

Triplets On SM 511

Chapter 511-Grandpa Dave raised his hand and softly patted the back of Molly's hand again. He sounded earnest as he told Molly with a smile," Time flies like an arrow. The journey of life is very long, and you'll meet a lot of people. Some of them are not going to stay in your life, but some of them could be very important to you and those are the ones that you have to treasure.

"Don't miss out on any opportunity in your life and regret it in the future. There's no turning back once it's over..." Grandpa Dave said softly, but the empty living room suddenly felt lonesome.

The atmosphere became tense before Molly and Grandpa Dave knew it.

However, some things never change, but people do.

Grandpa Dave started to feel sleepy. Molly watched him go back to his room after chatting with him for a while.

Then, she went to the backyard alone, and she sat there for a very long time.

Her surrounding was silent, but her mind was so noisy, that it felt like a bustling city in the daytime.

The next morning, Sean received a message from the police. He scanned it from top to bottom, and he put his phone away.

In short, the police told him that they had completed their investigation regarding the kidnapping.

After some verification, they found out that Michael had nothing to do with the case, and there was another person working for him who plotted everything. That person was already arrested, and Michael was freed.

He knew that was going to happen.

He knew exactly that Michael would make his employee take the fall for him.

However, he just did not expect that Michael would be released so soon.

'He's not going to learn his lesson in such a short time.

'I'm afraid that he's going to give me trouble again in the future.' Sean was feeling a little unhappy, and he looked upset. Suddenly, he lifted his brow and told Tony, "The police told me that Michael was released. Send him a notice and tell him to fill the financial gap as soon as possible, otherwise, I'm still going to revoke his authority and send my legal representative to seize his private properties. And, I'll also tell the bank to freeze his account.

He continued to speak after saying that.

"You have my authority to approve every necessary document and paperwork.

Just make it quick."

Tony memorized everything he said, and he was shocked.

'How could Michael be released so soon?' However, he could already guess the reason shortly after.

There were only a few approaches to be taken by the rich to get things done. He had been working for Sean for so long, and he knew exactly the way they would do things.

'But, Boss wants to pin Michael down and make him suffer what he deserves.

He is not going to let Michael go unpunished just because he had somebody else to take the fall for him.' Tony thought to himself. He took the keys and left the house.

Then, he drove out alone and went to take care of everything that Sean ordered him to do.

Michael was not feeling very happy after regaining his freedom.

He even had this thought.

'I'd rather be in there!' His reputation and name were ruined because of what happened.

People who went to prison would be despised and treated differently no matter what.

It was just simply difficult for him to thrive and return to his initial social status again.

Michael sat in the study room, and he looked at the familiar surroundings. Yet, all he felt was irritation.

Besides, he knew that Sean would never let him get away with that financial issue he was facing!

However, he still had to take care of the things that almost completely ruined his reputation.

'...What a rat.

'I'm going to get you back!' Michael would feel very annoyed whenever he thought about Sean now. He walked back and forth in his study room while crossing his arms.

Suddenly, his phone vibrated in his pocket.

He took out his phone impatiently before looking at it. He did not expect to see his father's name appearing on his phone as he froze in place.

☎ ☎ ☎ ☎ Com

"Come over now." That was all Mr. Anderson Sr. before hanging up.

He was still haunted by the time Mr. Anderson Sr. went off in the Anderson Residence.

He made his way to the Anderson Residence immediately without hesitating.

On his way there, Michael could feel his heart constantly pounding like a drum. He felt very uneasy.

“How could you do things like that and even got yourself locked up?! You’re such an embarrassment to our family!

“You were given the authority to run the company, yet you messed it up anyway! Just tell me what you’re actually capable of!” Mr. Anderson Sr. told him to go to the study room before scolding him.

‘He’s my biological son, after all. why isn’t he like me at all?’ Michael stood at the side with his head down. He did not dare to say anything as fear flooded through his being.

Mr. Anderson Sr. glared at him and angrily said, “I know what you’re up to. You better behave yourself now that you’re out. stop planning on doing anything bad. I’m not going to go easy on you if I found out that you disobeyed me!”

No one knew a son better than the father himself.

He did not only warn Michael because he wanted Michael to repent. But, more importantly, he knew exactly what his grandson, Sean, would do.

He knew that Michael would be up to something bad after getting out, and Sean would be on his guard too.

If Michael would not stop being an ignorant fool and stop whatever he was doing, he would just be digging his own grave!

Mr. Anderson Sr. knew that there was no doubt that Sean would destroy Michael in every way and leave Michael absolutely no chance to turn his life around.

Michael did not dare to go against his own father as he nodded immediately.

Mr. Anderson Sr. did not want to waste any more time on Michael. He scoffed and told Michael to leave. However, he hoped that Michael would take his words seriously and not do anything foolish to get himself in trouble.

Michael left the Anderson Residence.

Michael got a call from his assistant right after he stepped outside. As expected, Sean just would not get off his back, and Sean threatened him with the financial gap he was supposed to take care of again.

However, he could not help but feel a flicker of anger thrumming through his veins when he heard it personally.

'I'm clearly his elder, yet he just wouldn't stop threatening me and show me some respect! He doesn't treat me as his uncle at all!' Besides, he just got out!

Michael understood it. Even though he was not locked up anymore, Sean still had no plans in letting him off the hook.

Molly spent two days resting at home, and she returned to the research institute right after she had recovered.

She did not want to tire herself so much either, but the project she was working on did not allow her to delay any longer.

Besides, she was the head of the research, and she had to be responsible.

She walked into the corridor and passed by the trash can. she was still fearful of what happened.

Molly immediately forced herself to forget about it. 'It's over anyway, why can't I just let things go?' Molly walked toward the lab while having that thought in mind.

Everyone thought that Molly was on leave because she was sick.

So, a lot of the workers there approached her to ask about her health.

She saw Queenie as soon as she stepped into the lab.

Her reaction was... rather special.

"What's wrong?" Molly asked her directly, "Can I help you?"

Queenie's heart skipped a beat, she put away the surprised look on her face and shook her head.

'Why is she here?

'Wasn't she kidnapped? why does she look like nothing happened to her?

'Those people looked like the real deal, why is Molly still standing here?' Queenie pretended to be calm, she walked to a table against the wall and hid behind a big machine.

Chapter 513-Queenie's head was filled with confused thoughts.

Suddenly, she realized something.

'No way!

'I can't let anyone know that I acted like nothing happened after I found out that Molly was getting kidnapped!

'It's not going to turn out well!' Queenie was worried that everybody else would criticize her. Even though Molly was fine, she was afraid that she would be looked at differently.

She would have it even worse if something bad had really happened to Molly.

Queenie put all those thoughts behind her and erased them, she warned herself to forget about them completely.

Benjamin got excited when he saw Molly coming back. He went to her and asked, "How are you?

Are you feeling better now?"

Molly stared at Queenie for a few seconds, she stopped looking at her after not noticing anything strange. Then, she answered Benjamin, "I'm fine now. Don't worry."

Benjamin checked Molly out from head to toe, looking serious. He was only relieved after seeing that there was nothing wrong with her. "I'm glad to hear that."

They figured that they were supposed to be working at this hour, so they went on to do their job after that.

Molly got right into researching, looking meticulous. She went back to her busy life again.

However, she felt very happy.

She felt really happy that she could live peacefully like that.

At noontime, Benjamin went to look for Molly again after everybody else in the lab went for lunch.

He looked very handsome and graceful. He had a pair of slanted eyes, and he was very classy. He would always get the attention of the opposite sex wherever he went.

He thought about a lot of things during these two days.

'Sean is not capable enough to keep Molly safe, yet he'd always put her in danger.

'He was clearly the reason why those people went after Molly. How could he let Molly be the scapegoat?

'Molly almost lost her life!

'However, Sean was still sitting on his chair peacefully without a scratch.' Benjamin was very angry. Then, he thought about something else. He hoped that Molly could get her mind straight in these two days and figure out who was the man that could really take care of her and protect her.

This thought flooded his whole head as soon as he began thinking about that.

Especially the moment he saw Molly, his quiet heart started beating uncontrollably again.

The elegant and glacial face appeared before his eyes once more as he asked expectantly, "Molly, you only had to go through those things because you don't have a person to protect you. So, would you consider me now? I'll never let any of those things happen to you again."

He sounded very confident at first, but he could not help but feel nervous later.

He already said things like this to her before.

However, when he opened his mouth, he would feel like it was the first time all over again. It was just very awkward for him.

Molly was going to have a meal after packing her things. However, she saw Benjamin coming in as soon as she opened the door.

She did not expect him to tell her things like that.

She said apologetically, "I'm sorry, but I'm not trying to blame anyone for what happened to me."

She saw Benjamin's hopeful gaze darkened right away. It was fleeting like a shooting star.

"Besides, I think I have to tell you that I have feelings for Sean.

But, I'm not really bothered by what he thinks about this." Molly made the tough decision and told her old friend truthfully.

She did not want Benjamin to receive false signals anymore. It was destined that his heart would only light up for somebody else.

But, that person would never be Molly.

Benjamin felt very bitter, and his heart felt like it was run over by a car.

Chapter 514-Every single word that Molly said punched him right in his guts.

He looked very devastated as he held his fists tightly. He looked at Molly, and he could never imagine doing the same thing to her.

He had no idea how she could have the heart to do that.

Benjamin took a deep breath and softly said while holding back his pain, "Okay. I understand now, but I'm not going to give up."

He was so stubborn and willful.

Molly looked at him and helplessly said, "I just don't want you to waste any more time on me."

She could not accept Benjamin's deep affection for her, nor could she be responsible for it.

After saying that, Molly took a step to the side and left.

She rested for a while in the pantry after having her lunch. She sat there until two in the afternoon, the time when she was supposed to return to the lab.

Then, she stood up and went back to work.

Unlike usual, Molly would try to avoid interacting with Benjamin after what happened.

They almost did not talk to each other at all when they were working. The atmosphere felt weird and different from any other day.

Even though everyone was curious about what happened, they put their mind into their work instead. They analyzed the data and recorded the outcome without being too bothered by them.

It was four fifty. They were going to get off work soon.

Molly felt a vibration in her pocket, she put the report she finished writing on the side and took out her phone to look at it.

'Sean is coming to pick me up?' She lifted the edge of her mouth and smiled subtly. Then, she replied instantly, "Sure."

Shortly after, she thought about the kidnapping.

She looked at the text message she had sent and fell into silence.

'Is he still worried about me?' Even though she remembered what happened at a random time, she was still a little scared.

However, Molly felt a lot better after thinking of how she was going to see Sean after work while holding her phone.

Her heart even started to beat faster.

Sean received Molly's instant reply. He put his phone back into his pocket after looking at it for less than two seconds.

That was because he heard a hasty step approaching his office. He felt like that person was looking for him.

Then, the office door was pushed open by a big hand.

Michael stormed in and stopped before Sean, and they were separated by an office desk.

Tony, who was standing at the side, took a step forward subconsciously. He was prepared to protect Sean in case Michael tried to hurt Sean out of anger.

'Sean, this is too much! I'm your uncle, the vice general manager of Anderson Corporation. Even if you have the power to revoke my authority abroad, you have no right to strip away my position as the vice general manager!' Michael was furious as he said angrily. A light shone behind his back and his shadow fell on top of Sean's face.

Then, he continued to question Sean. His eyes were burning with flames like a beast as he glared at Sean spitefully.

“Why do you have to push me to the edge? Do you think that your work won’t be affected after Anderson Cooperation lost its vice general manager? There are so many things to be done in the office. Who are you going to replace me with in such a short time?”

“Are you really going to put us in this lose-lose situation, so other people can make fun of our family? You’re not going to be satisfied until the media make a fool out of US, huh?!”

His saliva flew all over the documents on the table when he shouted.

Sean already stiffened his back and leaned backward subtly before Michael even opened his mouth.

He kept a distance from Michael and survived the “flood.”

Chapter 515-Sean arched his brow. His face looked cold when he said in displeasure, “should I list out every single debt you have overseas, then?”

Anybody would feel upset after getting yelled at despite the reason.

Sean was no exception. Besides, there were not many people who dared to treat him that way.

“Business is business, and I’m just doing my job. I don’t care what our personal relationship is and don’t get the Anderson family’s name involved!”

“Do you think you deserve what you have today? Do you think you could stand here alive and well if it wasn’t for the Anderson family? You would be spending at least a few years in prison, otherwise!”

Sean said each word clearly without trying to suppress his anger at all.

“It’s an embarrassment for the Anderson family to have a joke like you, and now you’re worried about being made fun of? Don’t you think you deserve all of this? Don’t you think you’re in the wrong?”

“Things would never have to turn out like this if you didn’t cause so much trouble, yet you’re still being so stubborn and impenitent.

I didn’t expect you to be senile at this age!”

Sean said without holding back. Each of his words pierced through Michael, and he looked relentless.

Molly getting kidnapped alone was enough for Sean to go off on Michael.

“I’m not going to continue this pointless conversation with you. You have three days, otherwise, I’ll do whatever it takes to revoke your authority in Norlon, and I’ll tell the shareholders about everything.” Sean put his hands on his lap after saying those words. He put on a cold expression while looking at Michael, and he glared at him viciously.

Sean did not care if he was the vice general manager. He would never tolerate anybody who made a mistake under his nose.

Michael was furious. He kept drawing deep breaths, and he just could not find the words to say. He left Sean’s office and the look on his face was extremely awful.

Sean was not bothered by it. He continued working until the evening, and he went to pick Molly up.

He waited with Tony in the car after reaching the entrance of the research institute. However, they did not expect that they would be there until eight o’clock.

Sean’s attention was drawn when he saw Molly appearing at the entrance.

Then, he watched her walking toward him.

“Just done with work?” He asked while Molly opened the door.

Molly got in the car and her hair looked a little messy. She rushed outside as soon as she finished her job because she was worried that Sean might be impatient for waiting too long.

“Yeah. The research was done, but it took some time to export the data,” Molly explained as she looked at the man sitting beside her.

Sean did not look like he was angry.

So, Molly’s anxious heart suddenly became calm.

“It’s already eight. I guess you haven’t eaten yet, right? You’ve got to eat on time no matter how busy you get. You shouldn’t neglect your health because of work,” Sean said flatly, but he looked very serious. He was worried about her.

Molly was moved as she stopped rubbing her right wrist with her left hand, she spent a very long time on an experiment this evening, and she held a test tube with her right hand throughout the whole time. So, her wrist felt sore.

She stared at Sean for two seconds before rubbing her wrist again. Then, she smiled faintly and said with a soft voice, “Okay.”

Sean said to Tony after hearing Molly’s response, “Do you remember the restaurant that we went to around here? Let’s go there.”

“Yes, boss. I’ll make a U-turn now. It’s pretty near and we’ll be there very soon,” Tony looked at the rear-view mirror and spoke.

After fifteen minutes, Tony helped Sean get down the car, and they went into the restaurant with Molly.

Sean, too, did not eat anything. He was planning to go home with Molly after she was done with work.

However, it was already eight-something, and it was past the time they would usually be eating at home.

Chapter 516-So, Sean had no choice but to eat out with Molly. After that, Tony went to an eatery next door to have his dinner.

Sean and Molly took their time, and they were finally done with their meal.

Then, Sean suggested, "Let's go for a walk."

Molly took the last sip of her lemon water and replied.

"Sure. I'll push you."

They left the restaurant and took a stroll down the street.

Molly was looking forward, and her dark hair looked very silky. Sean's nose was straight. From Molly's point of view, his nose bridge looked like a smooth line, and it kind of resembled a slide.

She lifted the corner of her mouth, she could not help but titter.

The streetlights surrounded them, and Molly saw Sean's thick and curly eyelashes after amusing herself with his nose. Sean's eyelashes looked extra visible against the streetlight.

She was impressed as she said to herself. 'This man is so effortlessly good-looking.' Without them knowing, they walked to a water fountain. That was when Molly finally took her eyes off Sean.

The place was decorated very romantically just like a movie scene.

Molly stopped walking, she looked at the water fountain and pushed Sean toward it.

“Let’s go have a look, okay?” She asked.

Sean heard it and knew that there was no room for rejection, but he responded anyway, “You’re the boss.”

Molly stopped somewhere not far away from the middle before she curiously said.

“Does this place always look like this?”

She saw a group of people going to the middle after saying that. Those people were like a wave on a lake that appeared suddenly.

There were balloons in light blue and white getting tied to rocks by thin and long strings while floating in the air. The balloons surrounded the middle and formed a small circle.

The colorful lights around the fountain shot through the sky and made the white balloons look resplendent. However, the lights cast a colorful hue across the blue balloon, and it looked like the morning sky. It was magical and dreamy.

Molly and Sean looked in that direction. There was a man and a woman in the middle of those balloons.

The man got down on one knee while holding a diamond ring in his hand in front of the woman in a purple dress. He looked deeply in love.

Everybody around them was watching.

The woman put her hand over her mouth and tears glittered in her eyes. She was overwhelmed by her feelings. Then, she nodded slowly and said with a tearful voice, “Yes.”

The fountain ejected blasted streams of water right after the woman said that. It looked just like exploding fireworks, and everybody was amazed.

The water went as tall as thirty feet, and the place was filled with joy.

The man held back his tears as he put on the sparkling diamond ring on his lover's finger with his trembling hands.

Then, he stood up and they hugged each other tightly in the crowd.

They were ready to begin a new chapter in their life.

Molly and Sean were looking at the fountain too. The water droplets spattered all over the sky, and it was magnificent.

She just witnessed a romantic proposal, and she was filled with an indescribable emotion, she felt like something was going to break through her chest.

At that moment, she wanted to be distracted by her feelings as she looked at the man beside her.

Coincidentally, their eyes met.

They looked at each other, and Molly felt very hot as she looked away abruptly. She felt like the cheering noise around her disappeared. The place became so quiet and all she could hear was her own heart beating.

Sean smiled without saying anything. He glanced at the fountain for less than a second before looking back at Molly. Then, his smile became bigger.

'She's prettier, after all.' Later at night, they went back home.

The triplets went out excitedly to welcome them. "Mommy, it must have been a long day for you!

Uncle Sean, thank you for sending mommy back home! You're so nice!"

Chapter 517-It had been so long since Molly and Sean spent some alone time together. The triplets were hoping that they could be closer after tonight.

Molly smiled and said, "It was alright."

Sean's eyes were smiling as he looked at the triplets. His heart felt exceptionally warm that day.

The triplets secretly looked at the expression on their faces, and they could hardly contain the happiness they felt.

'They had a great time together!' 'Mommy and daddy look very happy!' So, they said goodbye to Sean with even more enthusiasm before welcoming Molly into the house happily.

Molly held the triplets' hands and walked into the house. Then, she saw Caitlyn and her two brothers.

"Are you done with their treatments today?" She asked.

Caitlyn looked at her and lifted the corner of her lips, she hugged her arms and shrugged her shoulders. "Yeah," she said.

"Molly, you're back!" Brycen's eyes brightened when he saw his sister coming back home.

The triplets stood around Molly and exposed Brycen without holding back.

"Uncle Sean isn't used to the needles yet. He would shout very loudly every time during the treatment"

Grandpa Dave smiled and looked at his family while sitting on the sofa. His heart was filled with happiness.

Brycen shook his head and tried to uphold his dignity by denying it. "No, I didn't!

Kids, don't try to embarrass me!"

Sawyer, who was sitting on the sofa handle, took out his phone nonchalantly and tapped on it with his finger.

A screaming and wailing noise surrounded the living room suddenly. The walls in the house were soundproof, and it made the recording kind of sound...

immersive.

it was as if they were right there when it happened.

"Pfft," Molly laughed. She could totally imagine how Brycen looked when Caitlyn poked the needles in him.

Caitlyn put her hand on her forehead, she would resist it subconsciously whenever she heard that bum's yell. The tenor who just would not stop yelling in her ear... gave her a headache.

She was not trying to be sick herself while treating another person.

Brycen was shocked. Then, he recollected himself seconds later.

'Damn! Even my brother isn't on my side!' "Sawyer May! How could you record that?! That's horrible. I'm your brother!"

He just denied it moments ago, yet the recording hit him right in the face. It was just cruel.

Sawyer lifted his brows and turned off the recording. Then, he smiled faintly and said, "I just hope that you can face the reality."

"I know how cruel the reality can be now," Brycen said bitterly with a curled lip.

It was too embarrassing!

The triplets laughed so hard that they slumped over the sofa beside Sawyer. Their youngest uncle would not usually talk much, but he would always join them and make fun of Brycen at critical moments like that. It was so much fun!

Grandpa Dave squinted his eyes and lifted the corner of his lips uncontrollably while seeing their laugh and fight. Then, he looked at Molly and asked with a smile, "Molly, did you come back with Sean?"

Molly held Ben to prevent him from falling from the sofa and responded, "Yeah. I got off work a little later than usual today. So, we went to have dinner at a restaurant, and we took a stroll after that.

When we walked to a fountain square, we bumped into somebody proposing." She pushed Ben toward Sawyer's arms as she said that.

The triplets kept their emotions under control and sat on the sofa.

"Wow!" They shouted before continuing and said, "That's so romantic!"

Molly chuckled, she pinched the triplets' adorable cheeks and said, "You're so young. Do you know anything about romance?"

Brycen looked at the triplets. He was looking forward to hearing what kind of response the triplet would give to Molly.

Suddenly, the triplets got serious. Their eyes sparkled like stars, looking sharp.

“Of course, we do!”

Chapter 518-‘Is romance supposed to be hard to understand? Harder than calculus?’ The triplets thought to themselves.

‘So, when is daddy going to propose to mommy?’ “Mommy, you’ve got to have a proposal as romantic as that when you met the person you like!” Alex got a little excited after saying that. He just could not wait for that day to come!

‘Mommy will be so happy!’ “Yeah, we’ve got to tell that person who likes mommy to propose too. It’s a step that can never be skipped!” Ben and Claudia agreed and spoke.

Then, the triplets fell into their imagination as a sweet smile flashed across their faces.

‘The person that I like...’ Sean’s attractive face appeared in Molly’s head in the next second she heard what the triplets said.

She spaced out for a second before exhaling and burying those feelings under her heart.

However, it left a rather undeniable stamp in her heart.

Brycen fell into his thoughts for a second. Then, he said, “I’m going to propose like that too in the future!”

Caitlyn looked at him disdainfully and smugly scoffed, “Could a person like you ever get a wife?”

‘He’s just too fragile.’ Caitlyn was referring to the Brycen when he was getting treated.

“Hmph. What’s wrong with a guy like me? I’m both handsome and rich. I just can’t find any reason for a person to not love me. So many girls like me that they could form a line and surround the entire Northfolk for a few times.” Brycen said in displeasure.

He even pulled the end of his hair confidently.

Caitlyn rolled her eyes at him scornfully.

Brycen looked back at her in disgust. Then, he roasted her. “Not a single lady in Northfolk would act as boorish as you. You do everything like a man. Ms.

Caitlyn, if you don’t mind me saying, I just want to tell you that no man would ever want to be with a tomboy like you.”

“Hey...” They started to argue and made fun of each other’s flaws without holding back.

“Alex, look at her. Just look at how aggressive she is. I’m sure that she’ll never find a person who wants her.”

The triplets were watching them bicker. They enjoyed the show very much, and they could not stop laughing.

The triplets started to think after Brycen got them involved in the conversation.

Then, they said, “Uncle Brycen, why don’t you just be together with Aunty Caitlyn, then?”

“That works too! I agree!” Molly raised her hand up immediately to show that she supported the triplet’s suggestion.

Brycen was left speechless.

Caitlyn did not know what to say too.

Both of them stopped talking and looked at Molly disdainfully at the same time.

The next day. Anderson Cooperation.

Michael actually covered all the money that he took from the company.

Sean was a little surprised when he looked at the report.

“Boss, don’t be too shocked. Michael sacrificed a lot to get this money. He mortgaged several of his private properties and the only property that was not mortgaged is probably the one he’s living in now. He even swallowed his pride and borrowed money everywhere. He owes a lot of favors from people to get this done.”

Tony told Sean in a tone as if he was watching a show.

He felt like Michael turned himself into a clown, and he thought that it was funny.

“Most importantly, the partners that he shared a rather good relationship with distanced themselves from him too because of what happened.”

It was more disastrous for a businessman to lose his connections than money.

Money could be earned again if it was gone.

However, Michael just lost all his ways to earn money when his connections disappeared.

Chapter 519-Sean smiled coldly as he listened to Tony’s report. “This is only the beginning. From now on, Michael is going to have a difficult time in the local market.”

This was because Sean will not let Michael have it easy.

Contrastingly, he would even “lend Michael a hand” when Michael needed it.

Molly did not distance herself from Benjamin after he confessed his love for her.

However, she reduced the unnecessary contact between them.

At work, Molly and Benjamin’s compatibility was still enviably strong.

Because Molly had requested a few days’ leaves even when she had just joined the team, many people in the research institute had a bad impression of her.

But, when Molly came back to work, she had already made some advancements on the project. Furthermore, she also made changes to the plan, which also increased everyone’s progress.

She had used her outstanding capability to shut down the people who disapproved of her.

Although she was favored, she was also despised by some. Not only was Molly brilliant in her work, but she also worked really well with Benjamin too.

When people see them working together, they would all believe that Molly and Benjamin were compatible because they have been working together for a long time.

This made Queenie even more jealous of Molly. Every time she saw Molly, she would think of ways to get rid of her.

‘At the very least, I can’t let her be together with Benjamin! She had her mind wrapped around this idea when she stopped hating Molly from afar. Gradually, she came up with a plan.

One by one, everyone in the research institute left for lunch in the afternoon, including Molly and Benjamin. Queenie was the only one who stayed behind, when she confirmed that everyone was gone, she sneaked her way to Molly's computer.

'I'll see how you'll conduct the meeting with your data deleted.' Queenie smirked evilly and pressed the button without hesitation. She had completely deleted all the data on Molly's computer.

When she saw that the data was impossible to recover, she shut down Molly's computer happily and threw her gloves into the trashcan.

Now that Queenie had lifted the weight off her shoulders, she walked out of the research institute with joy.

After everyone was done with their lunch in the afternoon, they headed back to the research institute. Then, Molly immediately started off the meeting when everyone was present.

When Molly was discussing the main point, her voice froze. With a cold, stern look on her face, she stared at the computer screen.

"Ms. May, are you done? Everyone is waiting for your research results so we can get back to work, why don't we end the meeting here if you're not done with your work? You're using up our time and delaying our progress. If the boss criticizes US because of this, none of us can take the blame."

As the person who knew exactly what was happening, Queenie was delighted as she mocked Molly when she saw Molly searching for the data on her computer frantically.

"I'm telling you that I am certain that I've completed the research and saved the data."

But, Queenie did not buy it. "Since you're okay, please carry on with the meeting."

Queenie acted like she was a busy woman.

Molly glanced over her before looking at everyone else. "There's a minor technical error, so let's put the meeting on hold. Get back to your work and we'll continue once I've settled the issue."

Chapter 520-When Molly was sure she did not have the necessary data on her computer, she could only stop the meeting for the time being.

No one objected, so they returned to their workspace.

But, Molly was slightly frustrated, she was 100% sure that she had saved it on her computer.

'Did someone do something to my computer?' Molly did not want to suspect her colleagues, but she could not help but doubt them.

After all, many people were displeased with her as they thought she was only able to join the team because of her connections. That was why she could not disregard the possibility of sabotages from her colleagues.

Molly went to the surveillance room with suspicion.

She figured that asking her colleagues directly would only damage her relationship with them if it turned out that they were not the culprit.

But, if someone really logged into her computer, the surveillance camera was the only proof.

However, Molly did not expect her request to check the surveillance footage would be rejected by the people in charge.

Their reason was to protect the confidentiality of the research and the research institute.

They even told Molly that she would only be allowed access after she obtained her superiors' approval.

On top of that, they also shut Molly up with their “we can’t bear the responsibility” talk.

Molly’s expression darkened as she left the surveillance room.

Now, she was even more suspicious that someone had done something on her computer.

Molly was not a person to suffer quietly after being mistreated.

But, the most important thing now was the missing data.

Molly walked out of the research institute and phoned home.

“Yeah, it’s me. What are you up to, Alex?”

Molly immediately got Benjamin to bring Alex over as she gathered everyone in the research institute together.

Everyone was unhappy with the sudden notice too.

If Molly and Benjamin did not produce a satisfactory result, they would only delay their time and disrupt their progress.

Ultimately, the people who did not do a good job would be despised by others.

They were all adults. In the adult world, there were not many minor arguments.

Their time was precious, and they would not use it to argue with one another.

Both Molly and Queenie knew about this fact.

However, Molly was certain that someone was behind this.

That was why she wanted to catch the culprit and show them that she was not to be messed with!

As for Queenie, Molly knew that Queenie was making things hard for her. Molly could tell that she was trying to add fuel to the fire and affect their colleagues, which was painfully obvious that she was sending Molly a message.

'If Molly fails to resolve this, she can just pack her things and leave! I Many people were looking at Molly judgementally.

But, Molly was unbothered, she crossed her arms naturally as her fingers tapped on her arm rhythmically.

Half an hour later, the butler brought Alex over.

The butler followed Benjamin's orders and arrived at the research institute. The doors were already opened for them.

He knocked on the door as he held Alex's hand in his left hand and greeted Molly after he entered.

"Ms. May, Mr. Benjamin is waiting in the car, and he told me to bring Alex in."

"Hi, mommy." Alex looked at Molly and smiled with his eyes.

Although he did not know why his mother called him over, he was more than happy to be of help to his mother.

"Is this Ms. May's child?" Someone asked.
