

Unbreakable 1201

Chapter 1201

---

With these thoughts, Raegan replied in a calm tone, "Sorry, I wasn't aware that you two were engaged. I promise not to contact Mitchel again."

Raegan didn't feel any guilt as she apologized sincerely. She stood tall, thinking that if Katie was telling the truth and she had known earlier, she would have never gotten involved with Mitchel. Moreover, it was Mitchel who kept showing up in her life. If Katie was telling the truth, Mitchel was a scumbag, no doubt.

"Why don't you check online, Raegan? Didn't you see the news about our engagement earlier?" Katie said, deliberately bringing up the news.

Although Mitchel's team had removed almost all the fake news from the internet, the coverage of the so-called engagement between Katie and Mitchel from unknown entertainment companies that valued little to the truth of the news they released could still be stumbled upon.

Truth be told, Katie wasn't afraid Mitchel would approach Raegan and explain the situation. After all, it wasn't something easy to explain.

What added to the difficulty was Raegan's previous low opinion of Mitchel. Mitchel's attempt to explain would likely complicate things further.

Besides, Katie assumed she wasn't entirely dishonest. She was set on marrying Mitchel. Sooner or later, Mitchel would become her husband.

Katie had been orchestrating the schemes of marrying Mitchel for years, not anticipating Raegan's sudden return. She had hoped Lauren's tricks would succeed in removing Raegan from the picture. But, to her dismay, Lauren failed.

Left with no alternative, Katie had to take the matter into her own hands.

With a smile, Katie continued, "Since three years ago, the news about our engagement has been all over the Internet. The Dixon Group has aimed for a more discreet profile the recent years. We've toned down the media coverage, but our engagement is still a well-known fact to all. Raegan, I don't think you're someone who would chase after a man relentlessly. I will let this call slide. Anyway, I suggest you watch your actions and words in the future and stay away from Mitchel for your own good."

Katie's tone was condescending. Though she didn't use harsh language, it was clear she was labeling Raegan in a negative light and trying to demean Raegan.

No longer the pushover, Raegan responded coldly, "Miss Glyn, you just said you and Mitchel were engaged three years ago. So, you've thought of yourself as Mitchel's fiancée since then, correct?"

Katie answered arrogantly, "Yes, that's the truth."

"Is that so? Are you certain? Then, let me add another fact for you."

After a brief pause, Raegan continued, "Ten days ago, legally speaking, the man you're talking about was actually my husband. Yet, you claim you've been engaged to him for three years. Well, I guess a thanks for your words is in order. Anyway, I'll keep my right to pursue this matter."

Upon hearing Raegan's words, Katie was completely taken aback. Her smile vanished, and her composure dropped as she questioned, "What do you mean?"

Katie had always thought Mitchel was single when Raegan was struck by the car incident three years ago. She had little knowledge of their remarriage.

Moreover, after five long years of thought that Raegan had passed away amid the car incident, Mitchel kept his marriage status untouched. Katie found it hard to digest the depth of Mitchel's love for Raegan.

Katie's sense of superiority was gone in an instant. Her failure to make Mitchel fall in love with her after all these years added to her distress.

"Just literal meaning. In fact, it's you who should not meddle with someone else's husband. Moreover, I'm not interested in Mitchel. Be rest assured, I have no desire for such a rubbish," Raegan sneered.

How could Raegan possibly be interested in a man like Mitchel after hearing Katie's words? The supposed engagement with another woman while pursuing her? Blah. If Katie valued Mitchel so much, she could have him.

At the doorway, Janey overheard Raegan's conversation on the phone.

Janey didn't grasp everything, but she caught that Mitchel was engaged to someone else.

How could that be? That was not good.

Janey had learned what an engagement meant when she went to a party with Annis. She understood it as Mitchel planning to marry another lady.

But, Mitchel had told her he loved no one but her mommy that day. He was a liar! A bad guy! How dare he lie to her!

Thinking this over, Janey grabbed her phone and began pressing it aimlessly.

As Raegan emerged from the room, she found Janey waiting eagerly, holding a small handbag.

Feeling a bit embarrassed, Raegan said to Janey, "Janey, today we're going to have fun at the amusement park with Annis, okay?"

"That's awesome, mommy!" Beaming, Janey said earnestly, "Mommy, I don't want a daddy anymore. Because I love you so much, mommy."

Janey was disappointed in Mitchel. She never expected him to be a liar. In her mind, it was her fault that her mommy was being accused over the phone.

Raegan was puzzled by Janey's sudden change in mood but didn't dwell on it. She chalked it up to the usual mood swings of children.

The three of them got dressed and were about to leave when Stefan appeared, holding a large gift box adorned with princess illustrations.

"Stefan!" Janey jumped on Stefan with excitement. The toy she had recently mentioned to Stefan was right there, something she hadn't anticipated Stefan would find so quickly.

Noticing they were on their way out, Stefan inquired, "Where are you all headed?"

“Stefan, my mommy and I are off to the amusement park. Would you like to join us?” Janey asked.

“Is this an invitation for me, Janey?” Stefan knelt down and asked softly.

“Yes, come with us to the park!” Janey replied expectantly.

At this, Stefan looked over at Raegan.

Recently, Stefan had expressed his desire to spend time with Raegan for the rest of his life, but she hadn’t responded yet. This made their encounter a tad embarrassing.

Raegan quickly said, “Stefan might be busy, Janey.”

“Is that so? It’s okay then, Stefan,” Janey replied, showing no signs of sadness. In her eyes, Stefan was like a member of their family.

However, Stefan stood up and cleared his throat. “Actually, I have no plans today.”

Raegan was stunned momentarily.

“Do you mind if I come along?” Stefan asked tentatively. It was his first time actively pursuing a woman.

“I don’t mind but just a heads up. Janey can be quite Lively.” said Raegan embarrassedly.

“I don’t mind that at all. I’m quite fond of Janey,” Stefan responded.

So, all four of them set off to the amusement park together.

Chapter 1203

---

Annis, keen on setting Raegan up with Stefan, took it upon herself to keep Janey entertained most of the time.

Meanwhile, Raegan and Stefan simply stood by, watching in silence.

“About the other day..

Raegan and Stefan began speaking simultaneously.

“Please, you go first,” Stefan said kindly.

“I owe you an apology, Stefan. The other day, I pretended we were dating just to annoy Mitchel,” Raegan confessed.

Feeling a bit embarrassed, Raegan added, “Stefan, you’re a wonderful person. But I’ve always seen you more like a big brother. Also, I’m not sure I’d be the right one for you if you’re thinking about marriage...”

Raegan had been friends with Stefan for almost three years and had always seen him as an older brother figure. It was hard for her to see him in a different light.

Moreover, after her experience with Mitchel, Raegan believed she needed to be more careful in choosing a partner, especially someone who could be a stepfather to Janey.

Raegan knew that moral integrity and personality were crucial, and it was essential that they shared common interests for a lifelong partnership.

Seeing her standpoint, Stefan felt a wave of disappointment. “I understand. Remember, I’m always there for you, and you have nothing to feel guilty about.”

“Stefan...” Raegan’s guilt deepened upon hearing Stefan’s understanding response.

Stefan offered a gentle smile and said, “It’s okay, really. Raegan, truthfully, I’m not even sure what love really is. I’m just looking for someone suitable to start a family with. Reflecting on my words that day, I realize I was quite impulsive and unfair to you. Please, just forget about it.”

Raegan felt a sense of relief at his words. She would have felt remorseful if Stefan had deeper feelings for her because she might ultimately let him down.

With a bright smile, Raegan said, “Thank you, Stefan.”

Stefan returned the smile and said, “In my eyes, you’re like a younger sister. When Erick isn’t around, feel free to reach out to me for anything. Don’t see me as an outsider.”

“Of course, Stefan.”

After this exchange, the rest of their day turned out quite enjoyable.

Janey was thrilled at the sight of a massive robot and was adamant about taking a photo with it.

Meanwhile, Mitchel returned to his office after a meeting. His brow furrowed at the sight of Katie. “Why are you here?”

Katie hesitated briefly and then answered with a smile, “I came to show you the project document.”

“I see,” Mitchel responded and immediately started reviewing the documents on his desk, hardly glancing at her.

Katie, feeling completely overlooked, felt aggrieved. “Mitchel, I actually came here to see you...”

Chapter 1204

But Mitchel cut her off, looking annoyed, “Why are you still here?”

Mitchel’s indifference and impatience didn’t go unnoticed by Katie.

Her mind racked, wondering why he just couldn’t fall for her after all her efforts.

Katie’s face turned ashen. She hailed from a wealthy family and had never experienced such disregard before.

Realizing that staying would only humiliate her further, Katie decided to leave without a word.

Just as Katie turned around, Mitchel suddenly noticed that his phone was placed in a different place.

He immediately called out to her, “Wait, did you touch my phone?”

Katie stopped, put on an innocent look, and lied, “No, I didn’t.

Maybe I accidentally touched it when I put the document on the table.”

Mitchel’s face turned cold. “I had told you not to send documents to my office in person. If you prefer not to heed my words, why not hand me the resignation?”

His tone was flat yet his threat was unmistakable, the tension in the office palatable.

Katie clenched her fists so tightly that her nails dug into the palms of her hands. But she still maintained her smile when she said, "Okay, I'll keep it in mind."

Then, she started to walk out of Mitchel's office with a facade of grace.

Once out of Mitchel's office, Katie's expression darkened, her aura chilly.

While walking along the corridor, one employee who passed by Katie accidentally bumped into her. Katie grabbed the employee's arm and scolded, "Are you blind? Why didn't you see me? How dare you bump into me!"

Katie's fingernails almost dug into the employee's arm. The employee was in so much pain that she almost cried.

Seeing the furious Katie, the employee's face turned pale with fright.

She quickly apologized, "Miss Glyn, I'm sorry. I'm so sorry..."

The employee was puzzled. Katie had always been gentle. Why the sudden ferocious look?

Before long, Katie realized her loss of control. She withdrew her hand and returned to her usual gentle and dignified look. "It's all right. But be more careful next time." With that, she left.

The employee was so stunned that it took her a while to come back to her senses. After sending the documents, the employee went to the lounge to check her arm. The red marks left by Katie's fingernails were conspicuous. There were even faint bloodstains. When she moved her arm, her face turned pale in pain.

At this moment, a colleague came in. Seeing the former's bruised arm, she asked with a frown, "What happened to you?"

The employee was about to say something but stopped. Katie had been known for her gentle demeanor in the company for several years. Few would buy her words, even if she told the truth. She'd better keep it to herself. The less trouble, the better.

The employee rolled down her sleeve and said hesitantly, "It's nothing. I was bitten by some bugs."

As soon as Katie got in the car, she dialed a number. She ordered coldly, "Find Lauren."

Chapter 1205

---

After the incident at the press conference, Lauren had been banned by some rich ladies for her past wrongdoings.

But Lauren was smart. She sneaked out of the hospital and disappeared into thin air after receiving medical treatment. No one knew where she was now.

Those rich ladies had announced that anyone who found Lauren would have a hefty reward. In their eyes, Lauren was a slut. Lauren scammed their money while hooking up with their husbands. For them, it was unforgivable. So, when they found Lauren, they would definitely teach her a good lesson.

"As soon as you find her, bring her to me." Katie then hung up the phone. Her expression darkened. Truth be told, Lauren owed Katie. Katie was the one who had advised Lauren to turn to Alexis for help when Mitchel targeted Lauren.

After Lauren told Alexis about what Kyle had gathered which served to be a trump card in exchange for Alexis' help, Kyle soon his demise.

At that time, Mitchel was heartbroken and depressed because of Raegan's disappearance. Thus, he was easily defeated by Alexis.

Everything that had happened was within Katie's expectations. She just wanted Mitchel to feel surrounded by enemies. That way, her timely support and warm company would become particularly valuable.

She hoped to win Mitchel over in this manner.

Katie had orchestrated everything for years. Just as she assumed things seemed to have her way, Raegan came back alive. Everything changed.

Mitchel's demeanor and words indicated his desire to kick Katie out of the picture. Katie didn't want to accept this.

For the last five years, Katie had been putting up with Mitchel. She always kept herself lowly in front of him. But in the end, she still failed to make Mitchel fall for her. Never in this life could she accept this outcome.

Back then, Mitchel's mother, Luciana, was the very one who begged Katie to be the vice president of the Dixon Group, wanting to keep the situation in check.

After having beaten Mitchel and seized control of the Dixon Group, Alexis had sacked almost all employees loyal to Mitchel. Luciana was left with no choice but to ask the Glyn family for help. Therefore, taking advantage of the situation, the Glyn family invested in a grand project worth billions of dollars into the Dixon Group and appointed Katie as the vice president. By doing so, it could consolidate Mitchel's position in the company while making a fortune through it.

For the Glyn family's help, Luciana had promised that she would help set Katie and Mitchel up.

Yet, now that Mitchel finally turned the table, he immediately wanted to kick Katie out of the picture.

How could Katie accept this while doing so many things without earning her desired outcome?

With a poker face, Katie ordered the driver, "Go to the Dixon family's residence." Katie aimed to force Luciana to fulfill her promises.

Mitchel had just finished dealing with some urgent documents. At this moment, he turned on his phone. Then, a voice message popped up. It was from Janey.

Janey had saved her number on his phone when they exchanged numbers last time.

Mitchel pressed the button to Listen to the voice message. "You're an evil guy! A big liar! I hate you! You are no longer my Daddy Mitchel!"

Mitchel's brows furrowed. He was a little confused. He immediately called Janey, but he couldn't get through.

Mitchel had experienced this several times. His number must have been blocked by Janey.

Mitchel had no choice but to call Raegan. But to his dismay, he couldn't get through either. He shook his head and smiled bitterly.

Raegan and Janey had the same temper. Indeed, they were mother and daughter.

Mitchel turned to Matteo and ordered, "Check whether Raegan is with Janey at the moment."

"They are together," Matteo answered hesitantly.

Mitchel raised his eyebrows. "You've already checked?"

Matteo felt a bit embarrassed. Of course, he was sure about it.

After all, he and Raegan were friends on social media.

Just now, Raegan uploaded a photo of her and Janey in the amusement park. Actually, there were three people in the photo. Stefan was with Raegan and Janey.

When Matteo saw the photo, he was flustered. If Mitchel found out about it, he wouldn't be this calm.

Matteo didn't want to tell Mitchel yet. However, Mitchel noticed the hesitation on Matteo's face and questioned, "What's going on?"

Matteo didn't dare to defy Mitchel. He said in a low voice, "Mr. Dixon, Miss Foster and Janey are in the amusement park now."

"How did you know?"

"Miss Foster just uploaded some photos on her social account."

Mitchel's frown deepened. "Give me your phone."

Matteo browsed through the photos and specially picked one with only Raegan and Janey on it before handing his phone to Mitchel.

While staring at the photo, Mitchel asked indifferently, "Why do you have Raegan's account?"

Matteo broke out a cold sweat and replied, "I added her a long time ago."

Mitchel swiped his index finger, and the next photo appeared on the screen. This time, Stefan was with Raegan and Janey. Stefan carried Janey on his shoulder while standing next to a robot with Raegan.

Mitchel's handsome face darkened at once. He was still waiting for Raegan to invite him to the amusement park with them. It turned out that she had already gone there with Stefan.

Suddenly, Mitchel ordered indifferently, "Get the car ready."

"Mr. Dixon, where are you going?" Matteo asked in confusion.

Mitchel replied coldly, "To the amusement park."

Laughter and joy permeated the air of the amusement park, creating an atmosphere of unbridled happiness.

As the parade was drawing to a close, Stefan gently hoisted Janey onto his shoulders, making sure they kept pace alongside the final float.

overshadow any of the unpleasant memories she had from her day at kindergarten.

Raegan, observing the pure happiness on her daughter's face, couldn't resist smiling sincerely herself.

The fading light of the evening cast a soft, glowing aura around Raegan, enhancing her natural beauty and giving her an almost otherworldly appearance.

Janey's adorable charm, Stefan's charismatic elegance, and Raegan's stunning appearance collectively created an enchanting trio that captured the gaze of bystanders. Those passing by couldn't resist admiring them with looks of amazement.

A foreign tourist approached them and politely asked, "Hello, may I take a photo of you three?"

Seeing Stefan's surprised face, the tourist quickly explained, "You three look like the most beautiful family I've ever seen. It's just too beautiful, how you all are together."

"Actually, we're not a couple," Raegan clarified immediately.

"Wait... You're not?"

"No, we're not. He's my friend, and I've always considered him like a brother," said Raegan.

"Is that so?" the tourist said, sounding a bit disappointed. "Can I still take a photo of you?"

Stefan glanced at Raegan, whispering, "Is this alright?"

Stefan was honestly hoping to have a keepsake photo, but he was worried Raegan might feel awkward.

Raegan, seeing no issue with it, especially with Janey's keen interest in taking photos, simply nodded and said, "Sure."

The tourist then took a few steps back and began capturing them in a series of shots.

Shortly after, the tourist presented Raegan with a Polaroid that had just printed from his camera.

It turned out the tourist was a skilled photographer. The photos looked incredible.

The tourist then gave Stefan another photo a little later. After receiving the photo, Stefan heard the tourist say, "Buddy, surely you see her as more than just a friend?"

Puzzled by this remark, Stefan responded, "Excuse me?"

"Check out this photo," the tourist said, passing the picture to Stefan.

The photo showed Raegan and Janey smiling at the camera, with Stefan looking affectionately at Raegan. Indeed, it beautifully captured that fleeting moment of affection.

The tourist remarked, "Your gaze toward her isn't like that of a brother to a sister, but more like a man admiring a woman."

Stefan, with a light laugh, replied, "I'm afraid you've got it wrong."

"But eyes reveal the truth," the tourist said, offering a knowing smile. "You'll see what I mean once you acknowledge your true feelings."

After the tourist walked away, Stefan studied the photo, pausing to reflect. He then smiled softly and slipped the photo into his pocket.

Not far away, Mitchel had hurried over as soon as he finished his tasks, just in time to see the scene unfold. His expression darkened with jealousy.

While Raegan was preoccupied with Janey and Stefan with Raegan, none of them noticed Mitchel's intense gaze. It seemed as if the only thing in their world was each other.

For Mitchel, this moment sparked an unprecedented feeling of urgency.

He had thought that all would be well once Raegan came back, willing to do whatever necessary for her happiness.

But having been confronted with this scene, he realized such acceptance was beyond him.

It dawned on him that this scenario would only lead to his own heartache.

Seeing Raegan in the arms of another was excruciating for Mitchel, a torment far surpassing any other kind of suffering.

His eyes were fixed on Raegan's figure, observing the trio that seemed to embody a perfect family unit. Each moment watching them made his heart ache more sharply.

Matteo, catching sight of Mitchel's darkening face, felt a wave of unease wash over him. "Mr. Dixon, remember, we're in a public space.

Please stay calm and not cause a scene," he cautioned.

Mitchel's response was a tight frown, closing his lips firmly. He found Matteo's reminder unnecessary. Self-control was already something that he planned to do. After all, with Janey present, the last thing Mitchel wanted was to scare her.

The enchanting day at the amusement park drew to a close, marking the end of their whimsical escapades.

Janey, succumbing to her exhaustion, nestled against Stefan's shoulder, drifting into a peaceful slumber.

People filling the exit, Stefan, with Janey cradled in his arms, trailed slightly ahead of Raegan, vigilantly navigating through the dispersing visitors to keep her safe from the hustle.

Upon reaching the parking lot, Annis relieved Stefan of his burden, taking Janey into her arms, while he went to retrieve the vehicle.

Annis watched Stefan's protective demeanor toward Raegan, her eyes twinkling with amusement. "Stefan seems quite fond of you. His kindness and affection, particularly toward Janey, are apparent.

Maybe you should think about giving him a chance."

Shaking her head, Raegan responded, "Annis, I believe you're seeing something that isn't there. Stefan and I are just friends."

"Did I read it wrong?" Annis asked in confusion.

"Perhaps. Oh, look, the car's arrived. Let's hop in." Raegan graciously opened the car door, allowing Annis to enter first before they set off toward home.

Upon their arrival, Annis, ever the caretaker, whisked Janey inside, while Raegan lingered by the car to exchange farewells with Stefan.

As Stefan's vehicle disappeared into the night, Raegan turned to enter the house.

That was when the sudden blaze of headlights cut through the darkness, arresting Raegan's movement.

Out of the light emerged Mitchel, his features etched with seriousness, advancing toward Raegan with determined strides.

---

Caught off guard, Raegan made a futile attempt to run indoors, only to be swiftly intercepted by Mitchel. He grasped her wrist, halting her retreat.

And before Raegan could process the moment, Raegan found herself pulled into Mitchel's embrace. "Let go of me!" Raegan cried out. She fought with all her might, utterly disgusted by his actions. She didn't forget Katie's words. In her eyes, a man with a fiancée had no right to harass another woman.

It was unforgivable.

Raegan found Mitchel repulsive, but Mitchel's strength made her struggles futile. Despite her best efforts, he remained unfazed.

Seeing that her struggles had no effect, Raegan resorted to kicking, biting, and punching his arms. She did everything she could just so she could escape.

However, Mitchel acted as if he didn't feel the pain, effortlessly lifting her into the car and securely locking the doors.

"Ma'am!" Victor emerged from the darkness, rushing toward the car, ready to shatter the window.

"Bang!" The window produced an ear-splitting sound.

If it had been an ordinary window, it would have shattered, but this car was equipped with bulletproof glass.

() 's ()

Victor raised her fist for a second strike, only to have her wrist grabbed by someone.

Matteo was the one who had grabbed Victor's wrist, and he was thrown to the ground by her with surprising ease.

Matteo was shocked that Victor managed to easily throw him to the ground. It was at that moment that he realized just how powerful she truly was.

Matteo gasped for breath and managed to say, "Don't worry. Mr. Dixon is Miss Foster's husband!"

"What are you talking about? He's nothing but a kidnapper!" Victor retorted firmly as she reached for her phone to dial the police, but Matteo snatched it away.

"Listen to me, Mr. Dixon is indeed her husband. You can confirm it with her brother if you don't believe me."

"Is Dixon the last name of the kidnapper?" Victor inquired sharply.

"He's not a kidnapper!" Matteo struggled to explain, "Mr. Dixon just needs to speak with her. He won't harm her. You can trust him completely."

Victor responded coldly, "I've got clear instructions that Dixon guy is not allowed near Miss Foster."

Erick had explicitly instructed Victor to drive the Dixons away from Raegan. Not only did Mitchel's appearance match the description, but so did his last name.

Meanwhile, Mitchel's black car started moving. Without hesitation, Victor chased after it. Matteo stood there, utterly stunned. He couldn't believe how fast she was going. She was almost catching up with the car.

After running a short distance, Victor turned back, and this time, she addressed Matteo with more courtesy, "Hey there."

Matteo tried to reassure Victor that there was no need to worry.

Chapter 1210

However, the next moment, Victor brandished a sharp knife, holding it pointed at Matteo's neck. "Follow the car! I need to see Miss Foster!"

Matteo remained silent. Victor's politeness didn't last long.

Matteo's background in the special forces had honed his combat skills, making him proficient in hand-to-hand combat. However, in this instance, he had mistaken Victor for Raegan's assistant, so he made the mistake of letting his guard down.

His reflexes kicked in as he grasped the dagger with his fingers and simultaneously swerved his head to evade the attack.

Witnessing Matteo's combat skills, Victor became vigilant and launched herself at him.

Victor's every move was calculated to subdue her opponent. On the other hand, Matteo, considering his opponent was Raegan's bodyguard, refrained from delivering fatal blows and held back to some extent.

After a few rounds, Matteo found it challenging to fight. He aimed to best his opponent without killing her. It was an ordeal for him.

"Stop! I'll take you to her!" Matteo said while panting.

Matteo was aware of the reason Mitchel had whisked Raegan away. Not wanting Victor to worry about Raegan and potentially report to Erick, Matteo opted for a compromise. He agreed to take Victor to Raegan.

In a luxury vehicle, the driver raised the partition to provide privacy.

Raegan reclined in her seat, her face contorted with anger. Thinking of Katie's phone call and that annoyingly haughty tone, she found it increasingly difficult to contain her fury. How she wished she could put an end to the overbearing Mitchel right then and there.

At this point, Raegan had no desire to engage in conversation with Mitchel. Her indignation was so intense that she wanted to exit the vehicle as soon as possible.

Noticing her intentions, Mitchel leaned forward and rested his arms on both sides of the seat.

"Is it really so hard to spend time with me?" he asked with bitterness in his voice. Why did Raegan appear so content when in the company of other men? And why did she seem so eager to leave the car when they were together?

Hearing his words, Raegan shot him an incredulous look and demanded, "Mr. Dixon, what are you saying?"

"I just want to talk to you."

"Are you out of your mind? Is trapping someone in a car your idea of talking with someone?" Raegan retorted, her voice filled with frustration.

"If I hadn't done this, would you have been willing to listen to me?"

Mitchel couldn't forget how Raegan had quickly turned and fled the moment she laid eyes on him as if she had seen a ghost.

Raegan did had no intention to listen to Mitchel. "I'm warning you, Mitchel. Let me go, or.."

"Why did you go to the amusement park with that man today? I thought we were going to go together," Mitchel cut her off, his voice low and stern.

Raegan could sense an undercurrent of grievance in Mitchel's tone. It irked her that he sounded as if she had cheated on him.

"When did I ever agree to go to the amusement park with you?" It was true that Raegan had agreed to go together if their schedules aligned.

But her reply back then was actually an excuse to turn him down.
