The God Virus Volume 2 - 30 Amara Martin

Seeing his cold and indifferent attitude the blonde lady was taken aback, but she still continued "My name is Amara Martin and I'm from the Martin family who owns the Aston Martin car company, it's so nice to meet such a handsome man." She told her family name not because she was arrogant, but because she just wanted to attract this handsome and charming prince in whichever way possible, she had just come to the restaurant she usually eats when she saw this otherworldly handsome man, similar to which she had never seen, so this time she stepped up to come and get to know the man unlike all the other times when other men tried to get to know and please her.

"..." still hearing no response from him she asked with a cheerful smile on her face "May I have your name please?"

"I'm Aizen Vee, I'll ask you one more time, so don't waste my time and tell me what do you want?" Virus replied with the same indifferent voice, but this rude attitude had the opposite effect as it made him even more charming, like the bad boy who most girls chose over the nice guy.

At this time Bella was frowning too, seeing this bothersome woman.

"...um...actually I just like you and so... here I am, please give me a chance to know you!" She suddenly confessed, obviously never done this before.

"I have a girlfriend." Virus only replied thinking she would go away with this answer as a normal person would do.

"I don't care! I would've been surprised if such a God-like charming man didn't have someone in his life but I really like you, please give me a chance. I'm okay with being the second." Amara said with a determined expression.

Seeing she doesn't seem to be the normal kind you usually see and wasn't persuaded he continued "First of all I don't have the same feelings as you, secondly you're just liking me because of my appearance, so would you have tried to get close to me if I was ugly or had an average appearance? obviously not, go now." Virus replied and talked at the same time as he was eating while looking at his food.

"..." hearing his answer Amara was disappointed inside but she knew what to do if she wants to get close to the guy so she said, "Okay, so at least let's be friends!"

Virus stopped eating as he took his eyes off of his food and looked into her eyes once more saying "I don't do friends." at least for now Virus hasn't decided to find any friends, though that might change in the future, he mainly said it because he wanted to get rid of her sooner.

"..." Hearing the answer Amara really didn't know what to do anymore, it was always the boys who tried to get close to her and pursued her because she had both the beauty and wealth, but she was never interested in any, now for the first time she was interested in someone but he didn't even bother to get to know her, he didn't even want to at least be friends with her.

She was really frustrated and didn't know what to do anymore when she remembered something 'Right... he said his name is Aizen Vee, you might reject me, but I can find you now! hehe.' Thinking that she smiled unconsciously and said, "Sorry to be a nuisance while you were eating, anyway nice knowing you, I hope we meet again... and by fate, if we really do meet each other again, at that time... please give me a chance to get to know you."

After that, without waiting for his response she turned around and went away, probably figuring he won't bother giving any response.

Meanwhile in a conference meeting in which all of the major phone companies had gathered were discussing the ways to pass this major crisis.

The CEO of a company in Korea said "So what do you all suggest we do to get past this situation?"

Another CEO of another famous and known phone company in Japan said, "We should think of a solution that uses all of our resources in the government and other places, so think of every way through which we can equal the two sides of the scale or even better, reverse the situation completely."

"..." After that everyone turned silent for about 10 minutes.

Finally, the silence was broken when the CEO of a powerful phone company in the USA said, "Our first move should be to equal the two sides of the scale... and doing that is easy, let's gather the best experts, engineers, and programmers from each company and bring them all together to understand all the phones of that Virus Company, they will analyze the phones from component to component, until we understand them completely, we will reverse engineer every single phone, and then we will produce our own advanced phones, we will copy their tech to the last piece but with some differences, for example, we will change the shape and appearance of our phone and make slight modifications to the operating systems."

Then he continued "Like this, if we all do this then no government or individual will be able to object or protest as it's impossible to stop everybody from doing something and it's not like they will stop us in the first place as all of us have people in the higher-ups, and the combination of all of our powers and people together will be unstoppable!"

"This will be our first step, which will make the two sides of the scale equal." That CEO concluded with an evil smile on his face.

Hearing his words the eyes of other CEOs shone with intense light like they had just come to themselves finally, they were all thinking according to their own individual company's power without including the power of other companies and without combining them with their own! But now hearing the words of that CEO it was like an ice block had been removed from their minds!
