he didn't expect that someone would dare to build such a research laboratory here!

'That guy really has a lot of guts!' But then he felt a little weird, 'Why are there so few defenses?' He had prepared a lot outside in advance, but since he came in, he had not heard any sound yet.

The thing went a little too well, so he got a little uneasy.

On second thoughts, Eaton guessed it was because this research laboratory was so hidden that too many defenses were unnecessary.

Thinking of this, Eaton gradually became calm and then began to walk into this place.

He guessed that Kara should be in here.

However, he still didn't see anyone after he looked for several research labs and consultation rooms!

Eaton's heart sank, 'Am I wrong? Kara is not here at all?' Just as he was frowning, there was a slight cough in the room at the end of the corridor.

'It's Kara!' Eaton cheered up, 'God is still on my side!' Eaton smiled complacently and quickened his pace to go to that room.

After a while, he stood outside that room and looked through the glass doors.

Under the dim light, a person was lying on the bed.

Although he could not see that person's face, he could recognize it was Kara at a glance from that person's back.

Now his heart was filled with complacency.

Even if Molly and Sean had hidden Kara in such a place, he still found Kara.

At the thought that Sean and Molly would be painful soon, Eaton couldn't wait to open the door.

His movement was very light, and the sound of his pace was also as low as possible.

A moment later, he came to the bed, looked down at the woman, and took out a syringe contained with anesthetic from his pocket.

Eaton looked at the needle and smiled coldly. Then he raised his hand, pulled the woman's arm, and was going to inject the medicine into her vessels.

The moment the needle just touched her skin, she suddenly turned around and clasped Eaton's wrist quickly.

"You..." Eaton was surprised and looked at the woman on the bed.

It was then that he saw the woman's face clearly.

It was not Kara at all! It was Alkaid!

Eaton reacted quickly and subconsciously wanted to break free.

However, Alkaid reacted faster than him. She lifted her leg and kneed into his abdomen.

It happened so fast that Eaton had no time to react at all.

The pain hit on his abdomen was so intense that he couldn't even hold the syringe. A stream of sour water poured up from his stomach, and his body slammed into the cabinet behind him like a raggedy doll.

Alkaid sat up and scoffed at Eaton, "I've been waiting for you for a long time. I'm almost asleep. You are so slow!"

Now Eaton knew he was in a trap.

The reason why he could come in here so smoothly was not that this research laboratory was hidden or other reasons but because they were waiting to catch him!

He walked into their trap himself!

In such a bad situation, Eaton got up quickly and wanted to run away.

Seeing this scene, Alkaid showed a somewhat contemptuous and sarcastic face, "I accidentally let you run once, but do you think I will let you run again?"

Then she suddenly raised her voice and shouted, "Alioth, he is here!"

Chapter 1567-Snap!

The room was brightly lit.

Eaton subconsciously raised his hand to his forehead, and when he got used to the light, he looked up.

He saw Alioth, who had been guarding him, slowly walk in.

At that moment, Eaton's face changed dramatically.

The painful memories of being tortured came into his mind in an instant.

Eaton uncontrollably stepped back.

Alkaid immediately came up behind him.

In front of Eaton was Alioth.

Eaton was cornered.

Alioth stared at him with an expressionless face. "We meet again, Eaton." Alioth thought, 'Just a moment of negligence allowed Eaton to escape.

But... did he think he could escape and rest easy?

'In the end, he handed himself over.1 Alioth looked at Eaton with a hint of disdain in his eyes.

'Such a trash wants to play against Master?' Dream on!' Eaton clenched his fists, his eyes wide open, his heart full of resentment.

He thought he finally found Kara.

He thought he could finally get back at Sean and make Molly suffer.

All of this turned out to be his wishful thinking...

Seeing his bitterness, Alkaid laughed and said unhurriedly, "It took us a lot of effort to invite you here."

Ever since Eaton escaped, they had been searching for him constantly, but after all, it was in the territory of the Martial Art Union, so they didn't dare to look for Eaton too blatantly.

"You think there's no defense here. In fact..."

Speaking of which, Alkaid raised his eyebrows. "It has long been optimized by Master, especially above the store."

"It looks dilapidated, yet it has been installed with an advanced intrusion defense system. Strangers will be identified when approaching, and even several nearby stores are being monitored."

Listening to Alkaid's words, Eaton gnashed his teeth.

No wonder everything went so smoothly.

"By the way."

Alkaid suddenly thought of something. He blinked at Eaton with a friendly face.

“These days, you’ve been following and watching Madam. Master has long noticed it.”

The more Alkaid said, the more he admired Sean, feeling everything was in Sean’s grasp.

“Sean!”

Eaton suddenly became emotional, shouting, “Come out! Don’t think you can solve Venomous Insect just because you captured me.”

“Shut up.”

Alioth frowned, his face full of impatience. “You’re not qualified to see Master.”

Then he twisted his neck. “Go to hell.”

Alkaid and Alioth approached Eaton at the same time.

The latter suddenly laughed out loud, and his eyes widened.

“Do you guys think I’m that stupid?”

Alkaid and Alioth looked at each other. Both of them frowned.

“I should be grateful that Sean took me so seriously and made such an elaborate plan against me.”

Eaton looked around and shook his head with a tsk. “What a pity! It’s such a nice place.”

A bad feeling came over Alkaid and Alioth.

They both knew very well that Eaton was an extremely crazy person. Fearing Eaton might do something dangerous, the two exchanged a look and lunged at him.

Just as Eaton was pushed to the ground, he pressed a button on his watch.

This action was caught by Alkaid's eyes.

"Alioth, the watch on his wrist!" she shouted.

Alioth immediately looked at Eaton's wrist, and when he saw the dial was flashing red, he frowned and grabbed the watch.

Chapter 1568-ton's hair with one hand and slammed him onto the ground.

With his other hand, he held up the watch and demanded answers.

"Heh..."

Eaton cackled maniacally, his face twisted with madness. "It's a locator!"

A locator!

With his words, both Alioth and Alkaid changed colors.

"I saw him press the button on it," Alkaid said.

Alioth immediately smashed the watch onto the ground.

It shattered, and the broken pieces almost darted into Eaton's eyes.

Eaton looked at the broken watch without turning a hair. Instead, he laughed out loud. "You think breaking the watch will save you?"

"This locator is connected to the base. I know that the recent chaos in the base was related to you."

The island had always been peaceful, but since Sean, the storm had been constant.

This must have something to do with him.

"This is tit for tat! Soon, the people from the base will come looking for you!"

With that, he laughed again.

Alioth's eyes narrowed with hostility.

Without warning, he snapped Eaton's arm like a twig.

"Ah!"

The man screamed in agony, his body writhing in pain.

"You're too noisy!"

Alkaid shouted before delivering a swift blow to the back of Eaton's neck.

The man was knocked out.

"What now? Do you think he's telling the truth?" asked Alkaid.

Alioth rose to his feet. "We can't take any chances. Tie him up. I'll go get Mr.

Ballard and others."

With that, he strode outside.

Mr. Ballard and others were sound asleep in their treatment rooms.

The sudden knock on the door jolted them awake.

They had never left the underground research institute the whole time.

Those people Eaton had seen were actually Sean's men in disguise.

"What's wrong?"

Edmund rubbed his bleary eyes and sat up.

In the adjacent room, Logan sprang out of bed and flung open the door, only to find Alioth standing there. He asked confusedly, "What's going on?"

"We need to get out of this place. People from the base are onto us."

Alioth briefly explained the situation.

"Get out of here? The base?"

Logan's brow furrowed. "What the hell is going on here?"

“Mr. Ballard, I don’t have time to explain. I’ll tell you everything after we get to a safe place.”

If the situation weren’t serious, Alioth wouldn’t have urged them to evacuate in such a hurry.

Without another word, Logan went back inside his room and started packing.

The old man came up.

Knowing about tonight’s operation, he hadn’t been deep in sleep. He just didn’t expect there would be a change in the situation.

The situation was severe, and everyone immediately became alert. They quickly packed up the important materials and medicines.

At the same time, the head of the research base, Selseey, received a report from his subordinates.

“Someone pressed the locator. There should be something going on.”

Selseey immediately headed to the surveillance room.

He studied the map of the island on the big screen and saw a red dot blinking incessantly on the side of the island.

He went over for a closer look and recognized it as an old street with few residents.

Every key member of the base was given a device.

It looked like a watch, while in fact, it was a locator.

Narrowing his eyes, Selseey instructed his men in a loud voice, "Send people over to investigate and report on any abnormal activities."

"Yes, sir!"

The subordinates hurried off on their mission.

Soon, they made it to the spot.

Chapter 1569-After they evacuated from the underground lab, Alioth set fire to the place.

When the security guards from the base arrived at the place, it was burning wildly. They couldn't get close to the place.

Boom!

A violent explosion rang out in the darkness.

In the beach house, which was far away from the lab, Molly was sleeping.

Abruptly, she was awakened by the explosion. She reached for Sean, but found that he was not there.

She hurriedly sat up and looked around for Sean.

After a few minutes, she saw him standing in front of the window. There was dim light coming in through the floor-to- ceiling window, and Sean was looking out the window, his back to her.

"Sean." Molly walked over to him.

Hearing Molly's voice, Sean turned his head. Seeing her awake, he frowned and asked softly, "You were awakened by the sound?"

"Yeah. What's going on?" Molly looked out the window as she asked.

Her eyes widened in shock when she saw the fire in the distance and the night sky was lit up. After a few seconds, she came back to her senses and asked, "What's... What's going on?"

Then she realized the fire was in the direction where the underground laboratory was located. Her face immediately changed color, and her voice tensed up.

"Sean, what happened in the lab?"

Sean put his arm around her shoulders and nodded gently.

'What's going on?' Molly was terrified. She grabbed his arm and asked anxiously, "How's Mr.

Ballard? Is he all right? I have to go over and check on them."

Anxiously, she turned around and was about to go out.

"Don't worry." Sean stopped her and reassured her, "They've left the lab.

They're all right."

"Really?" Molly doubted. She was in a panic.

"Yes."

After a few seconds, Molly calmed down. She sensed that something was wrong. She stared at Sean and asked, 'What's going on? Are you hiding something from me?'

In response to her question, Sean sighed softly and told her the plan.

After hearing the plan, Molly frowned. "No, you're lying. Why would you blow up the lab if they just wanted to capture Eaton?"

"Half an hour ago, Alioth called and said Eaton contacted someone at the base."

"I see." Molly breathed a sigh of relief. "As long as everyone's okay."

However, the next second, she frowned again and gave a worried look, "It's not good if the base knows the lab."

The Shepard family had built the lab so secretly that the base would not find it.

But now Eaton had exposed the lab.

Molly was really worried that if the base found out about Selon, it would be a problem.

However, Sean was calm. He put his arm around her shoulders and reassured her, "That won't happen."

Molly was confused. Just as she was about to ask him why, there was a knock on the door.

Then Tony's voice came on.

"Sir, Mr. Ballard is here with the others."

Molly was excited to hear that Mr. Ballard was there. She hurriedly went to change her clothes.

Sean couldn't help but smile. He had a doting look in his eyes.

Edmund put the medicines from the lab carefully on the floor and breathed a long sigh of relief. He felt scared thinking about the violent explosion on his way back.

Chapter 1570-“When will these bad days come to an end?” Edmund could not help howling.

Logan glanced at him and said, “Be patient for a while. Soon we will leave this island.”

He was not comforting Edmund but telling the truth.

They both knew Sean's plan and believed that Sean was strong enough to get them out of here.

Edmund sighed, “I hope we can leave sooner.”

Compared with Logan and Edmund, Mr. Ballard was very calm. He unhurriedly sorted out the medicines and papers.

Logan and Edmund immediately joined Mr. Ballard.

At this time, Molly hurried downstairs.

When she saw that they were all safe, she breathed a sigh of relief.

“Mr. Ballard,” Molly walked over with wet and red eyes.

Knowing that she was worried about them, Mr. Ballard smiled gently, “Silly girl, don't cry. We are all fine.”

After looking him up and down carefully, Molly finally made sure that he was indeed all right. Then she turned to look at Logan and Edmund, “Are you two hurt or feel Sean looked at Logan and slowly said, “Don’t worry. We won’t get into trouble.”

“We believe in you,” Edmund raised his eyebrows at Sean and patted his own chest to show that he had considerable trust in Sean.

“You have said so, then there must be no trouble,” Logan was also relieved.

He looked at the medicines he had brought out and continued, “Uncle Jordan, you can have a rest. Let me and Edmund sort these medicines out.”

Mr. Ballard nodded, “OK, I am indeed tired. They are for you to sort out.”

After watching Mr. Ballard go upstairs, Molly came to help them.

It was almost one o’clock in the morning when they finished this matter. Then they went back to their rooms to have a rest.

On the other side, Selseey waited until dawn before his men hurried back to report the current situation.

“By the time we got there, that place was on fire. After the fire was put out, we could only find some wreckage of medicines and medical instruments in the ash.”

“What do you mean?” Selseey frowned and realized that his subordinate was saying something deeper.

His man trembled and said, “We suspect that there may be a secret research laboratory under that place.”
