Fayth POV

"Daddy, come on, hurry!"

I'm standing at the edge of the forest waiting for the little mutt to show himself. He got out of mom and dad's backyard and we have spent the last half an hour searching for him. He went missing while the forest and I have lived every inch in the book but the rescue is obviously leaving me much fun running wild.

"Why didn't Lash' go and see if I am spot-less?"

I spun around and glared at Ashira.

"Why didn't you just suggest that in the car place?" I asked as I stalked toward him. His face twitched up at the corner and he gave me a half smile. He looked so sexy, and he knew it.

"Because I enjoy watching your perfect ass weaving from side to side when you walk. It's so on and you, is so entertaining to me, like a hindrance that you have to do. It's much as I would love to stare at this delicious body."

He ran his hand down my arm as he spoke and my mouth ran dry, the dryest in front of me. His body pushed up against mine. He leaned down slightly so that his mouth was next to my ear. I closed my eyes through burning against my neck, sending pleasant shivers through my body. Even after 5 years of being mated to him, he still made my heart skip a beat and make me feel like a schoolgirl whenever he was close to me like this. He made me feel up into something that I've never felt like this close to me, I would picture him preserving his live against mine or wanting me to stay down my body with them.

"I can feel something coming."

He pulled me closer and wrapped his arms around me. He leaned in closer to me, so I stayed at my face with my teeth, making him growl in appreciation.

"Go and rid the dog and I will wait for you back home," I growled, eager for him to rush what he had started.

I pushed away from him and stepped away. I felt the wind against my back from his wings as he took off from the forest to Old Trinity. It felt like I was being caressed by a loving breeze on a warm summer day.

With everything going on and the impending war looming above us, we decided it was better if we moved back home. There was a lot to prepare for and we were needed here more than at Ephron.

Ephron is the safest where the gods dwell. It's a beautiful place, everything seems more vibrant and bright here. Beautiful creatures surround Ephron, they're so green and lush that they don't look real, they look like someone has painted them on to the landscape. It's beautiful as they do, the mountains are thick with forests full of supernatural creatures of all kinds and the rivers flow with crystal clear water. The sky is always a bright blue with streaks of white, it's so much of the magic that runs through the land. Ephron is a place to calm down into deep rivers and they run throughout Ephron. The buildings the gods use are events are also unique in design, large and beautiful, like the palace where the gods live, out of a fairytale and placed there for them to live in. Because theirs is the god of Ephron, they live in the palace in the dark part of Ephron, it's not an area I've been to often but I've heard it's beautiful and full of magic.

Ephron is the safest place in the world, it's where the gods live and it's where the most powerful creatures reside. It's where I grew up with and treat immensely, only to be stabbed in the back by my own family. I'm brought from Ashira's side and I'm pulled back into the past where I've been trying so hard to escape from. We brought Ashira's mother here to live with us, so that we can keep an eye on her. We brought her here as soon as Hayden gets back, he and Amelia have been through a world of trauma and deserve to have a few days to themselves before they dive into the war and the fight that we are thrown into as we believed gods. The pack is really in a state of recovery and the bodies of Aunt Vivian and Uncle Thomas have had a good burial. Ashira's mother was the last few to still planning on being Amelia and it only fueled his hatred for Noah.

"Thanks, Fay, where's Bella?"

Ashira barely left my side, he was just as possessive as a male wolf, if not more.

"Finding Diablo."

Zak nodded his head and turned back to the children.

"Where are you from?" He asked the children.

A young girl stepped forward. She had mud on her leg and blood splatter across her clothes, but I could see a strength inside of her. She had a spark that I recognized as the same spark inside of me.

"My son from Mexico-North Mexadeus. Please don't go there. The monsters will kill be there and they will hurt you, too."

"I will be we don't worry about me. How did you get here?" I asked.

"The angel lady brought us," A small child said, pointing up at a picture of Amelia and Hayden.

The older girl picked her up whilst nodding her head. I looked at Zak, who just shrugged.

"Who the hell is the angel lady?"

"I don't have a clue," he replied.

"Did the angel lady took like the lady in this picture?" Zak asked the group.

They all nodded their heads with some saying yes, but it was unanimous that every single one of them thought Amelia had saved them."

"Do you think she sparkled in them and saved them?"

"How would she get them all here, though? I don't think it was Amelia. Mason was with me. He is acting weird. He took off saying he recognized the scent of whoever brought them here. I don't know what to do. I'm not a god and I'm not a vampire, I'm just a wolf. I have been trained, I've been recognized the scent as an evil and why didn't she stick around instead of just dumping them at the gate?"

"I will go and not out what's happened there. You try to pack out who brought them here. I'll let you know as soon as we get back what we found."

"Bye bite, Zak is going to look after you but I want you to know you are all safe here. We won't let anyone hurt you."

The children looked at me with small smiles. I could tell it was going to take a lot to make them safe. I watched them walk off down the hall to the rec room. I knew Zak we will look after them, he was a natural with children, he was so good with them and he was probably get the. I had to make them all a hot chocolate. I got to set up the bravo in the room, sending Aidan a mind link on my way, telling him to grab his stuff so we could go and check out the Mexican North Mexadeus and see what's happening and why there are poor children.

"I could flip big way it's time for me and you, where are you going?" Ashira asked as he closed the door behind himself. his shirt was already undone revealing his bulging body. I let my eyes run up his hard, well-toned abs and pulled my jacket on, not letting the god in front of me distract me with his glorious body.

"I have to go and check something out. A group of kids has been left at the gate saying Mom had been attacked by Mexicans."

"Or, but when we get home."

I knew Nalea would come with me. He felt an overwhelming urge to protect me, especially when I was in danger. I knew he would be angry at me for not telling him where I was going but I didn't want to tell him