

Chapter 229

"I can try. We have so many precautions. Our senses don't work as well inside the camp. Funny enough that was her and her dad's idea." I roll my eyes.

"While we wait. How many people are here with you Finn? Are there any kids or anyone who needs serious care?" Seriously, this girl is something else.

"We have a few warriors that have been injured. No children, but we have been without a home for about a year now. All of these people could use a warm bed and hot meal"

Kennedy looks at Ryker, silently asking for permission to help my pack. I actually feel a loyalty bond snap into place. I have never belonged to a pack before, never wanted to, and a couple hours with this human luna is making me reconsider my stance on the whole topic. She even has her warriors release me from the silver manacles. T

"We can use the arena to hold everyone. No offense Finn, but we need to watch all your followers. We have no idea who is working with Amy." Neither her or Ryker spare me a glance, but he is giving me his time. I'll take all I can get, I don't deserve any kind of kindness from them. I

"No offense taken. I understand. So will they."

"Can I ask you something?" The gamma steps around Ryker and Kennedy. "Why are you using her title?"

I scoff and shrug my shoulders. I still haven't risen from my kneeling position on the ground. I am purposely keeping myself at a disadvantage to show I can follow instructions. "She's a Luna, have you not noticed? Being her gamma and all, I thought you would have that basic information." I shouldn't try to rile him up. He's still pissed that I had her in my camp unwillingly. 1

He growls and moves to step forward. Kennedy stops him by grabbing the waistband of his shorts like a child. "Bennet, please. I want to go home and we have to figure out where Amy is and what she's up to. Now that I know all the attacks and crazy sh*t that has been happening recently is her fault. We need to take care of these people that she has abused, figure out who is actually loyal to her and, I guess, her dad, whoever that is, and bring them both in for a trial."

I roll my eyes. She's still going to give Amy and Claude a fair trial after everything that has happened. I'm surprised she's even helping me right now. I hope being this nice doesn't come back to bite her in the ass.

"What about this f*cker? He ordered your capture and most likely planned to kill you when he captured Ryker." Bennet is vibrating with anger, his fists are balled at his sides, focus switching from me to Kennedy. Even that movement is twitchy, like he and his wolf can't agree where to look. His dark red hair is not helping his menacing look in the slightest. He and I will have to fight this out eventually. I will pay this price and then hopefully we can move forward, if he doesn't kill me.

I am mesmerized by her movements. She steps towards her gamma, resting her hands on the bare skin of his arms and I can see her forcing him to calm down. The embrace isn't romantic, it's trusting. She's siphoning his anger out of him. I can feel the pull in the air around me too.

She continues to whisper while she is comforting him. "He can stand his own trial, if you think he needs to, but the people that have been following him for years should be able to speak on his behalf. They were all lied to and taken advantage of by Amy in some way. He is the only reason Dirk wasn't able to do more than this..." She gestures to her face again, "to me." I see Ryker tense. "That has to count for something." 1

"It's the only reason he isn't dead yet, Kennedy." He mocks as he steps away from her.

"Kennedy!" A shout from further in the camp catches everyone's attention. "Thank the Goddess you are safe." A female tornado barrels into Kennedy.

"Oof!" 1

"Oh, Sorry. Are you alright at least? Your mindlink was the craziest and most well timed thing I have ever heard. They must have been trying to divide us into small groups further..."

"Wait! Mindlink. What Mindlink? I can't mindlink with anyone. I can only hear Ryker when he chooses to let me hear." Kennedy rolls her eyes.

