

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4266

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4266-The Unbearable Cost The attack was aimed at the opponent's consciousness field, so no matter how sturdy the statue was, it couldn't withstand the power of the Demon Flogger!

"I didn't expect you to have the Demon Flogger, but even so, I'm not afraid!" Ventus said with utter confidence.

Kai swung the whip fiercely.

Crack!

The whip lashed against Ventus, but nothing happened.

The array runes on the statue's body flickered, blocking the Demon Flogger's attack.

Kai was shocked. He hadn't expected the array runes on the statue to even resist the power of the Demon Flogger!

"If the Demon Flogger won't work, let's see how you handle my Dragonslayer Sword..." Kai roared in anger as he drew his sword and struck.

The air was filled with the roar of a dragon as a sword light slashed toward Ventus.

However, the moment the light made contact with the statue, it dissipated instantly, shattered by the array runes.

"Sacred Light Fist..." "Thunder Palm..." Kai unleashed all his strongest techniques, yet none of them harmed Ventus in the slightest.

The array runes on the statue were simply too powerful, leaving Kai at a loss.

Witnessing this, Wyatt and the like were equally terrified.

All the moves Kai had used just now were powerful enough to reach the level of an Ultimate Realm cultivator, yet they didn't even shake Ventus.

If even Kai's attacks couldn't harm him, how could the rest of them hope to stand a chance?

"Hahaha, you ants! With just a stomp, I can make sure all of you meet a tragic end!" Ventus cackled, his arrogance soaring.

"Mr. Chance, why don't you take the others and escape? I'll lead the alchemists to hold Ventus off!" Wyatt leaped to Kai's side, intending to let him flee while he covered for them.

Their lives had all been saved by Kai. Wyatt was willing to sacrifice himself to buy time for Kai's escape.

Kai shook his head. "None of us can escape. We're too far from the mainland.

The only way to survive is to kill Ventus." Wyatt sighed deeply. "If only we'd killed him earlier!" "Don't worry too much, President Chance. We'll figure out a way to deal with Ventus," Kai reassured him.

Kai hadn't yet used all of his methods.

He still had the Divine Bow and the Dragon Bell. He hadn't even tapped into those powers.

And even if those couldn't subdue Ventus, Kai had the little Celestial Devourer in his storage ring.

If the beast awoke, it might just devour Ventus.

If all else failed, Kai could always rely on the Vermilion Demon Lord to possess him again. Kanwas O m confident that the Vermilion Demon Lord would be able to handle the statue.

"Kid, use whatever tricks you have left. If you don't have any, I won't waste more time-i'll kill all of you and feed you to the fish!" Ventus taunted arrogantly.

"Mr. Vermilion, if you possessed me again, could you break the statue and kill this guy?" Kai asked the Vermilion Demon Lord.

Of course I could. I could crush him with a single slap. But if I do that, your physical body will be destroyed.

You won't survive the force. If your body 'is destroyed, I'll disappear too leaving you with nothing but a shattered soul. You can bear the price, but I can't," the Vermilion Demon Lord said,

Kai fell silent. The price of losing his physical body was too high.

While the Vermilion Demon Lord could indeed destroy Ventus, the stronger the opponent, the more devastating his attack would be.

Kai's body couldn't handle such power and would surely explode.

Faced with this dilemma, Kai was truly at an impasse.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4267

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4267-Such Shamelessness "The array runes that guy used just now seem familiar to me. I feel like I've encountered them somewhere before. Why don't you use the Nethersky Eye to take a closer look? You might be able to find a way to break the array. This statue is made up of tens of thousands of array runes. If you break the runes, the statue will be useless!" suggested the Vermilion Demon Lord.

"Yeah, I also felt something familiar just now, but I can't recall it at the moment," Kai replied, then activated the Nethersky Eye.

The world before him immediately turned gray.

Seeing Kai like this, Ventus snorted coldly. "So, you want to analyze the array runes on the statue and then break them, huh? Let me tell you, you're wasting your time. This statue is built from tens of thousands of array runes. Even if you were lucky enough to break one, what difference would it make? And you won't even break one. These runes were passed down directly by Elder Hellion himself." Ventus looked arrogant, showing no fear of Kai's probing and not making any effort to stop him.

Hearing this, Kai deactivated the Nethersky Eye and cursed, "D*mn it. No wonder it felt familiar. But there's no way these runes were directly passed down by Hellion. Something doesn't add up. These runes aren't even a tenth of his power. It's obvious these have been passed down through who knows how many generations, and you lot are treating them like some precious treasure.

Direct inheritance from Hellion, my ass. Let me show you what the real deal looks like.” When Kai heard that the runes came from Hellion, he couldn’t help but laugh.

Kai had learned divine markings from Divinus and array runes from Hellion in person.

He had even combined their teachings. This statue was nothing more than a cheap knockoff, made by some of Hellion’s distant disciples.

If Kai had realized earlier that it was Hellion’s array runes, Ventus wouldn’t have been able to flaunt for so long.

“Stop bluffing! How could a nobody like you know Elder Hellion’s runes? He’s a figure from the celestial realm. You, a mere Sixth Level Tribulator, couldn’t possibly have been to the heavens!” Ventus couldn’t believe that Kai had access to Hellion’s array runes.

What he didn’t know was that Hellion didn’t go to celestial realm but had been trapped in the Ethereal Realm this whole time!

“Believe it or not, you’ll see for yourself,” Kai replied calmly with a slight smile, tracing a rune in the air with his finger.

An array rune slowly materialized and floated toward Ventus.

Seeing the rune drift toward him, Ventus made no attempt to dodge.

He didn’t believe that a casually drawn rune from Kai could break through the tens of thousands of runes on his statue.

The rune Kai traced landed gently on Ventus.

Ventus felt nothing, and the enormous statue didn’t seem to change.

“Hahaha! Is this what you call Elder Hellion’s real array runes?” Ventus laughed wildly, his eyes filled with scorn and contempt.

Kai merely smiled, remaining silent.

However, soon, Ventus’ laughter abruptly ceased.

The array runes on the statue began to flicker, and one by one, they started to disappear.

As the runes vanished, the enormous statue began to collapse.

At the same time, Ventus' true form, hidden inside the statue, started to emerge.

W-What's happening? Impossible!

How could you know Elgeremich's arcane runes?"

Ventus desperately tried every method he knew to stop the statue from collapsing and to keep the array runes from disappearing, but nothing worked.

Within just a few breaths, all tens of thousands of array runes were broken and vanished completely.

The massive statue disappeared, leaving no trace of it behind—not even a fragment.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4268

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4268-The Farewell Ventus' body was fully exposed in front of everyone, his eyes wide open, and his face filled with terror.

He simply couldn't understand how Kai managed to destroy all the array runes on the statue, which numbered in the tens of thousands.

Could this guy really be a direct disciple of Elder Hellion?

Ventus clearly didn't believe it. Kai was so young and couldn't possibly be Hellion's direct disciple.

Besides, Elder Hellion was supposed to be in the celestial realm!

Even the first sect leader of the Sky Slasher Sect was nothing more than a disciple's disciple of Hellion, and countless generations had passed since then.

Ventus had only claimed that the array runes on the statue were directly passed down by Hellion to make the statue seem more impressive.

In truth, the first sect leader of the Sky Slasher Sect had probably never met Hellion, let alone received his direct teachings!

“How... How did you manage to do it?” Ventus asked Kai, disbelief plastered across his face.

“I already told you, my array runes are the real ones directly passed down from Hellion. What you did was like teaching a fish to swim! Not only do I have Hellion’s array runes, but I also have divine markings.” After speaking, Kai traced his finger in the air, and a divine marking appeared.

The divine marking floated toward Ventus, forming a net-like arcane array in mid-air.

Seeing this, Ventus was terrified. He tried to flee, but no matter how hard he ran, the divine markings array followed him relentlessly.

Soon, Ventus was completely enveloped by the arcane array, his body feeling as though it had fallen into a pit of molten lava, the searing sensation no less painful than being burned by the purest flames.

“Ah!” Ventus screamed, his body convulsing violently.

“Please, spare me! I’ll be at your beck and call...” Ventus begged Kai for mercy.

Kai remained unmoved. He had already been tricked by Ventus once and wasn’t about to fall into the same trap again.

No matter how much Ventus pleaded, Kai stayed indifferent.

In the end, Ventus was burned alive by the divine markings array, his entire body reduced to a dried-out corpse.

With a wave of Kai’s hand, the formation dissipated, and Ventus’ body fell into the sea, where it was immediately devoured by demon beasts in the sea.

The Sky Slasher Sect’s leader was dead, just like that.

From this point on, there would be no more Sky Slasher Sect in the Ethereal Realm.

After eliminating Ventus, Kai descended slowly back onto the island. Looking at the many wounded alchemists, Kai said, "President Chance, I suggest we rest here on this island for a few days until everyone's injuries have stabilized, and then we can head back on the spirit ship." "Okay, we'll follow your lead in everything." Wyatt nodded.

The group rested on the island for three days before boarding the spirit ship and sailing smoothly back to Epea.

Along the way, the usual storms in the stormy seas were nowhere to be seen.

During those days on the island and the journey back, Kai used the supplementary goldforge stones to significantly enhance his metal nascence.

Once they set foot back on the land of Epea, everyone breathed a collective sigh of relief.

After experiencing such a life-and-death situation, many of the alchemists probably wouldn't dare venture into the deep sea again in their lifetimes.

Mr. Chance, thank you so much for saving our lives this time. We'll be heading back to the central region now. If you ever need anything, don't hesitate to ask!" Wyatt said gratefully to Kai.

Without him, none of the alchemists would've made it back alive.

"Yes, if you ever need our help, just say the word, and we'll do everything we can," the other alchemists chimed in.

They held immense respect for Kai.

'Friends, as fellow alchemists, it's only right that we help each other out. But there is one thing I do need President Chance's help with," Kai said.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4269

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4269-Getting Together In Secret "Mr. Chance, if there's anything you need, just say it!" Wyatt told him.

“President Chance, I hope that once we return to the central region, you can look after the Emerald Cauldron Sect as Viola and Sigurd have both joined the Central Alchemist Guild.” Kai wanted Wyatt to offer some support to the Emerald Cauldron Sect within the medical field.

He couldn't always be by Viola's side, nor could he stay at the Emerald Cauldron Sect for long periods, so having someone take care of the sect in the medical world was necessary.

Wyatt glanced at Viola and then reassured Kai, “Don't worry, Kai. Now that the Northern Alchemist Guild is practically defunct, I will definitely work with the other presidents to recommend Ms. Warwick as the new president of the Northern Alchemist Guild. And I, Wyatt, will vouch for her. Anyone who dares to challenge her can come find me...” Wyatt was well-known in the alchemy world. Otherwise, he wouldn't have become the president of Central Alchemist Guild.

“I can vouch as well...” At that moment, Ernesto also stepped forward.

As a member of one of the four great families in Yannopolis, the Boucher family held considerable influence in the medical field.

Ernesto was eager to curry favor with Kai after witnessing his prowess throughout the journey.

“Thank you both!” Kai expressed his gratitude and then turned to Viola.

“Viola, you should return to the central region with President Chance and the others first, and then head back to the Emerald Cauldron Sect. Once I've taken care of everything, I'll come find you at the sect.” Kai didn't want Viola following him around. He still had a lot of matters to deal with, and with her current strength, it would be far too dangerous for her to stay by his side.

Especially with his upcoming duel with Aiden fast approaching, while he didn't fear a cultivator in Ultimate Realm Level One, it didn't mean he could currently contend with the entire Mueller family.

Kai needed to continue raising his own power to ensure he could protect the women close to him.

With the Demon Seal Alliance constantly keeping an eye on him, Kai couldn't afford to have Viola by his side.

“Kai, I know you have a lot to take care of right now. I wouldn’t be much help, and I might even become a burden. But don’t worry, I’ll work hard to improve myself and become your strong support!” Viola clutched Kai’s hand, clearly reluctant to part.

After all, who knew how long it would be before they could see each other again?

“Sigurd, you must look after Ms. Viola on this journey, understand?” Kai instructed Sigurd.

“Don’t worry, Mr. Chance. I’d give my life to ensure no harm comes to Ms. Viola,” Sigurd promised.

“We can also protect Ms. Viola along the way. We hope to join the Emerald Cauldron Sect as well.” At that moment, Felipe and Freya stepped forward.

They intended to join the Emerald Cauldron Sect under Viola’s leadership.

But in truth, it wasn’t the sect that attracted them-it was Kai With kai backing the Emerald Cauldron Sect, its future was boundless.

Kai glanced at Viola. Since this was a matter involving her sect, it wasn’t his place to decide. After all, Viola was the sect leader.

Before Viola could respond, Sigurd spoke up. “Ms. Viola, I think you should let the two of them join. After all, they’ve had a tough time, and they aren’t bad people at heart.”

After saying this, Sigurd sneaked a glance at Freya, who immediately lowered her head and bit her lip.

Kai could tell right away-Sigurd and Freya had something going on even though it wasn’t clear when the two had started their relationship.

No wonder Sigurd was speaking up for them. Kai could also see that Felipe and Freya weren’t bad people at heart.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4270

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4270-Evading Capture “Since Sigurd has already spoken, let’s just let them tag along,” Kai said as he finally broke his silence.

Viola nodded, agreeing. “All right, let them follow.” Kai personally saw off Wyatt and his group as they left via the Teleportation Array. Although Viola seemed reluctant to part ways, she still went with them.

The other alchemists had returned to their homes, while Kai followed Winona and Hartwin back to the Zeever residence.

Catina, Feenix, and Cloud were anxiously waiting for him, worried if he had been in danger. Halfway through the journey, Dylan and the others had turned back while Kai and his group pursued Thaddeus.

For days, there was no news, and they couldn’t even reach Kai through the communication device. Naturally, everyone was concerned. But as soon as they saw him return, safe and sound, a wave of relief and joy washed over them.

Meanwhile, Dylan was engaged in conversation with Winona and Hartwin in the main hall of the Zeever residence.

From their talk, he learned that the deep-sea journey had been dangerous for all involved, but risks often come with rewards.

Both Winona and Hartwin had managed to secure various resources from Sky Slasher Sect, especially the beast cores. Hartwin’s item pouch was almost bursting at the seams.

“Kai seems to be no ordinary man,” Dylan remarked in astonishment. “Not only is his medical skill remarkable, but he also understands divine markings arrays and possesses internal flame and divine powers.” Winona and Hartwin’s stories had truly amazed Dylan.

“It’s not just that,” he added. “Every weapon he carries is a valuable treasure.

There’s no doubt that Kai harbors secrets that others don’t know about.” Throughout their journey, Hartwin had carefully observed Kai, realizing that he was much more than what others perceived.

“Now that Thaddeus is gone, the position of president of the Epean Alchemist Guild is open. We’ll have to personally select a successor. We can’t let something like this happen again,” Dylan stated.

Every time he thought about Thaddeus’ plot, a chill ran down his spine. They had almost lost their lives—every single alchemist among them.

“Yes, we need someone trustworthy,” Hartwin agreed. “But it has to be someone from outside the four great families to avoid conflict.” Dylan nodded, saying with affection, “Mr. Bellamy, I think you’re the best choice for this position. In the entire alchemy world of Epea, who would dare challenge you? Even the four great families of Yannopolis wouldn’t think to defy you.” He had already decided to recommend Hartwin for the position of president.

After all, Hartwin was practically like family to him.

However, Hartwin quickly dismissed the idea, waving his hands. “No, no, no. I’m used to living carefree. I don’t want to be president.” “It has to be you!” Dylan insisted. “I’ll bring it up at the meeting in a couple of days.” As the two continued their back-and-forth, Winona interrupted impatiently, “All right, enough about the president issue. We’ll discuss it later. By the way, Dylan, when I got back, I heard someone from Allardland visited. What were they here for?”

When they returned, they had learned from Heidi that someone from m Allardland had been staying at the Zeever residence for several days.

“Oh, King Bernard sent someone to summon Kai,” Dylan replied.

“Is it because he successfully treated Prince Cedric?” Winona asked, curious.

No, not exactly,” Dylan explained. “A number of spirit beasts In Allardland have fallen seriously ill. They want Kai to help treat them (Since Fa IT wasn’t around, the envoy stayed at our residence. Now that you’re back, I’ll send for Kai shortly. The spirit beasts are sick, but they could’ve asked for any other alchemist for the task. It seems King Bernard trusts Kal alone.

“But Kai’s skills are beyond what we can compare to,” Hartwin said.

Indeed,” Dylan agreed. “I’ll invite him personally, and if possible, we’ll see if he’ll takelus with him to Allardland.

It'll be a great learning experience.