

Chapter 147

79 - Ryker

"Don't you move, little lamb, I've got you." I can't have her close enough right now. That was the longest drive I have ever had. Thank the Goddess Claude and his bozos took the bait.

After the second attack on her here, Josh and I searched our territories for a she-wolf that fit Kennedy's basic description. We found a warrior named Mia who is more than happy to be Kennedy's doppelganger. The two attacks and Claude showing up today tells me they were not a coincidence and something bigger is going on. He didn't flinch seeing us there even though he's been actively avoiding me for months now. He was surprised by Kennedy being with me and didn't approach us for the rest of our time at Rory's. He did, however, follow us through the party, tracking him was not hard.

Danny brought Mia up in a second car about an hour after we arrived. Any time Kennedy was dancing with Bennet, I made a point to leave the room and without fail, Claude followed me. Josh and I made a point to drop hints of 'Kennedy's vehicle' when he was in earshot. I also talked to a few other alphas about their safety protocols for their mates. As we left, our whole team converged on us, allowing me to move Kennedy and insert Mia in her place, then we divided quickly. Bennet, Danny and Josh all went with Mia making it look like they were on Luna duty. Not a fool proof plan, but the best we had on the fly. He took the bait though. Mia's car was attacked. All of my warriors are safe with very little injuries, but I can't even think what might have happened if the plan didn't work or something went wrong.

I am so glad Kennedy caught on to something going on and didn't make trouble for us as we left. She's usually stubborn when she doesn't get answers to her questions. It didn't even dawn on me to mindlink her what was happening until she mentioned it. By then the attack was over and it didn't matter. She did curl into me and finally fall asleep, so that's got to mean she isn't super pissed at me. She won't let it go though, so I'm hoping she'll stay asleep and I can come up with a better answer than 'I forgot you can mindlink now' for the morning.

I wake up, roll over and panic. The spot next to me is empty and the sheets are cold. She hasn't been here for a while. I sit up straight, throwing the covers off of me and look around as I climb out of bed, trying and failing to stay calm. She doesn't get up before me. My girl sleeps until the last second. She's a morning person, but does not hesitate to curl up into her blankets for five more minutes while I get up and get ready.

I'm searching for signs of where she might be when I hear soft tones coming from outside. I walk over to the door and my throat is instantly dry. My mate is on all fours on the deck arching and lowering her back slowly. Her ass is defined in the smallest pair of pink shorts I have ever seen. She should not be out here in those where anyone can see, and yet I can't make myself move forward and stop whatever she is doing. She shifts onto her toes and lifts her very grabable hips to the sky and f*ck me, I can see the entire outline of her p*ssy in the stretchy fabric. If I was a smart man, I would get down on my knees right behind her and worship every inch with my tongue, but I still can't move. She does some kind of dip forward, laying her hips on the ground and looking at the sky. When she pushes back to repeat the back arching movement, I can finally blink and slide the door open slowly to step out and get a better look.

I know she heard me, but she doesn't even glance my way. She just keeps going through her movements, teasing me like a forbidden fruit. When she gets back to the hips in the air position I am right behind her. I don't remember moving this close, but I will not put any space back between us.

"Ken..." It's all I can croak out.

She wiggles her hips. "What?" Her breathy whisper goes straight to my crotch.

"You know what." I flex and relax my hands, trying to not touch her, not pull her to me. I am going to die resisting this woman.

"Hmm. Too bad, I have a little free time this morning before I work with the pups." She presses back into me and somehow manages to stand gracefully rubbing my throbbing dick with her luscious ass. Then she smiles at me as she walks away.