399 BABY OUT OF THE WAY

Lily already expected the words that came from Xaden's lips and yet she was still surprised by them. 1

"I'm sorry but that would no longer be possible anymore."

Anna had forewarned her.

Jasmine was a torn in her flesh.

Lily had been raised a sweet and call young she wolf.

She was going to be Alpha Xaden's mate. She was to be a proper mate and wife.

Mother of his children so she had been raised in the ways of a proper highbrow woman.

Everything had been thrown out of the window without any regard for someone who was not his mate.

For someone who from what Anna had told her, had been a miserable slave.

A nobody .

Lily had been kind to Jasmine at first, even liked her.

But from all that Anna had said and from all that she had seen.

Jasmine was a monster and she was here to steal Xaden away from her.

That was all she was.

And Lily for the first time in her life burned in jealousy, hate and envy that this nobody had everything she had wanted.

Despite how she was the model, the perfect mate.

"Oh?" Lily quietly repspinded to his words.

"I'm sorry that I led you on." Xaden apology. "I'm sorry that I sold that false story to you. If I could take it back, I would".

She was quiet for a while.

"Is there any specific reason why you changed your mind?" She asked him.

"Jasmine wants to raise her child. It was either she did or she ran away with the baby." Xaden said.

"But you could have still persuaded her not to." Lily said. "You're the Alpha and this is your pack. You can make anyone do what you want."

"Not Jasmine." He said. "Not anymore at least. Before? Probably. But since she got pregnant, she enabled a stubborn side of her I never even knew existed. She would run away. Trust me."

Lily nodded.

She had already imagined raising that baby like her own.

She was going to love and care for it just like it was hers.

But now hearing how Xaden had changed his mind, all she wanted to do was hurt the baby.

She would hurt both Jasmine and the baby.

"I understand." Lily said. "But we are still going to be performing our mating Ceremony. Right?"

"No." He shook his head.

It hurt Lily like a difficult blow.

She had expected him to tell her that she wasn't going to have the baby anymore.

But what she had not expected was for him to tell her that they were not going to be mated anymore.

"W.... Wwww.. why?" She stuttered.

"I don't think I'm ready to be your mate Lily." He expressed. "To be honest I never wanted a mate after I lost you. Having you back in my life. I never expected it to happen."

"Is this because of her?" Lily asked boldly.

"Who? Jasmine? No." Xaden said. "Of course not. She isn't going to be my mate. But I have to be present in the baby's life. It would conflict with you and I don't want that. Lily you deserve someone who would love you unconditionally."

"I can never do that." Xaden dropped the bombshell. "And I know that is what you would expect of me. I can never give you that."

Lily burned within herself.

She was furious and in rage within herself.

She hated Jasmine.

The hate consumed her with such Fierceness she wanted to enact it out of her.

Lily just sat there with her perfect smile and trying to maintain her composure.

She was a perfect mate after all.

she knew all the right things to say at the right time.

"You're right Xaden." Lily said. "I want you to love me and I would have loved to have my pups with you. Is there anything I can do? To change your mind."

Lily still had to play the part of the good girl.

She couldn't let him sense that she now had ulterior motives.

"No." He said.

And then he got up from his desk and walked to her side.

She stood up and he gave her a very warm and cozy hug.

"I'm sorry about this." He said. "You deserve someone who is going to love you the way you want to be. I'm just not that person."

"But the goddess made us mates for a reason." Lily said. "Do you want to throw that away."

"If it's what's best for you then yes I can." He said.

Lily was quiet for a while.

She already knew that he wasn't going to change his mind so easily.

If she had immediately agreed, he would suspect that something was off.

"Okay." She nodded. "But can I ask you for a favor?"

"Of course." He nodded giving her the go ahead.

"Since you're going to reject me." She started. "I was wondering if you could do it after we returned from the Royal pack. My wolf would be unhappy and I don't want to go weighed down seeing the King and Queen."

"Of course that's fine." He said. "We would begin the journey in a week."

"Would Jasmine come?" Lily asked.

"I don't think so." Xaden stated as he returned back to his seat. "The Queen wanted to see her personally. But Jasmine's health and the baby. I don't want any complications and make matters worse."

"Oh." Lily said. "Would the Queen be upset?"

"Yes, but if it's going to put Jasmine in harms way, then I won't let it happen." He said.

Lily clenched her fist in anger at the way he spoke about Jasmine with such reference.

Now that she knew Jasmine wasn't going to travel for the trip, she would carry out her plans without hesitation.

"It's because of the baby right?" Lily asked him. "It's because she is pregnant that you are being tied down to her." 1

"Of course." Xaden said.

That was all she needed to hear and then she walked away with an evil smile stamped on her face.

Early the next morning, Queen Rose was already wearing her fur coat and her hair was plaited into a single braid.

She had had her bath and worn a simple but elegant green dress.

Her coat was black and she had her gloves on.

Her husband turned in bed and frowned when he saw her already ready.

"Why are you up?" Roland asked, startling her.

"Honey you should go to bed." She said.

She was backing the bed so he was able to drag her by her waist and pull her towards him.

His hands went up her breasts and she moaned in pleasure.

He turned her to face him and then he was kissing her neck, the heap of her bosom and very gently undid the lace of her dress

"Roland." She said as she reluctantly and very gently pushed him away.

She kissed him on the lips quickly and went on about fixing her dress.

"What happened to Roland?" He asked. "Roland just wants a few touches here and there nothing too much to ask for."

"Go to bed honey." She urged as she scooted to the far end of the room so that she won't have his hands on her again.

She wasn't sure if she would be able to resist him if he tried again.

"I'm already awake. There is no going back. Where are you going to so early?" Roland asked as he yawned.

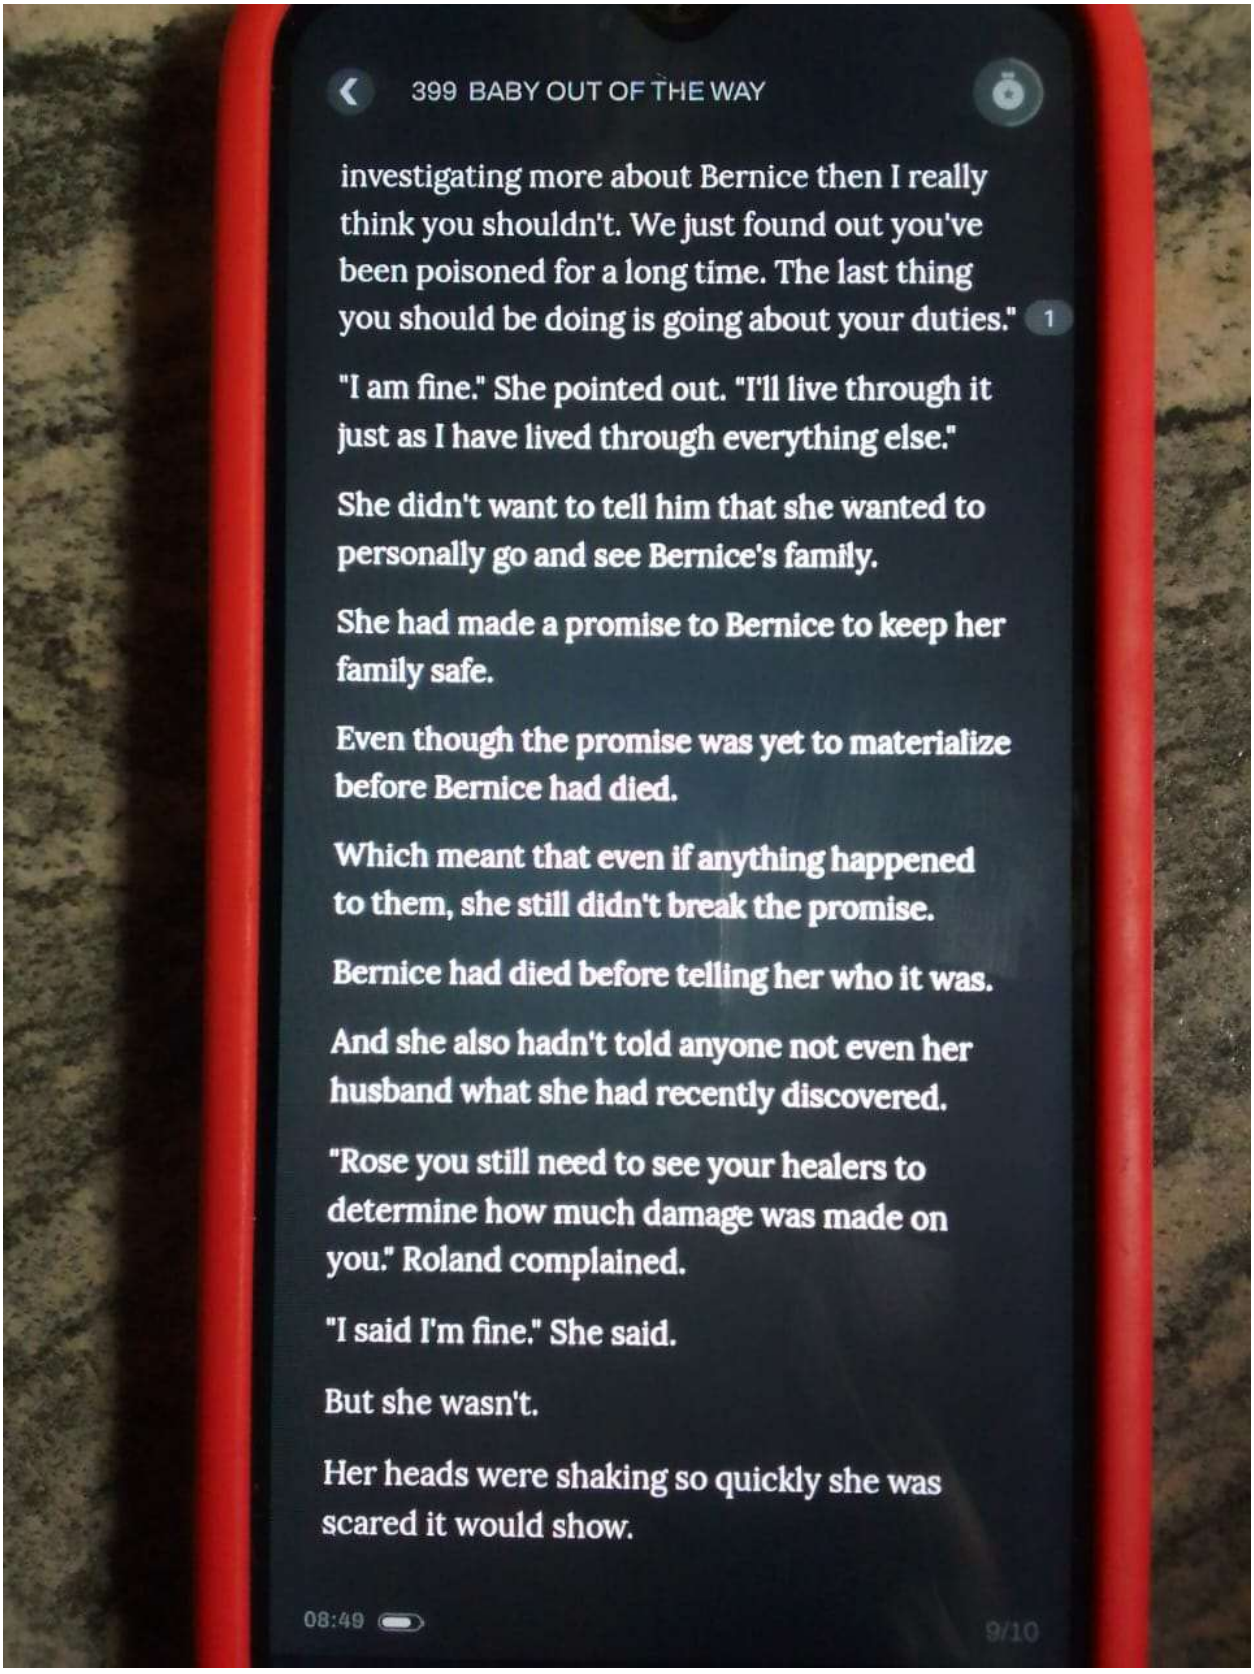

He sat up in the bed.

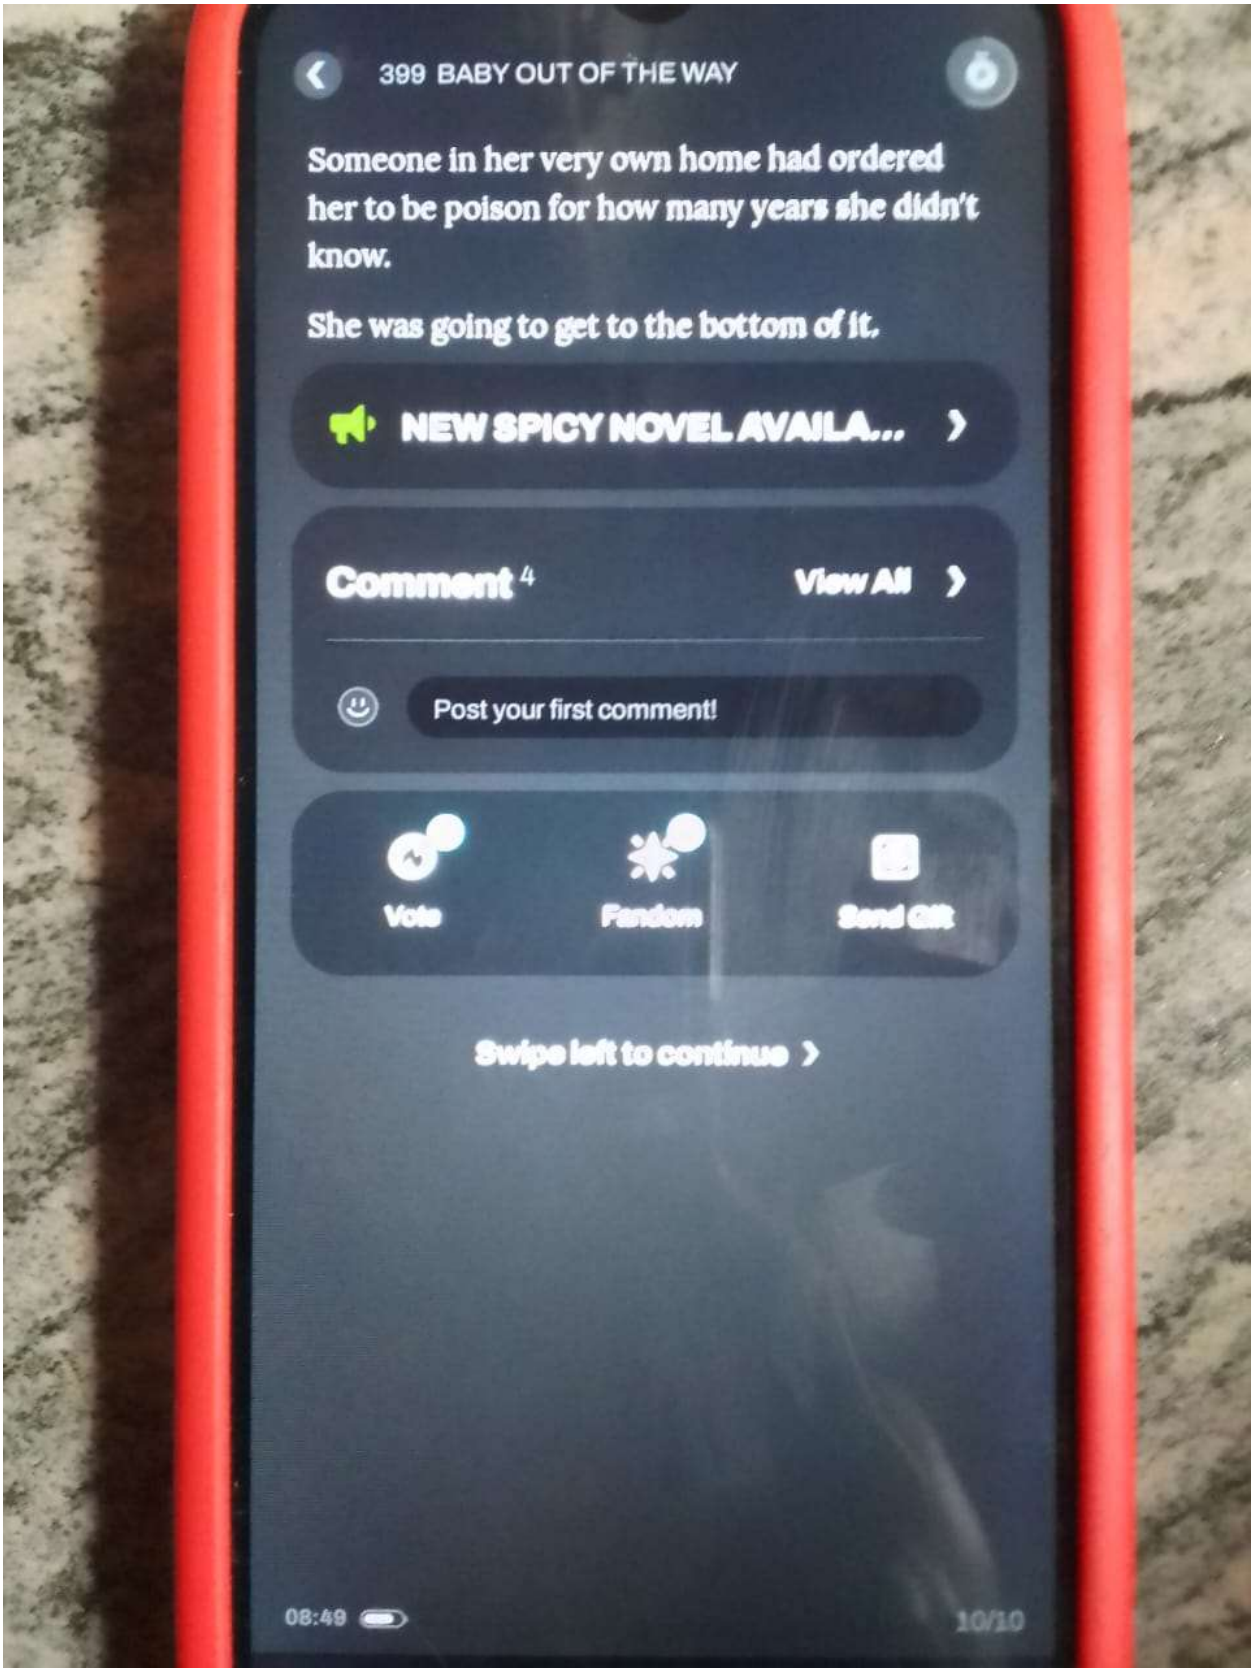

"I have to do some findings on my own." Rose said. "Nothing so important."

"This early?" He asked in disbelief.

She didn't respond as she wore her earrings.

She heard him sigh and say. "If you intend on investigating more about Bernice then I really think you shouldn't. We just found out you've been poisoned for a long time. The last thing you should be doing is going about your duties." 1

"I am fine." She pointed out. "I'll live through it just as I have lived through everything else."
She didn't want to tell him that she wanted to personally go and see Bernice's family.
She had made a promise to Bernice to keep her family safe.
Even though the promise was yet to materialize before Bernice had died.
Which meant that even if anything happened to them, she still didn't break the promise.
Bernice had died before telling her who it was.
And she also hadn't told anyone not even her husband what she had recently discovered.
"Rose you still need to see your healers to determine how much damage was made on you." Roland complained.
"I said I'm fine." She said.
But she wasn't.
Her heads were shaking so quickly she was scared it would show.
