

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4271

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4271-A Lesson Learned “Let’s go. We’ll go with you,” Hartwin said as he stood up.

Winona also rose, and the three of them headed toward the courtyard house where Kai was.

At that moment, Kai was inside, playing games with Catina and Feenix. As soon as he had returned, the two women had pulled him into the room. Kai was caught off guard but knew they cared deeply for him, so he went along with it.

“Mr. Chance, Mr. Zeever is here and waiting for you in the living room,” Cloud said softly as he approached the door, hearing the laughter and chatter from inside.

Hearing this, Kai quickly straightened his clothes and hurried out of the room.

After all, he was a guest in the Zeever residence, and with Dylan personally coming to see him, he couldn’t delay.

Following Cloud into the living room, he saw Dylan, along with Winona and Hartwin, waiting for him. “Mr. Zeever, why have you called for me?” Kai asked politely.

Dylan smiled. “Youth sure is great. Mr. Chance, you’ve just returned and aren’t even resting yet?” Both Winona and Hartwin chuckled. They had sharp enough senses to hear what had been going on in Kai’s room.

Kai, slightly embarrassed, said, “Ah, there’s nothing else I could do, just going through the motions.” Dylan continued, “Mr. Chance, a couple of days ago, people from Allardland came looking for you. Since you weren’t around, they stayed at the residence.” “Someone from Allardland? Has Prince Cedric fallen ill again?” Kai asked, surprised.

“No, it’s not that. Several spirit beasts under Allardland’s care have become gravely ill. They want you to come take a look.” “Oh, that’s all?” Kai shrugged.

"I was planning to head to Allardland anyway. The immortal's bone that King Bernard promised me hasn't been delivered yet." He wanted to see if the immortal's bone was truly the remains of the Vermilion Demon Lord.

"Perfect. I'll go with you to meet the people from Allardland," Dylan said, standing up. "By the way, could you take us along? We'd love to gain some experience." "Of course," Kai agreed. "I'll speak to the Allardland representatives and figure it out." Dylan was relieved that Kai was willing to let them join. Kai, unfamiliar with Allardland, might need their guidance if anything came up.

Overjoyed, Dylan led Kai to meet the envoy. Bernard had sent a middle-aged man, an Ultimate Realm expert named Ezequiel Yorba.

"Mr. Yorba, this is Kai, the man you've been seeking," Dylan said respectfully as they approached.

The middle-aged man turned toward Kai and greeted him, "Good day, Mr.

Chance. I am Ezequiel Yorba, the prime minister of Allardland. I've come on behalf of His Majesty, the King Bernard to invite you to Allardland."

Kai quickly assessed Ezequiel.

Despite his youth, he had already reached Ultimate Realm Level Two, which explained why he was the prime minister.

"Mr. Yorba," Kai said, "Would it be all right if Mr. Zeever and the others joined me on this trip?"

Certainly, as long as you're coming, there's no problem with others Joining, Nožequiet replied graciously.

"All right then, let me go inform Catina and Feenix of our departure," Kai said.

He knew he couldn't just slip away unnoticed. The two women would be upset with him once again if he did.

Kai was starting to feel the strain of dealing with these two strong-willed women. It was a lesson learned, indeed.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4272

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4272-Utterly Astonishing After bidding their farewells, Kai, along with Dylan and the others, followed Ezequiel toward Allardland.

They were seated inside a grand carriage, pulled by eight magnificent spirit beasts known as flying tiger beasts. Each creature had enormous wings but the body of a tiger, making them a fearsome and majestic sight.

“Mr. Yorba, does Allardland really nurture so many spirit beasts?” Kai asked curiously.

It was well known that raising spirit beasts was costly and required a tremendous amount of resources. Many cultivators could barely sustain their own needs, let alone care for a spiritual beast.

Even among the larger sects, only a few people kept them due to the high maintenance costs. Yet, here in Allardland, spirit beasts were used for tasks as simple as pulling carriages. It spoke volumes about the wealth and prosperity of the land.

“It’s not that many,” Ezequiel replied modestly. “But considering the vast size of Allardland, spirit beasts are required in many places. We probably have a few thousand spirit beasts by now.” “A few thousand?” Kai was startled, and even Dylan and the others were visibly shocked. Maintaining thousands of spirit beasts was a huge burden, one that most powers in the Ethereal Realm could never afford.

Sensing Kai’s surprise, Ezequiel quickly clarified, “No need to worry, Mr.

Chance. Only a few dozen of them have fallen ill, not all of them.” He had initially thought Kai might be daunted by the sheer number of spirit beasts in Allardland. After all, even if Kai had unparalleled medical skills, treating thousands of creatures would be exhausting.

“Mr. Yorba, if I may ask, what kind of ailments are these spirit beasts suffering from?” Kai asked, wanting to get a sense of the situation ahead of time.

“The symptoms are varied,” Ezequiel explained. “It’s difficult for me to describe them all. You’ll have to see for yourself when we arrive.” “All right.” Kai nodded and chose not to press further.

The flying tiger beasts pulled the carriage swiftly through the sky. After nearly a full day’s travel, they finally approached a grand and imposing city. Kai looked down at the massive city, astonished by its sheer size and magnificence.

“Is this Allardland?” Kai asked in amazement.

“This is one of the capital cities of Allardland, Wusteria,” Ezequiel replied. “In fact, we’ve been within Allardland’s borders for quite some time. The Allardland region is vast, and it contains a hundred and seventy-two capital cities!” Kai could hardly believe it. He had heard tales of Allardland’s power, but seeing it firsthand left him in awe.

As they descended toward Wusteria, Kai noticed something else—there were intricate arcane arrays surrounding the entire city. It was clear that Allardland had many powerful array masters and alchemists.

But if they also had alchemists, why had they failed to treat the sick spirit beasts? This only deepened Kai’s curiosity.

The flying tiger beasts landed gracefully at the city gates, and upon seeing the carriage, the guards immediately opened the gates with great respect.

Inside the city, townsfolk promptly cleared the path, standing still, frozen in place as the carriage passed by.

Kai glanced around and noticed that even the guards at the gate were Tribulator-level.

Dylan and the others had never seen a city like this before. They realized that in comparison, their own Yannopolis was insignificant.

Even Kai, who had traveled extensively and seen much of the world, was profoundly shaken by the power of Allardland.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4273

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4273-How Strange Wusteria was the largest city Kai had ever seen.

“Mr. Yorba,” Kai asked, still taking in the sight of the people frozen on both sides of the street, “why did everyone stop moving when we entered?” Ezequiel smiled. “It’s a rule in Allardland, designed to prevent assassination attempts. In such a vast empire, there’s always the risk of ill-intentioned individuals. This way, no one is allowed to make a move while we pass through, and any sudden movement would be considered an attack.” Kai was left speechless. While the method seemed harsh, it was undeniably effective. In the mortal world, similar precautions were taken when important figures were on the move, with roads cleared and access restricted. It seemed the Ethereal realm and the mundane world weren’t so different after all.

It was just that everyone in the Ethereal Realm was a spiritual energy cultivator.

With so many of them available, the rarity and demand was significantly diminished.

Soon, they reached the imperial city at the heart of Wusteria. Upon arrival, they had to leave the carriage and continue on foot.

Waiting at the entrance were none other than King Bernard and his son, Cedric.

The fact that they were waiting personally spoke volumes about how much they valued Kai.

“Mr. Chance, you must be tired from your long journey,” Bernard greeted Kai with great politeness, showing no trace of the pride typically associated with royalty.

Cedric stepped forward, bowing deeply. “Mr. Chance, I will never forget the life saving grace you bestowed upon me.” “Your Majesty, Your Highness, you’re too kind,” Kai replied humbly. “I simply did what I could. You’ve already repaid me—it was a transaction, not a favor.” Kai was surprised by the respect and humility shown by Bernard and his son, especially given their status.

Meanwhile, Dylan and his companions looked on enviously, wishing that their Zeever family could one day receive such an honor from Allardland.

“Oh, I almost forgot!” Bernard said, slapping his forehead. “I haven’t given you the immortal’s bone I promised yet. I’ll send someone to fetch it immediately.” “That’s not necessary right now,” Kai quickly responded. “Let’s focus on the sick spirit beasts first. We can handle the immortal’s bone later.” Bernard nodded in agreement. “Very well, I’ll show you to the beasts at once.” It was clear from the way Bernard ignored Dylan and the others that the Zeever family meant little to the mighty Allardland. They were as insignificant as ants in comparison to this majestic empire.

Bernard personally led Kai and the others to a large area beside the imperial city, where many spirit beasts were kept.

“Mr. Chance,” Bernard said, pointing toward one of the courtyards, “the spirit beasts in this area suddenly fell ill. Please take a look.”

Kal surveyed the courtyard and noticed dozens of spirit beasts, but something was off. The creatures appeared lethargic, some of them howling wildly with their eyes glowing red. Others seemed completely unresponsive. The variety of symptoms puzzled Kal.

“Are the other spirit beasts in the nearby areas showing any issues?” Kai asked.

“No,” Bernard replied. “The beasts in the neighboring courtyards are perfectly healthy. They’ve all been fed the same reeburces daily, so we don’t know why only the ones here are affected. We’ve had our best alchemists examine them, but no one can figure out the cause.”

Kal frowned, “How strange. If they’re all consuming the same resources why are only these spirit beasts getting sick? Could it be some kind of Infection? But these creatures aren’t even the same species, so how could they all be affected by the same illness?”

He turned to Dylan and Hartwin. “Have you two noticed anything unusual?” he asked, hoping for some fresh insight.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4274

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4274-What Is Wrong With Them Dylan and Hartwin both shook their heads, just as confused as Kai about the cause of the illness. If there were issues with the mystical herbs used to feed the creatures, why weren't the other spirit beasts affected?

"Your Majesty, may I take a closer look?" Kai asked, turning to Bernard.

Bernard nodded. "Of course, but Mr. Chance, I must warn you to be cautious.

These sick creatures can be unpredictable and might attack you." "I'll be careful," Kai assured him, signaling for Bernard to open the arcane array.

Once it was open, Kai stepped inside while the others watched from outside, ready for Bernard to open the arcane array again if Kai needed a quick exit.

To everyone's surprise, the spirit beasts didn't attack Kai. They glanced at him but quickly lost interest.

Kai approached one of the sick beasts lying on the ground and gently stroked its head. The creature didn't react, not even lifting its eyelids.

Seeing this, Kai realized the severity of its illness. Normally, such beasts were highly vigilant and would go berserk if a stranger approached, but this one barely acknowledged him.

Kai released a wave of spiritual energy, letting it circulate through the beast, but detected nothing unusual.

Next, he approached a spotted spirit leopard. As he neared it, a low rumbling sound came from the leopard's belly—a clear sign that it was preparing to attack. The leopard's eyes glowed red, and it bared its large fangs at Kai, warning him not to come any closer.

Kai could see that despite the spirit leopard's fearsome appearance, it was in no condition to attack. It was sick, but still fierce enough to threaten him. Ignoring the warning, Kai continued moving closer. The spirit leopard stood up, ready to strike.

"Mr. Chance, be careful! This spirit leopard only listens to me!" Bernard quickly warned.

Even though the beast was ill, its ferocity hadn't completely diminished.

Moreover, its cultivation was at the Tribulator level. If it attacked, it could trigger the other beasts to follow suit, putting Kai in great danger.

“Don’t worry, Your Majesty,” Kai replied calmly. “I just need to investigate what’s wrong with it.” “Then I’ll put the spirit beasts to sleep. That way, you can examine them without risk,” Bernard offered.

“No need,” Kai responded confidently. “If the spirit beasts are unconscious, I won’t be able to properly investigate their condition. This spirit leopard won’t hurt me.”

Dylan and the others watched tensely as Kai moved even closer to the spirit leopard.

Spirit beasts were typically docile compared to wild demon beasts, but that didn’t mean they were harmless strangers. If the leopard went berserk, it could cause a chain reaction with the other creatures, putting Kai in serious danger.

Your Majesty, please activate the arcane array and get Mr. Chance out of there!” Winona urged, fearing for N.O Kai’s safety. She knew that if anything happened to him, Catina would be devastated.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4275

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4275-Chapter 4275 Does Not Have The Nerve “Activating the arcane array now might only enrage the spirit leopard and make things worse,” Bernard warned. “Don’t worry. If Mr. Chance is in real danger, I’ll eliminate these beasts myself.” Bernard’s willingness to slay the valuable spirit beasts to protect Kai showed just how much he valued him.

Taming a spirit beast was no easy feat—it required patience, resources, and time. Losing even one was a great loss for Allardland.

As Kai neared the spirit leopard, the creature’s red eyes gleamed with menace, and it appeared ready to strike. But suddenly, a flicker of fear crossed its blood red eyes.

It sensed something in Kai—an aura of dominance, an aura of a divine beast.

This pressure, like that of a king of all beasts, tamed the once-fierce spirit leopard instantly.

Kai carried within him the Golden Dragon's True Form, the most powerful of the beast race. His Draconian bloodline gave him an authority over all beasts, and when he released just a hint of his Draconian energy, the spirit leopard immediately submitted.

To everyone's astonishment, the once-aggressive spirit leopard dropped to the ground, tail wagging like a harmless pet.

Kai gently stroked the spirit leopard's head again, and this time, it responded by nuzzling against his hand. Kai infused a wave of spiritual energy into the creature, searching for any clues about its condition.

Both Bernard and Dylan were dumbfounded. They had never seen a ferocious beast become so docile in an instant. They had no idea Kai had subdued the creature using his innate power as a descendant of the Draconians.

Kai, however, found nothing unusual about the spirit leopard after his inspection.

This left him puzzled.

If he couldn't identify the cause of the illness, there was no way he could treat it.

The feeding resources weren't the problem, nor was the environment. The handlers assigned to each beast were highly trained, and yet, only the beasts in this particular courtyard were affected.

Kai stepped out of the arcane array, looking slightly troubled. "Your Majesty, I haven't been able to diagnose the illness yet, so I can't treat the creatures. I'll need more time to observe and investigate further." "No problem, Mr. Chance," Bernard said graciously. "You can stay here as long as you need. And as for the immortal's bone, I'll personally escort you to retrieve it when you're ready." Bernard's eyes gleamed with an idea. "In fact, I would love for Mr. Chance to take up permanent residence in Allardland. You would be treated as an honored guest, free to explore the empire as you please. No one would dare hinder you." It was clear that Bernard wanted to keep Kai in Allardland. Having someone of Kai's talents would be an enormous advantage for the dynasty.

Kai smiled politely. "I appreciate the offer, Your Majesty, but I'm used to my freedom. Besides, I have many responsibilities to attend to." He then added, "You should also know that I'm still being hunted by the Demon Seal Alliance. Staying here might bring trouble to Allardland." "Mr. Chance, if you choose to stay here, even the Demon Seal Alliance wouldn't dare set foot in Allardland," Bernard replied confidently, thumping his chest. "I would personally see to it." Alas, Kai shook his head. "I can't. I'm here to help with the spirit beasts, but I need to return to the central region as soon as possible. The Foster family has taken over, and my woman has nowhere to go. I can't leave her to fend for herself."

Hearing this, Bernard's expression darkened. "The Foster Family?" He turned to Ezequiel Mr. Yorba, which of our cities is closest to the Imperial Fox City in the central region?"

Ezequiel quickly responded, "Your Majesty, it's Lofbury where General Quivey is stationed in."

Without hesitation, Bernard commanded, "Send word to General Quivey to obliterate Imperial Fox City."

Obliterate the Foster family and help Mr. Chance reclaim the city!"

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4276

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4276-A Minor Affair Ezequiel was startled by Bernard's command but quickly murmured, "Your Majesty, the Foster family is a member of the Demon Seal Alliance. They—" "I don't care what alliance they belong to," Bernard interrupted coldly. "This is an order. Inform General Quivey that if the Foster family isn't dealt with in five days, he should come to the imperial city and personally apologize!" Bernard's tone carried such certainty that it sent a shudder through Ezequiel, who quickly nodded.

"Understood, I'll issue the order immediately!" With that, he hurried off to carry out the king's command.

Bernard then turned to Kai. "Mr. Chance, feel free to stay here as long as you like. Don't worry about the Foster family; it's a minor affair. They will be taken care of."

Kai, Dylan, and the others looked on in amazement. With just a few words, Bernard had condemned an entire family to downfall. This was the power that came with being a ruler—true strength meant that no challenge could stand in the way.

“Thank you, Your Majesty,” Kai said, offering a respectful bow. He had initially planned to rally forces from the Central Alchemist Guild to reclaim Imperial Fox City and annihilate the Foster family.

But now, it seemed there was no need.

Bernard personally made arrangements for Kai and his group, and not long after, he brought out the immortal’s bone Kai had been seeking.

It was a piece of leg bone, old and hardened, with a translucence as clear as crystal, resembling pure white jade.

The moment Kai held the immortal’s bone, he knew it immediately—it was the skeletal remains of Vermilion Demon Lord.

Inside Kai’s consciousness, Vermilion Demon Lord’s excitement surged. If he could gather all his remains, he could be reborn and no longer confined within Kai’s consciousness field.

At the moment, Vermilion Demon Lord was limited by Kai’s body, unable to fully manifest his strength. But if he could be resurrected, he would undoubtedly seek battle and vengeance, unleashing his power upon the world.

“Your Majesty, may I ask where this immortal’s bone came from?” Kai inquired, curious about the bone’s origin. He hoped that if he learned where it had been found, he might be able to find some more valuable treasures there.

“This was given to me by Blood Bone Sect as a token of gratitude for a favor they asked of me. I don’t know where they acquired it,” Bernard replied honestly.

“Blood Bone Sect?” Kai echoed, unfamiliar with the name.

“Blood Bone Sect is a group of Demonic Cultivators,” Bernard explained. “They practice using human bones and blood and have long operated near the southern region’s Demon Mountain. They collected many immortal bones from the Celestial Battle to use in their cultivation.” He continued, “Years ago, they were hunted down and forced to seek refuge in Allardland. In exchange for our protection, they gave us this immortal’s bone.” Kai’s interest piqued. “Is Blood Bone Sect still here in Allardland?” he asked.

Blood Bone Sect might have more of Vermilion Demon Lord’s remains. If they’re able to gather all of his remains, Vermilion Demon Lord will be resurrected, and all Ethereal Realm shall be under my command then! Demon Seal Alliance, the Mueller family, Inferno Devil, and the likes would be nothing to me! I’ll have Vermilion Demon Lord wipe them out.

However, Bernard shook his head. “They left long ago. After a few decades under our protection, they returned to Demonica Mountain, where most fallen immortals lay.” “Oh,” Kai said, feeling a bit disappointed.

“Mr. Chance, are you after the immortal’s bone for cultivation? While it’s valuable, using it for cultivation isn’t straightforward. It’s best used as a weapon,” Bernard said, noticing Kai’s interest.

Kai smiled. “I was just curious.” After more casual conversation, Bernard excused himself, ensuring a large supply of cultivation resources was delivered to Kai shortly after.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4277

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4277-This Is Too Strange Despite the pile of cultivation resources before him, Kai wasn’t in the mood for training. The unsolved mystery of the spirit beasts’ illness weighed on him.

Lying in bed, he gazed at the moonlight streaming through the window, deep in thought. What could be causing these spirit beasts to fall ill? He had examined them thoroughly, but found no signs of disease.

As Kai tossed and turned, a low, rhythmic sound reached his ears. It was faint but deep, like something stirring from the earth itself. Kai sat up, listening intently, and then slipped out of his room to investigate.

Following the sound, he was surprised to find himself back in the courtyard where the sick spirit beasts were kept. The creatures, bathed in moonlight, appeared terrified. They huddled in corners, letting out mournful howls, clawing at the ground.

Kai frowned. There was nothing visibly wrong in the courtyard, yet the spirit beasts behaved as though they were gripped by fear.

Intrigued, Kai approached the courtyard. The arcane array protecting it was child's play to someone of Kai's skill, and he passed through it easily.

Once inside, the spirit beasts barely reacted to Kai's presence. They continued to huddle in fear, their claws scratching the earth as if trying to burrow into it. Kai crouched down and gently placed his hand on the ground.

The moment his hand touched the earth, a sudden burning sensation surged through him, and he felt the ground tremble faintly beneath his fingers.

Kai quickly stood up, his eyes narrowing. Something was hidden beneath the surface, but he couldn't sense what it was.

He struck the ground twice with his palm, but nothing happened. The earth remained solid, though the spirit beasts grew even more agitated. Kai was now convinced that something was buried deep below.

"Could there be an arcane array hidden underground?" Kai muttered to himself as he began examining the ground more closely. He searched for signs of an arcane array or any array runes, but found nothing. The surface seemed untouched.

"This is too strange..." Kai thought, deep in concentration. As he pondered, the moonlight fully illuminated the courtyard, and to his surprise, faint array runes began to emerge on the ground. They were so faint that they were nearly imperceptible, visible only under the moon's glow.

Kai knelt down to study the array runes. But just as he began to analyze them, the moonlight dimmed, and the runes vanished in an instant.

Looking up at the sky, Kai understood that only when the full moon was at its zenith did the array runes appear. And even then, the window of time was so short that deciphering the formation was almost impossible.

Kai realized that even after all these years, Bernard likely had no idea that such a formation existed in the courtyard. It was highly probable that the spirit beasts' illness was connected to whatever lay beneath this hidden arcane array.

But without the array runes visible, there was little Kai could do, despite his spiritual sense if the array runes couldn't be deciphered, its purpose would remain a mystery, and without understanding it, he couldn't treat the spirit beasts' illness.

Kai considered his options. If he couldn't uncover the secrets of the formation, the only solution might be to move the spirit beasts to another location. In a different environment, their health might gradually improve.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4278

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4278-Fire Unicorn "Hey, brat, haven't you already grasped the concept of divine markings? You can lay them out on the ground. By doing so, you'll provoke a reaction from the existing arcane array, revealing the original array runes!" Vermilion Demon Lord suggested to Kai.

Kai's eyes lit up. "Of course! Why didn't I think of that? I didn't realize you knew so much about arcane arrays too." "After spending so much time inside your consciousness field, I've picked up a thing or two," Vermilion Demon Lord chuckled.

Without delay, Kai began inscribing a divine marking. Though he wasn't sure of the level of the existing arcane array, he put forth his best effort to create the divine markings. If the markings were too simple, they wouldn't be strong enough to provoke the arcane array.

As Kai laid down his divine markings, the ground began to tremble slightly, and the spirit beasts nearby let out low growls. The moment Kai's divine markings touched the earth, the array runes on the ground started glowing brightly, revealing the full extent of the array in clear detail.

Without wasting time, Kai began deciphering the array runes. Within a quarter of an hour, he had cracked the arcane array, showing that despite its concealment, it wasn't particularly high-level.

As soon as the array runes were fully deciphered, the ground beneath Kai gave way, revealing a pitch-black hole. Heat waves surged from the entrance, intensifying the fear in the spirit beasts even more.

After a quick glance, Kai ventured into the cave.

As soon as he stepped inside, the space around him distorted, and to his surprise, he found himself in an entirely different dimension. It wasn't underground but a separate dimension, specifically created by the arcane array.

The space wasn't vast, but the heat was overwhelming, as if he had stepped into a blazing furnace. Fortunately, Kai had fire nascence and extremus frost flame within him, so he wasn't bothered by the heat.

Scanning his surroundings, Kai sought the source of the intense heat.

Suddenly, a burst of flame shot toward him. Kai quickly summoned his internal flame, and the two flames collided violently.

Boom!

The force of the explosion filled the entire space with roaring flames.

Kai noticed a small creature in the corner of the room, its eyes locked on him.

The creature had horns on its head, a body resembling a horse, and was engulfed in flames.

At first glance, it looked similar to the Celestial Devourer that Kai kept in his storage ring.

"Is this another Celestial Devourer?" Kai wondered aloud.

"Nonsense!" Vermillion Demon Lord retorted. "That's a fire unicorn. It's not nearly as powerful as Celestial Devourer. It's the mount of the Fire Spirit Lord. I didn't expect this dumb mount to end up in Ethereal Realm."

It seems that this little fire unicom has only recently hatched. No wonder those spint beasts fell ill and the cause couldn't be found. I believe it was simply out of fright " Vermilion Demon Lord chuckled as he spoke.

Looks like Fire Spirit Lord's mount isn't the only one that fell into the Ethereal Reakn & Fire Spirit Lord himself must be here too! I guess we're even now.

The mount of the Fire Spirit Lord?' Kai muttered, recalling when the Fire Spirit Lord had once shown interest in his Celestial Devourer. He had presented it as a unicorn beast, but the Fire Spirit Lord had been unimpressed, claiming it was a Celestial Devourer.

It seemed that the Fire Spirit Lord had been hoping for his own mount, the fire unicorn, to be reincarnated or to produce offsprings.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4279

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4279-Acknowledging Its Master “Capture this little fire unicorn. It would make a perfect mount for you. Once it matures, it can act as your bodyguard, and no one in the Ethereal Realm would dare face it,” Vermilion Demon Lord urged.

Kai was intrigued and moved closer to the creature. But as soon as he did, the fire unicorn opened its mouth and spewed thick flames at him. Kai quickly dodged, surprised at the creature’s fiery temperament.

“This thing’s too hard to catch, and even if I did, it’d be tough to tame,” Kai said, feeling the challenge.

“No problem, I’ll let my Celestial Devourer handle it. My Celestial Devourer is a rare demonic beast; it’ll scare this fire unicorn into submission!” Vermilion Demon Lord boasted.

“Mr. Vermilion, Celestial Devourer is indeed impressive, but all it does is eat and sleep. I can’t even wake it up half the time,” Kai grumbled. Though powerful, Celestial Devourer wasn’t exactly reliable.

Before Kai could finish, his Storage Ring quivered, and the little Celestial Devourer woke up, sensing the presence of the fire unicorn. As soon as the fire unicorn saw Celestial Devourer, it immediately froze with fear.

Celestial Devourer strutted confidently toward the fire unicorn, and the fiery creature tucked its tail, too scared to breathe fire anymore.

The little Celestial Devourer then batted the fire unicorn on the head with its paw, causing the latter to submit completely.

Seeing this, Kai approached and gently stroked the fire unicorn’s head. It no longer regarded him with hostility.

“Well, this fire unicorn has certainly met its match,” Kai said, marveling at how easily the Celestial Devourer had tamed the fire unicorn.

“Fire Spirit Lord’s mount is nothing but trash,” Vermilion Demon Lord scoffed.

“It’s all bluster and bad temper. No wonder it ended up here.” Kai didn’t dare comment further. Whether or not the Fire Spirit Lord was impressive, he was still far beyond Kai’s reach at the moment.

Besides, it feels like all the immortals in the celestial realm have a fiery temper.

“Brat, you should seize the opportunity while the fire unicorn is still young.

Quickly claim it as your mount. Once it grows up, it’ll be much harder to tame, and the Fire Spirit Lord might come looking for it,” Vermilion Demon Lord advised.

“But how do I claim it?” Kai asked. He had no idea how to tame a blessed beast and have it acknowledge him as its master.

“You just need to feed it your blood essence. Once it drinks your essence, it’ll bond with you and acknowledge you as its master,” Vermilion Demon Lord explained.

Without hesitation, Kai forced out several droplets of his blood essence from his brow. The droplets hovered in mid-air, drifting toward the fire unicorn.

“Go ahead, drink up,” Kai coaxed the little creature. “Once you drink my blood essence, you’ll be mine.” But the fire unicorn didn’t open its mouth. It eyed the blood warily and refused to drink it.

“W-What’s going on?” Kai was puzzled by the creature’s reluctance.

“Hahaha! It probably thinks you’re too weak to be its master. A mere Tribulator cultivator trying to tame a blessed beast like a fire unicorn?

You’re the first to attempt such a thing!” Vermilion Demon Lord laughed heartily.

“So, what should I do?” Kai asked, embarrassed by his failure.

Just then, Celestial Devourer raised its paw and smacked the fire unicorn on the head again. This time, the fire unicorn obediently licked up the blood essence, submitting fully to Kai.

As soon as the creature consumed the blood essence, Kai felt a sudden connection form between them, a mental link that confirmed the fire unicorn was now his to command.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4280

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4280-The Breakthrough The fire unicorn gazed blankly at Kai. Despite the disdain in its eyes, it found itself helplessly drawn towards him, gently nuzzling against him.

Though the fire unicorn wasn't satisfied to have a mere Tribulator as its master, it didn't have a choice since the Celestial Devourer was lurking nearby, eyeing it like prey.

Kai stroked the fire unicorn, his heart brimming with joy. Having the fire unicorn as his mount meant he had gained another ally.

Even without the airship, Kai could now ride the fire unicorn anywhere. He no longer needed to deplete his spiritual energy.

However, this fire unicorn was still too small, and Kai had no idea how many resources it would take to fully raise it. Just one Celestial Devourer was a nuisance for him. Many things were devoured by it, and now, he had to feed the fire unicorn, too.

Kai's cultivation demanded an immense amount of resources—far more than those needed by the other Tribulators. With three major expenditures looming over him, he found himself pondering where he could possibly gather enough resources.

Given the situation, he realized he had no choice but to take things one step at a time. If worse came to worst, he would have to compete with other cultivators for what little resources were available. In the Ethereal Realm, hard and fast rules were virtually nonexistent; it was a brutal world where the strong preyed upon the weak. While he considered targeting some prestigious families to seize their resources, he had yet to fully convince himself to take that route.

After safely storing the fire unicorn and the Celestial Devourer in his Storage Ring, Kai exited that dimension. As he stepped out, the dimension shattered in an instant, disappearing completely along with the array runes etched into the ground.

With the fire unicorn now in his Storage Ring, the spirit beasts visibly calmed, their earlier fear and agitation fading away.

It seemed that this fire unicorn was the cause of the spirit beasts' alarm, which then led to their illness.

He knew that after a few days of recuperation, they would fully recover.

Returning to his room, he found himself surrounded by piles of resources. Only then did he feel ready to immerse himself in his cultivation.

With his eyes gently closed, Kai activated the Focus Technique. A powerful surge of spiritual energy flooded into his body, though he couldn't tell how much time had passed.

He felt a faint tremor coursing through him as streaks of golden light erupted from the room, piercing the cloud-laden sky. The scene was so striking that it resembled the ominous foreboding of the world's end.

"Looks like Mr. Chance is on the verge of a breakthrough," Dylan remarked, his eyes fixed on the sky, now thick with tribulation clouds.

"It's just a minor breakthrough, yet it has triggered such a powerful lightning tribulation. No wonder Kai, even as a mere Sixth-Level Tribulator, can stand toe to-toe with experts from the Ultimate Realm," Hartwin marveled, gazing in awe at the roiling thunderclouds.

"How many days has it been?" Bernard asked, his tone edged with disbelief.

"Five days, King Bernard," Ezequiel replied.

"In just five days, he's managed a breakthrough. Though it's only a minor advancement, the magnitude of this event rivals that of a Top-Level Tribulator's breakthrough," Bernard gasped, astonished.

'King Bernard, General Quivey has reported that we've successfully reclaimed Imperial Fox City. The Foster family has been eradlogted However, this actlori has drawn the attention of the Demon Seal Alliance, and General Quivey suspects they may retaliate. He remains cautious, fearing the Alliance might target Imperiel Fox City, so he and his forces are currently stationed there. He plans to return only after Mr.

Chance goes there.”

Ezequiel knew that Bernard’s inquiry about the time wasn’t solely out of curiosity regarding Kai’s cultivation speed. The command to wipe out the Foster family within five days had already been given, and failure to execute it would have severe consequences.

Though Bernard appeared harmless, polite, and amiable to everyone, he was known for his fairness and strict adherence to his orders. It was this balance of justice and authority that enabled him to govern Allardland so effectively.