Chapter 73 Kang Li is Confident

The young girl was pampered and raised by the family, completely sheltered from any household chores, but now it had been only a little over half a year since she last saw her, and unexpectedly, the delicate young lady had given her such a surprise.

To be honest, He Hui was both astonished and delighted, and she couldn't help but feel moved.

A gentle and delicate girl, she not only learned how to cook in a short time but also knew how to be considerate. She was afraid that her and her husband would go hungry on the train, so she insisted on making food for them nonstop, immediately heading to the kitchen to get busy.

It wasn't in vain that she had doted on this girl ever since she entered the Kang's residence.

"Mom didn't agree with my marriage to Comrade Luo Yanqing, saying she was worried I wouldn't be able to live on my own in North City. To put Mom at ease, I remembered how Mom, my eldest sister-in-law, and third sister-in-law cooked at home. It turned out to be very simple, and just like that, I learned."

Kang Li said casually, and upon hearing her words, He Hui was extremely amazed, "In other words, you didn't actually learn how to cook formally, but simply by watching how Mom and your sisters-in-law do daily, you... you learned it?"

"Mhm."

Kang Li nodded with a smile, not the least bit embarrassed: "I'm very smart. Anything I set my eyes on, anything I want to learn, I can pick it up effortlessly."

He Hui laughed, her tone indulgent, "Yes, yes, our Li Bao is the smartest!"

Kang Li laughed along.

At this moment, He Hui changed the subject. Well, actually, she had been wanting to ask Kang Li something all the way to North City. Now, without beating around the bush, she asked straightforwardly, "Li Bao, tell your second sister-in-law, is marrying Luo truly your own decision?"

To avoid being overheard by Xiao Ming Rui, He Hui stepped closer to Kang Li and lowered her voice to ask.

Without a second thought, Kang Li nodded directly: "Mhm, it's my own decision."

He Hui: "But have you considered that being a stepmother is not an easy role to fill?"

Kang Li: "I know."

He Hui, puzzled: "If you know that, then why still..."

Knowing that the other party was asking out of concern for her, and that they were able to speak about private matters so candidly, Kang Li felt quite touched. With a smile in her foxy eyes, she said, "I think Comrade Luo is very good, and we're a great match, so I agreed to become his wife. Naturally, I wouldn't mind that he has children. I think... everyone's heart is made of flesh, as long as I treat the children well, they will eventually accept me as their mother from the bottom of their hearts."

He Hui still had her worries: "It's not that your second sister-in-law is unnecessarily anxious, Li Bao, but since ancient times, no matter what a stepmother does, she is always in the wrong. I'm truly worried about you being wronged in the future!"

"I know second sister-in-law cares about me, but what you said is not absolute. And I have confidence in integrating into this family, confidence in making Ruirui and the others truly accept me!

Second sister-in-law, please trust me. You and big brother really don't need to worry about me. I promise to do well in this marriage and live a smooth and joyful life!"

Grasping He Hui's hand, Kang Li's facial expression was gentle, but her eyes were decidedly firm.

"Alright, since you've said so, your second sister-in-law will trust you. However, if you ever encounter any difficulties, you must remember to call me and your big brother."

Squeezing Kang Li's hand more tightly, He Hui spoke with earnest, her words were not an empty platitude.

Kang Li nodded: "Okay."

Team Leader Kang and Big Brother Kang eventually returned to their hometown. The two men were personally taken to the train station by Kang Guosheng and his wife after they had finished their meal.

At the moment of farewell, Team Leader Kang reminded Kang Guosheng, "When you get back to Li Bao's place later, don't forget to accompany your wife and Li Bao to the department store to buy the washing machine."

Kang Guosheng: "Dad, rest assured, I won't forget."
