

Chapter 203

"What do you mean 'or so you thought'?" Kennedy asks again. My mom and all of our omegas not helping with the fire were sent to the packhouse for safety.

"The former Alpha and Luna and your young warriors are not as helpless as we thought." Finn smiles and if I didn't know better, that was what he wanted his warriors to think. To underestimate the people Amy and her dad thought would be easy to pick off. Copyright © 2024 Miss L Writes and Ember Mantel Productions

"You paid attention to the work Kennedy was doing with the pups." It's a statement not a question.

"Yes Alpha. I have suspected not everything is as it was presented for a while now. When you spend as much time watching and analyzing from a distance, you tend to pick up a few things." 1

"I take it you did not share all of your findings."

"No, I did not Alpha."

"You set up your warriors to fail?" A murmur of grumbling ripples through the mostly still crowd.

"I have watched how you operate for far longer than I care to admit. Warrior to warrior, I can respect the choices you have made from the time I started watching your pack up until now. I knew that you and your fighters would not kill blindly. As long as they went peacefully if subdued, they would not be harmed. That is what I instructed all of our fighters to do. If surrounded, or at the mercy of your warriors to surrender and go peacefully so this can end." 1

"YOU SABBOTAGGING SON OF A B*ITCH!" Amy flies out of the crowd, hair cut short, grubby clothes camouflaging her. The stench wafting off of her has played a part in her concealment. 3

Kennedy moves to get in between Finn and Amy, but I hold her back and let Bennet block her path with a solid right hook to the face. Josh joins him then restraining her while Danny is locking her in cuffs. She is thrashing and spitting every combination of profanities she can. 2

Well we were able to draw her emotional ass out, but I have a feeling her father is going to be more difficult. He has gone this long in hiding, but I need him, or her really, to out him. 1

"ENOUGH!" I shout and let my aura flow this time. Everyone who isn't my team stands with their heads bowed in submission, even Amy. Showing me whatever alpha blood she has is fairly weak. 1

"Amy, I will give you once chance to explain yourself. You came into my pack three years ago looking for refuge. You were given a place to stay, food to eat and a job within my pack. Was any of your story true?" I let my aura out in full force this time. I have always shied away from letting it out full force outside of highly aggressive warriors. I have never wanted to be like the alphas they are running from, but in this instance, I have to agree with my mate. Amy is long overdue to be put in her place. It's the final way for me to show Kennedy my loyalty to her and our matebond. 1

Amy winces and all her muscles tense at trying to fight my aura. I just wait. She will give in soon enough, they all do.

"Mmm...urgh..." She pants in pain. Kennedy is holding my arm so tight, I will have nail marks.

"No other wolf here feels her pain, Lamb. It's okay." I try to soothe my anxious mate.

She takes a slow breath in, let's it out, tries to release her grip, but can't seem to. "It's not Amy that I am worried about. It's Finn. I think he can feel her pain. Or she might be giving it to him somehow. Is that possible? Look at his face."

I shift my focus and sure enough, Finn looks worse off than she does. That b*tch is using her matebond to fight my command. I didn't even consider him.