

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4301

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4301-I Am Telling The Truth This was the stronghold of the Blood Bone Sect, where Cassius fled after his spirit managed to escape.

“Rainier, help! Save me!” Cassius shouted desperately, his voice trembling with fear.

From within the main hall, a man clad in a grey robe adorned with a string of white bones across his chest emerged.

His chest was lined with a series of skulls, presenting a truly terrifying sight.

This man was none other than Cassius’ second senior, Rainier Tindall. The level of ruthlessness he exhibited far surpassed that of Cassius.

Back in the day, when their master was still alive, Rainier was skilled at concealing his true nature. Consequently, Trystan found it hard to believe that Rainier could become so ruthless.

“Cassius, what happened?” Rainier asked, his voice filled with feigned concern.

“Why is there only a trace of your spirit left? What happened to your body?”

Weren’t you supposed to wipe out Trystan’s Soul Demon Sect? How did things end up like this?” The skulls on his chest emitted an eerie green glow as he shot several questions at Cassius, his disbelief evident.

“Rainier, I failed. Everyone I brought with me is dead. In the end, I had to abandon my physical form to escape,” Cassius exclaimed in panic.

Just recalling the tactics used against him made his spirit tremble.

“How could this be? Do you mean Trystan is stronger than you expected? That’s impossible, right?” Rainier asked, confusion evident on his face.

“No, victory was on my side at first. But then, out of nowhere, Trystan appeared with an unidentified young man. That young man was incredibly powerful.

Although he seemed to be only a Seventh Level Tribulator, his explosive strength was on par with those at Ultimate Realm Level Two,” Cassius explained in detail. “Moreover, he wielded a Demon Flogger and carried the imperial token of Allardland. He clearly wasn’t just an ordinary cultivator.” “A token from Allardland? Could he be Prince Cedric? But I’ve never heard of him possessing such power,” Rainier murmured, his brow furrowed in contemplation.

Cassius shook his head. “No, I know Prince Cedric. This young man is definitely not him. However, I’m unsure of his connection to Allardland and how he came to possess their token.” Having spent time in Allardland, Cassius was familiar enough with Cedric to recognize him.

“Then why didn’t you use the bone flute to summon the demon beasts to deal with them? There must be plenty of those creatures in the dense forest near the Soul Demon Sect. Summoning hundreds should have been easy, right?” Rainier pressed on.

Cassius sighed deeply. “Don’t even get me started. I did summon a demon beast with my bone flute, but that kid had a divine creature with him. Despite its small size, it was engulfed in flames and radiated an aura of authority that terrified all the beasts. And to make matters worse, he took my bone flute. If I hadn’t been quick enough to abandon my physical form, I would have been completely annihilated by now.” Cassius spoke quietly, a trace of lingering fear in his voice.

“That’s strange. I’ve never heard of such a formidable young individual in the Ethereal Realm before. He possessed a Demon Flogger and a sort of celestial beast, yet he’s only a Seventh Level Tribulator, able to wield power comparable to someone at Ultimate Realm Level Two. There’s something odd about this, don’t you think?” Rainier’s expression remained puzzled.

Allardland was a significant force in the Ethereal Realm, possessing countless resources. Yet, despite its power, none of the princes of Allardland had shown such capabilities. Who else in the Ethereal Realm could possibly cultivate such an extraordinary young individual?

It didn't make sense to him how such a powerful young man could exist in the Ethereal Realm without ever being noticed.

Seeing that Rainier remained somewhat skeptical, Cassius quickly raised his hand and swore earnestly, "Rainier, I swear I'm telling you the truth. If I had lied, I'm willing to endure the torment of the Great Lightning Tribulation!"

Cassius, you don't have to swear like that. I was merely speculating,' Rainier replied calmly. Now, focus on recovering your strength. I still have some matters to attend to. Once I'm finished and return, we can head to the Soul Demon Sect to settle our scores."

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4302

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4302-The Gamble "Let's not involve Gustave in this matter, as he's currently in solitary training," Rainier advised. "Soon, he'll break through to Ultimate Realm Level Three.

Once he does, he can help us by capturing some Ultimate Realm cultivators to aid in our training." Cassius' eyes lit up in excitement at his remark. "Gustave is about to become a Third Level Tribulator? That's fantastic! The cultivation methods our master taught us are indeed exceptional for accelerating our progress. If we could cultivate using the blood and bones of an Ultimate Realm cultivator, we'd advance even faster. But what's the matter that requires your personal attention?"

"Do you know Aiden, the one who was learning under Gustave's guidance?" Rainier asked.

"Of course, I know him," Cassius responded. "He was the young master of the Mueller family. However, he chose to follow Gustave and study the demonic techniques. It was those very techniques that allowed him to reach an advanced stage at such a young age. But he left, didn't he?" Rainier nodded. "Yes, he left, but he arranged a duel with someone, and it's supposed to take place in the next few days. Gustave was concerned about it, so before entering seclusion, he sent me to Southedge City to monitor the situation. Since Aiden benefitted from Gustave's teachings and made rapid progress, it's time for the Muellers to repay us by sending a few cultivators our way." "The person who dares to challenge Aiden must be fearless. Moreover, Aiden is incredibly gifted. At such a young age, he's already reached Ultimate Realm Level One. There are only a handful of young cultivators who could rival him," Cassius remarked, puzzled as to who would be reckless enough to challenge Aiden. However, as soon as he finished speaking, the image of Kai came to mind.

He continued cautiously, "But the young man I encountered today was even more formidable than Aiden. I just don't know which family he belongs to." Seeing Cassius' troubled expression, Rainier assumed he was still shaken from the encounter. He waved dismissively and said, "Cassius, you should rest and find someone to help reconstruct your physical form. Luckily, we have a Demonia Stone in our possession. Restoring a divine soul of your caliber shouldn't be too difficult!" "All right then. Take care. I'm off now!" Cassius nodded in response, then proceeded into the main hall, ready to undergo his physical body restoration.

He had no idea that the person he was competing against, Aiden, was none other than Kai, the very man who nearly took his life that day.

Of course, Rainier had no idea either. After ensuring Cassius' well-being, he set off to Southedge City with two of his disciples.

Meanwhile, Kai and Cloud were aboard an airship, descending gently onto the square of Southedge City.

As soon as they landed, members of the Pathfinder Sect were already waiting to greet them.

In this region, airship travel was managed and regulated by the Pathfinder Sect, and most people relied on the sect's airships for commuting.

As Kai stepped off the airship, he was surprised to see the person approaching him was none other than Rory, the branch manager of the Pathfinder Sect in Southedge City.

While Kai wasn't particularly close to Rory, he had met him before through Dillon's introduction, making them at least somewhat acquainted.

Seeing Kai disembark, Rory burst into hearty laughter and greeted him warmly.

"I was wondering who would make such a grand entrance on our airship. Turns out it's Mr. Chance! Your recent duel with Aiden, the young master of the Mueller family, has become the talk of the entire southern region. Many people have come from far and wide, hoping to witness the showdown. Thanks to you, our Pathfinder Sect has also benefited greatly by raking in a substantial profit..." Upon hearing this, Kai responded with a slight smile. He knew well that the Pathfinder Sect had likely spread the news intentionally, hoping to draw in more people and increase their profits.

Such tactics were just part of the business. After all, the Pathfinder Sect thrived by leveraging and selling information.

"Mr. Jensen, will there be a betting game for this duel?" Kai asked casually.

Of course! How could we pass up such an opportunity? This time, the Pathfinder Sect will be hosting the bet personally, Rory replied with a smile before asking, "Mr. Chance, would you be interested in placing a wager yourself?"

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4303

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4303-Place The Bet "I'm intrigued. Could you explain further how it works, Mr. Jensen?" Kai asked, his curiosity piqued.

He was keen to see just how many had placed bets on his victory.

Rory flashed a faint grin and said, "Mr. Chance, I must warn you not to get upset when you see the figures." With that, he gestured for Kai and Cloud to follow him as he led them to the gambling house run by the Pathfinder Sect.

Kai knew that most people would have bet on Aiden to win. After all, Aiden's cultivation level far exceeded his own, making it a logical choice for the majority.

As Kai and his companions approached the entrance of the gambling house, the sound of lively chatter and heated discussions reached their ears.

"I've put all my clothes on the line, betting on Kai's victory. If any of you believe in me, place your bets here with me!" a loud voice echoed from inside. It seemed someone was betting on everything—even their clothing!

Hearing this, Cloud glanced at Kai in surprise. "It seems there are still people who believe in you, Mr. Chance," he mused, clearly curious about who could be so fervent in their support of Kai in a city like Southedge.

Even Rory seemed caught off guard. He hadn't expected anyone to back Kai so passionately.

Kai, however, couldn't help but smile faintly. He recognized the voice right away—it was Alastair!

“Alastair, are you sure you want to bet your clothes? How much could those ragged things possibly be worth?” one man jeered from the crowd.

Another scoffed, “You're not only putting all your money on the line, but you're betting your clothes too? Why would you back Kai in the first place?” “Alastair, Mr. Aiden is already at Ultimate Realm Level One, and rumors say he's at the peak of his level, ready to break through to Ultimate Realm Level Two any moment now. Kai doesn't stand a chance against him!” “You're just trying to trick others into betting with you. Who would be stupid enough to fall for this?” The ridicule was relentless.

Alastair was well-known in Southedge City. He had a wide network of acquaintances, but due to his reputation as a trickster, people were reluctant to place any trust in him, much less money. However, Alastair didn't seem fazed by their mockery.

“Laugh all you want. You shouldn't judge a book by its cover!” he retorted confidently. “I'm telling you, Kai is going to win. I know how strong he is. I've seen it firsthand, and I've faced life and death with him. He's more powerful than any of you could imagine!” Standing in front of everyone, Alastair looked almost comical. Dressed in nothing but a pair of oversized shorts in the freezing weather, he seemed more determined than ever.

Southedge City was known for its harsh, bitter cold, where even seasoned cultivators layered themselves in thick animal skins to stave off the chill.

While cultivators could use their spiritual energy to resist the cold, this was only sustainable for short periods. Prolonged use of spiritual energy for such a trivial purpose would be wasteful, so most chose to wear a layer of beast skin instead.

Moreover, beast skins were not just a means of warmth; they were also regarded as valuable resources for cultivation. That was why Alastair's peculiar gamble of even wagering his clothes was attracting so much attention.

At that moment, Kai entered the gambling house, exclaiming, "I'll go along with your bet." When Alastair followed the sound and spotted Kai, his eyes immediately lit up with excitement. He opened his mouth, ready to shout in joy, but Kai silenced him with a single, pointed glance.

Kai was cautious; he didn't want to draw unnecessary attention to himself in the competitive arena.

He knew that revealing his identity could invite a world of trouble especially since while his name was wellknown throughout Southedge City, very few had actually met him in person.

Understanding Kai's unspoken intention, Alastair quickly adjusted his demeanor.

"Young man, you've got a keen eye. Bet with me, and I guarantee you a life of luxury!"

With a flick of his wrist, Kai pulled out a bag full of purple spirit coins and tossed it onto the gambling table. He then added nonchalantly, "I also bet that Kai would win ... "

Everyone's eyes widened in disbelief as they stared at the bag full of purple spirit coins.

Seeing the scene unfold, Rory smiled faintly, opting not to reveal Kai's true identity. Regardless of how much Kai wagered, the Pathfinder Sect, as the hosts well-versed in the game, would always stand to benefit, no matter the outcome between the parties.

They would take their cut from the guaranteed profit, ensuring the result favored them.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4304

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4304-Do Not Take It Seriously An elderly cultivator sporting a white beard said to Kai, "Kid, have you lost your mind? You're actually placing your bet on Kai, not to mention such a large amount. I've heard that Kai is merely a Tribulator. Even if he's a Top Level Tribulator, there's no way he can be a match for Mr. Aiden." "No. I heard that Kai was only a Seventh Level Tribulator. Still, even at that level, he's more than a match for Aiden," Kai replied with a faint smile.

After hearing Kai's words, the cultivators present were astonished. They all began to ridicule Kai, convinced he was merely spouting nonsense.

After all, claiming that a Seventh Level Tribulator could defeat a Top Level Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator was no different from making a joke.

"Who's saying that a Seventh Level Tribulator can defeat an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator? I'd really like to see who's so audacious." At that moment, a chilling voice echoed.

The next second, Rainier, leading his men, entered.

Upon seeing Rainier appear, the numerous cultivators inside the gambling house were momentarily taken aback and instinctively stepped back.

The aura an Ultimate Realm Level Two cultivator exuded was enough to intimidate those cultivators. After all, Rainier had attained the Ultimate Realm, the cultivation level closest to the Immortal Realm. Countless people had cultivated desperately just to get stuck as a Tribulator.

Though it seemed as if there were as many Ultimate Realm cultivators, Ultimate Realm cultivators were actually considered rare when considering their ratio against all cultivators in Ethereal Realm.

When Rory saw Rainier arrive with his entourage, he frowned slightly. The unmistakable scent of blood on Rainier was a clear sign that he was a Demonic Cultivator, not to mention the kind that killed often.

Kai furrowed his brows as he observed Rainier. He couldn't help but notice an aura about the latter that was eerily similar to that of Cassius and Trystan.

"Fellow cultivator, this is a gambling house, a place for everyone to enjoy. So, some words shouldn't be taken seriously." Rory stepped forward, his face beaming with a smile as he addressed Rainier.

Rory feared Rainier would lose his temper due to Kai's recent remarks and start a fight.

After all, when Kai claimed that a Seventh Level Tribulator could defeat an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator, it would undoubtedly stir discomfort within those Ultimate Realm cultivators.

Having achieved the Ultimate Realm, one must have had exceptional abilities and endured countless hardships. Now, to have someone dismiss their accomplishments so casually, they would undoubtedly be upset.

“Don’t worry. Since we’re at Pathfinder Sect, I won’t take advantage of the weak.

Still, since someone values Kai so much that he’s bet so much money, I’ll place a bet too. However, I’m betting on Aiden to win.” After Rainier had finished speaking, he tossed a bag of purple spirit coins, placing his bet on Aiden’s side.

After placing his bet, Rainier cast a cold glance at Kai and said, “Brat, I hope to see you on the day of the fight. Don’t you dare run away.” As he spoke, a surge of energy suddenly erupted from Rainier, heading straight for Kai.

Kai was merely a Seventh Level Tribulator. Logically, a slight bit of pressure from Rainier should’ve been enough to bring the latter to his knees.

Yet, when Rainier’s presence bore down on Kai, Kai remained rooted to his spot, seemingly unaffected.

Rainier couldn’t help but furrow his brows and further intensify his aura.

To his surprise, Kai remained still.

Even though Kai didn’t move then people around Kim couldn’t bear it any longer.

Many people gritted their teeth, pushing themselves to their limits, while some even collapsed onto the ground.

Fellow cultivator, I hope you’ll do Pathfinder Sect a favor and refrain from causing trouble here. Rory’s face flushed red as he spoke to Rainier.

At that time, Rory was struggling to endure the aura and could only resort to using Pathfinder Sect to threaten Rainier.

Rainier withdrew his aura. After casting a surprised glance at Kai, he turned and led his men away.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4305

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4305-I Lacked The Strength After Rainier had left, everyone collectively breathed a sigh of relief.

Kai, on the other hand, bowed farewell to Rory before turning around to leave.

Upon seeing the situation, Alastair quickly gave chase, trailing closely behind Kai.

To him, Kai was akin to a financial backer.

Seeing Alastair in his oversized shorts, Kai felt helpless. He took out a purple spirit coin and said, "Go buy some clothes and keep the rest for yourself."

"Thank you, Mr. Chance. Rest assured. I'll certainly be able to repay you because I know you're bound to win. When that happens, I'll be rich. You're betting at a ten-to-one ratio with Aiden. If you win, our stakes will increase tenfold." Alastair was brimming with excitement.

He was convinced that Kai could win!

Kai looked at Alastair with a playful expression and asked, "If I can't win, wouldn't that mean you'd end up with nothing?" "That's impossible. Even if you really do lose, considering your nature, there's no way you'll leave me penniless. You'll definitely return the bet I lost," Alastair said.

Upon hearing that, Kai was momentarily at a loss for words. It turns out this guy has planned everything in advance. If I win, he'll be making a fortune. If I lose, given my nature, I'll never let him go without clothes. I'll definitely give him money. After all, I'm not short of money. Alastair sure schemes well.

Kai gave a casual smile and said, "All right. Go ahead and buy some clothes. If I really lose, I'll give you all the money I have. By then, I might not even be alive, so what use will money be?" Upon hearing that, Alastair hastily responded awkwardly, "There's no way you'll lose, Mr. Chance. You won't lose." After speaking, Alastair hurried off to buy clothes. After all, his appearance at that moment was rather unseemly.

After Alastair left, someone suddenly called out to Kai. "Mr. Chance!" Two attractive figures were walking in Kai's direction.

Kai looked over, only to discover that it was the Nieva arriving with Yuliya. "Ms.

Nieva." "Mr. Chance, I presumed you would be arriving in Southedge City soon, so I decided to descend the mountain and try my luck. I didn't expect to actually run into you. It's been less than a month, and you've already advanced to a Seventh Level Tribulator. That's truly impressive! With the pace of your progress, it won't be long before you ascend into immortals," remarked Nieva.

"You're flattering me. Become immortals isn't that easy," Kai responded with a laugh.

"Ms. Nieva, let's find a place to talk. This bustling street is hardly suitable for conversation," Yuliya said.

"That's right. Let's find a place to talk." Nieva nodded, leading Kai and the others to settle down in a place they found.

Kai wouldn't be leaving Southedge City before the fight, so Nieva would also not be returning to Lunarius Palace. Hence, having a place to stay was essential.

While Kai had finally settled down in Southedge City, far away in the northern region, tens of thousands of miles away in the headquarters of Demon Seal Alliance, Talcott sat upright in his seat, his face adorned with a grimace.

Zayan was covered in wounds, his gaze unfocused as he spoke. "Mr.

Lefterov, Allardland brazenly acted against us and even openly supported Kai. This is simply outrageous. I think we should devise a plan to teach Allardland a lesson, ensuring they stop meddling in Kai's affairs."

Teach them a lesson? How do you propose we do that?" Talcott wore a cold expression his eyes wide open.

Or perhaps you suggest we march into Allardland and teach them a lesson?

"I-I lack the strength." Zayan hastily shook his head in fear.

A general from Allardland was already capable of annihilating the Foster family.

If it weren't for Zayan's quick thinking and fleeing beforehand, he would've been wiped out by now.

He certainly didn't have the capability to lead people to stir up trouble at Allardland.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4306

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4306-Start The Investigation Observing Zayan's demeanor, Talcott couldn't help but let out a cold chuckle.

Only then did he say, "All right. I know you lack the capability to teach Allardland a lesson, and I won't send you off to a futile death. However, there is an important task at hand that I need you to undertake." Upon hearing that, Zayan immediately felt a wave of relief. He quickly asked, "Mr. Lefterov, please feel free to give me any orders. I'll do my best." "Recently, many of our Demon Seal Alliance members have been restless. Even those Demonic Cultivators collaborating with us have started harboring thoughts of betrayal. I received reliable information that someone has been secretly harboring a large group of Demonic Cultivators. Moreover, these cultivators are being kept hidden away. You should take some people and investigate thoroughly. We cannot tolerate the existence of such individuals in the northern region, let alone those Demonic Cultivators who are not under Demon Seal Alliance's control. Only by properly managing matters in the northern region can we possess the strength to stand against Allardland. As for Kai, don't bother about him anymore. The hundred-year offering is enticing enough. Someone is bound to make a move on him," Talcott said to Zayan.

"What? There are actually Demonic Cultivators, and a hidden one at that? Who could be so audacious, daring to do such a thing? Rest assured, Mr. Lefterov. I'll definitely get to the bottom of this matter. Any Demonic Cultivators who refuse to submit to Demon Seal Alliance will be completely eradicated," Zayan uttered confidently.

At that moment, he felt hopeful again, a stark contrast to the state he was in when he was asked to deal with Allardland. After all, the number of Demonic

Cultivators in the northern region should have dwindled over the years, and their power couldn't possibly be too strong. Considering that the headquarters of Demon Seal Alliance is located in the northern region, it's quite difficult for Demonic Cultivators to survive here.

"Go on." Talcott waved his hand dismissively.

Zayan slowly withdrew, immediately initiating an investigation into the matter with his subordinates.

Meanwhile, Rainier arrived with his crew at the Mueller residence in the southern region, only to be stopped by the Mueller family guards.

A guard asked Rainier, "Who are you? What brings you to the Mueller residence?" "We're here to look for Mr. Aiden Mueller. Could you please let him know?" Rainier said quite politely.

The guard gave Rainier a once-over, then shook his head, saying, "No can do."

Mr. Aiden has a duel in a couple of days. He's currently focused on preparing himself. Mr. Stinton has made it clear Mr. Aiden won't be seeing anyone. You all should go. These past few days, the Mueller family will be keeping to ourselves and not entertaining any guests." "How audacious! How dare a mere guard of the Mueller family like you speak in such a manner?" The disciple that Rainier brought with him was instantly infuriated when he heard how arrogant the Mueller family's guard was.

He wanted to step forward and teach the guard a lesson.

However, Rainier stopped him. After all, his visit this time was not only to see Aiden but also to seek the help of the Mueller family in transporting a group of cultivators.

Hence, it wouldn't be ideal if things turned sour with the Mueller family.

"Young lad, to be honest, I'm Mr. Aiden's friend. I hope you'll help inform him." As Rainier spoke, he took out some purple spirit coins and handed them to the guard.

However, the guard unexpectedly knocked the purple spirit coin out of Rainier's hand and uttered indifferently, "Leave immediately, or don't blame us for being rude."

At that point, Rainier also lost his temper. After all, he was a highly skilled Ultimate Realitexpert. Being obstructed by two mere guards was utterly humiliating.

Rainier's aura quivered slightly, leaving the two Mueller family guards no time to react. They collapsed instantly, their eyes filled with fear, Rainier did not kill the guards. After all, it was acceptable to teach them a lesson, but if he eliminated them, things would become complicated.

"Let's go." Rainier, along with his subordinates, marched straight into the Mueller residence.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4307

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4307-The Day Has Come Just as they stepped into the Mueller residence, an eerie aura suddenly struck them.

"Who dares to barge into the Mueller residence?" A figure flashed over, and an overwhelming aura ensued.

Seeing that, Rainier furrowed her brows slightly. With a swift wave of his hand, he managed to block the incoming surge of aura in an instant.

"Who exactly are you people? How dare you barge into the Mueller residence?" Terrence showed up, and a large number of the Mueller family disciples also poured in from all directions.

Rainier and his companions were surrounded in an instant.

However, upon sensing Rainier's impressive Ultimate Realm Level Two cultivation level, the Mueller family disciples refrained from taking action.

"I'm here to meet with Mr. Aiden, but your guards wouldn't let me in. I have no choice but to barge in," Rainier said.

“Mr. Aiden is not receiving any visitors. Leave immediately before I lose my temper, or don’t blame me for being impolite,” Terrence said with a stern face.

“What if I don’t leave?” Rainier sneered.

“If you don’t leave, you’ll be done for.” After Terrence said that, his aura intensified continuously. He was ready to take action at any moment.

“Mr. Stinton, show some respect.” Right then, Aiden dashed forward, hastily calling out to Terrence in a loud voice.

After rushing over to Rainier, Aiden respectfully asked, “Mr. Tindall, what brings you here?” “Aiden, you don’t have to be so formal with me. When Gustave taught you cultivation technique, it was a simple exchange of benefits, not a formal acknowledgment of him being your master. Gustave is in solitary training, but he’s concerned about your duel, so he asked me to come and check on you.

Also, I’m here to bring some cultivators to Blood Bone Sect,” Rainier said to Aiden.

“Mr. Aiden, who is this person?” Looking at Rainier, Terrence expressed his confusion.

“Mr. Stinton, I’ve been learning my skills from Blood Bone Sect all these years.

Otherwise, there’s no way my skills could have improved so rapidly. Also, the cultivators my father prepares yearly are all sent to Blood Bone Sect,” Aiden replied.

Upon hearing that, Terrence quickly put on a friendly smile and turned to Rainier, saying, “Fellow cultivators, I’m truly sorry for any offense caused just now.” Rainier casually waved his hand and generously said, “No worries. There’s no blame attached to the unconscious doer of wrong.” “Mr. Tindall, you’ve never visited the Mueller residence before. This time, take a couple of days to enjoy your stay here. After I finish my duel with Kai, we can return together. I’ve asked Mr. Stinton to handle the matter of the cultivators. I assure you, when you leave, you’ll have all the cultivators you need,” Aiden added to Rainier with utmost respect.

“Okay. I’ll take a couple of days to really enjoy myself, and while I’m at it, I’ll see just what makes this guy named Kai so special.” Rainier gave a nod.

After all, he seldom left Blood Bone Sect, spending his days amidst the lifeless bones, which was indeed quite monotonous.

Two days later, the arena in Southedge City was swarming with people.

That was the day Kai faced off against Aiden. Initially, not many people knew about their duels. However, after extensive promotion by Pathfinder Sect, many people from the entire southern region flocked over to witness the spectacle.

Pathfinder Sect seized that opportunity to make a huge profit, demonstrating the typical mindset of a businessman, with no consideration for Kai and Aiden’s feelings.

Given the circumstances, Kai and Aiden had no choice but to accept their fate. After all, regardless of ( whether anyone was watching, it was a fight to the death between them.

Surely, one of them was destined to die in the arena.

“Move aside. Everyone move aside!” With a loud shout, a path slowly cleared through the crowd surrounding the arena.

Arena was seen striding toward the arena with an air of arrogance.

Following closely behind him were dozens of Mueller family disciples.

Rainier was also seen accompanying him by his side.

Upon seeing Aiden appear, many people began to excitedly shout.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4308

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4308-I Will Kill You “Mr. Mueller, you must win. I’ve staked my entire fortune on you!” “You’re unbeatable, Mr. Mueller! Keep going!” “You can do it, Mr. Mueller!” Among the spectators, many had placed their bets on Aiden's victory, hence their exhilarating cheers filled the air.

Hearing the cheers of the crowd around him, Aiden strutted onto the stage arrogantly and waved his hands at the mob.

Observing Aiden's demeanor, it was clear that he possessed absolute confidence.

As the crowd cheered, a formidable group of dozens also made their grand entrance from the other side of the arena.

However, these individuals were all female cultivators, each as beautiful as a celestial being, exuding an otherworldly aura.

These women were all female cultivators of Lunarius Palace. The appearance of the holy maidens instantly drew the attention of many.

Kai, clad in simple cloth attire and looking relatively modest, strode ahead of the holy maidens.

Nieva strode alongside Kai, both heading toward the arena.

Nieva exuded an aura of imposing authority that radiated from within, prompting everyone to clear a path instinctively.

"You must win, Mr. Chance! You'll certainly win!" After Kai had made his way to the base of the stage, a sudden cry rang out among the crowd.

Without even looking, just by the sound of it, Kai could tell that it was Alastair.

Alastair had also placed all his fortunes on Kai, fervently wishing for the latter's victory.

Seeing that only one person was cheering for Kai, Aiden, standing on the stage, scoffed.

Aiden stared at Kai and said coldly, "I thought you wouldn't dare to show up, but surprisingly, you came." "Why wouldn't I dare? I only need to use one hand to beat up someone like you.

I was worried that you wouldn't dare to show up." Kai's lips curled up slightly as he spoke.

"You don't need to intentionally provoke me, trying to make me lose my cool.

Enough with the chatter. Come up on stage if you dare. After I'm done with you, I have other things to attend to." Aiden beckoned at Kai.

"Since you're so eager to meet your end, I'll oblige you." Subsequently, Kai leaped up effortlessly onto the arena.

"It's him?" The moment Rainier caught sight of Kai, he couldn't help but be surprised.

Terrence, standing at one side, asked, "Do you know Kai, Mr. Tindall?" "I've seen that brat at Pathfinder Sect. He was full of boastful tales back then. It turns out he's Kai. He's just a Seventh Level Tribulator, yet he thinks he can defeat Aiden. That's just wishful thinking." Rainier curled his lips into a sneer.

With this, I can rest assured. There's no doubt Aiden will triumph.

"Mr. Tindall, don't underestimate this Kai. The guy's progress is rapid, and he even has the ability to punch above his weight. I should better warn Mr. Aiden to be cautious. This Kai probably possesses strength that is not inferior to an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator." Upon seeing Kai take the stage, Terrence swiftly sensed that.

Back then, Kai was merely a Fourth Level Tribulator, yet he was able to exchange blows on equal footing with Aiden.

Although he was not as good as Aiden, he wasn't that far behind.

In just a short span of a month, Kai had astonishingly advanced to m becoming a Seventh Level Tribulator.

Terrence reckoned that Kai's power was likely no less than that of an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator, Rainier disdainfully glanced at Terrence and said, "Mr. Stinton, aren't you being overly cautious? You're saying a mere Seventh Level Tribulator can defeat an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator? I don't believe that."

Terrence didn't pay him any heed. After all, no one would believe it without having seen it with their own eyes.

"Mr. Aiden, this Kai has actually advanced to become a Seventh Level Tribulator. You need to be on your guard," Terrence reminded Aiden telepathically.

"Don't worry. I assure you that he will meet his end in this arena today," Aiden responded with a menacing glint in his eyes.

At that moment, Pathfinder Sect's Rory had also ascended to the arena Southedge City, being a small town at the foot of a mountain at the southernmost point of the southern region, did not have a mayor.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4309-Utterly Shocked As a result, Rory from Pathfinder Sect also played the role of mayor. After all, Pathfinder Sect was the most influential power in Southedge City.

"Both of you, since you've already stepped onto this stage, and that means a fight to the death. No matter who lives or dies, there can be no revenge once you step off this arena." After Rory finished speaking, he gently waved his hand at one corner of the arena.

In no time, rays of light began to emerge around the arena, enveloping the entire stage.

Buzz!

As the arena was bathed in a radiant glow, the dimension trembled. An arcane array surrounded the entire arena, a precaution designed to shield bystanders from any harm.

"Kai, I didn't expect you to become a Seventh Level Tribulator, but no matter how rapidly you progress, don't dream of defeating me." Aiden's face was full of confidence.

The aura within him gradually gathered as he unleashed a surge of power.

Behind Aiden, a faint hue of crimson began to emerge. The overwhelming pressure washed over Kai, firmly locking Kai in its grasp like an invisible hand.

Even before making a move, Aiden had already asserted his dominance over Kai.

Yet, Kai stood still. Not a trace of fear could be discerned on his face.

The corners of Aiden's lips lifted slightly, a hint of mockery spreading across his face as he said, "I'll have you bleeding right here within ten moves." After he finished speaking, Aiden swiftly grasped at the air, and the mist of blood behind him instantly solidified into a longsword.

As Aiden swung the longsword, a swift and ferocious streak of light dashed toward Kai.

Kai effortlessly parried the attack, and before anyone knew it, Dragonslayer Sword had already materialized in his hand.

He shielded himself with Dragonslayer Sword, which let out a dragon's roar and shattered the incoming light.

Everyone watched in shock and disbelief.

After all, Aiden's strike carried an immense force. Yet, Kai unexpectedly managed to block it with ease.

Moreover, no one sensed any surge of energy emanating from Kai.

"Could it be that this guy, solely with the strength of his physical body, blocked a strike from an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator?" Terrence's face was filled with astonishment.

Although he was aware of Kai's true strength, which was far greater than what it seemed, and had tried his best to overestimate Kai's abilities, he never imagined it would be this terrifying.

Seemingly effortlessly, Kai managed to ward off Aiden's attack with only the strength of his physical body, acting as if he wasn't engaged in a death match.

Kai watched Aiden calmly, his face devoid of expression, while Dragonslayer Sword resonated with continuous dragon's roar in his hand.

Aiden furrowed his brows, feeling profoundly shaken as well.

He hadn't expected that Kai, without unleashing any aura, could block his attack with only the strength of his physical body.

Even Rainier, who had always looked down on Kai and was certain of Kai's inevitable defeat, was now wide-eyed with disbelief.

At that moment, everyone began to reassess and redefine their understanding of Kai's abilities.

However, only Kai knew that it wasn't purely the strength of his physical body that had blocked Alden's attack.

His body wasn't yet that formidable.

Kai had harnessed the power of his True Fire Spiritual Body, which was no longer an intangible entity but had already begun to solidify.

Because the True Fire Spiritual Body was essentially a replica of Kai, the strength and aura of the two bodies were identical, which was why no one was able to detect it.

Everyone thought that Kai had simply relied on his physical body to block that one strike from Aiden.

That was the first time Kai had tapped into the power of his True Fire Spiritual Body. Once his True Fire Spiritual Body fully consolidated, Kai's physical body's strength would double.

"Brat, take this!" With a cold shout, Aiden suddenly leaped into the air, slashing his longsword down in a fluid motion.

This time, the sword's light surged wildly, piercing straight into the sky. As the sword descended, it seemed like it would tear open the void.

When Aiden's sword struck, the entire void erupted in a deafening roar. The massive arena trembled in response, and waves of energy dispersed in all directions. Even the arcane array surrounding the arena couldn't help but warp under the immense force.

The crowd was taken aback, with many hastily stepping back. They feared that if the arcane array couldn't withstand it, the scattered aftermath might bring disaster upon many of the cultivators.

When the shockwave had finally dissipated, and everyone's attention returned to the stage, they were surprised to find that Kai was still standing in the same spot, unmoved and holding Dragonslayer Sword in the same posture.

Even the expression on his face remained utterly unchanged as if nothing had happened at all.

It seemed as though Aiden hadn't struck Kai with his sword at all.

The formidable sword light hadn't even reached Kai's face before it completely dissipated and vanished without a trace.

"H-How could this be possible?" Witnessing that spectacle, the numerous cultivators were inevitably shocked.

After all, Aiden was an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator, while Kai was merely a Seventh Level Tribulator. Even if Kai could punch above his weight, that was simply too outrageous.

When facing Kai, Aiden's Ultimate Realm Level One cultivation level appeared worthless.

"Has Mr. Chance really grown to be this powerful? Even an Ultimate Realm Level One cultivator couldn't harm him." Nieva gazed at Kai's figure, her heart fluttering.

After all, Kai was still the one who needed her protection just a month ago.

However, in just a short span of a month, Kai's strength had become unfathomable. Even Nieva was no longer a match for him.

This stirred some excitement within Nieva's heart. Had it not been for the dignity of her position, she might have already thrown herself into Kai's arms.

Kai was the most talented individual she had ever encountered. Moreover, he had once saved her life. Hence, it was only natural for Nieva to harbor a secret affection for him.

At that point, Terrence's complexion had turned extremely unsightly. Aiden's attacks, each more powerful than the last, had failed to make even the slightest impact on Kai.

Not to mention, that had all happened without Kai retaliating. If things continued progressing that way, Terence didn't dare to imagine if Aiden could survive.

At that moment, Rainier's expression was somber. His initial look of contempt was nowhere to be seen. Kai's strength was indeed not in line with his cultivation level.

At that instant, he finally understood why Kai had the audacity to make such grand claims back at the gambling house.

Upon seeing the situation, Alastair couldn't contain his excitement and shouted, "How impressive, Mr. Chance! You're too amazing! You'll definitely win!" He even procured a flag from somewhere, waving it enthusiastically and cheering on Kai.

The surrounding cultivators wore expressions of solemnity and helplessness.

Had they known how impressive Kai was, they would have placed their bets on him.

Many people had staked their entire fortune on Aiden. If Aiden were to lose, they would be left with nothing.

In the arena, Aiden was gritting his teeth, glaring at Kai. His initial full-blown confidence had long since evaporated.

A subtle smile played at the corners of Kai's mouth, and a faint spiritual energy radiating from his body slowly expanded, causing the surrounding space to ripple, growing increasingly intense.

As he activated Golem Body, golden scales began to cover his entire body.

Although True Fire Spiritual Body was quite handy, Kai couldn't possibly rely on its power all the time. After all, True Fire Spiritual Body had not yet reached a state of complete solidity.

Aiden's two recent attacks had dealt a significant blow to True Fire Spiritual Body. It was just that Kai appeared completely fine and unscathed to everyone else.

With a teasing expression, Kai looked toward Aiden and said, "If this is all you've got, thinking you can take me down in less than ten moves seems a bit far-fetched, don't you think?"

Taking in Kai's mocking demeanor, Aiden was nearly driven to the brink of frustration. Moreover, Kai had done that before everyone else.
