Chapter 81 Kang Li doesn't want to show off, she just wants to...

The man she married seemed to treat her well, but in reality... in reality, all he wanted was a son, a son from her.

Touching her belly, Su Man couldn't be sure that she was pregnant, but she felt it was very likely, as her period was five or six days late this month.

However, compared to her state of mind when she found out she was probably pregnant two days ago, she now... wasn't as happy.

Nevertheless, the child was hers. She would undoubtedly take good care of him and wait for the day he would be born.

Clutching a pillow to her chest, Su Man thought again of the sisters Wen Yue and Wen Yi.

In her last life, her sister Su Qing was the lady of the house, not only raising her three stepdaughters to be capable, but also teaching her own children very well.

Each of them got into prestigious universities.

At the time of her death, among the three sisters, although Wen Yue and Wen Yi had not yet graduated from university and Wen Yu had not taken the college entrance exam, they were all exceptional among their peers, with a promising future.

From this, it was not hard to deduce the kind of rich and enviable life her sister would lead in the future.

As her thoughts turned here, Su Man's mood improved significantly. She didn't believe she would be worse off than her sister Su Qing, unable to raise her stepchildren and own children to be capable.

"Sister, I am definitely more capable than you. Those three money-losers, I can equally raise them to get into prestigious universities, and as for my own child, that goes without saying. Moreover, I will firmly control those three money-losers and make them pave the way for my child, serving my child for a lifetime!"

Muttering under her breath, Su Man's eyes were full of schemes.

Luo Family.

After seeing off the two delivery drivers, Kang Guosheng helped Kang Li place the newly bought items in the positions specified by Kang Li, set up the TV antenna properly, tuned it to the operational channels, and then helped her install curtains in every room before finally sitting down to rest in the living room.

Meanwhile, Xiao Ming Rui and three friends who came over to play were sitting together watching the cartoon currently airing on TV, watching intently and very seriously.

Once the cartoon episode ended, Kang Guosheng cleared his throat twice and said to Xiao Ming Rui and his friends, "You can watch TV, but not too much, otherwise, it can cause eye problems, and it will affect your studies."

The twins didn't understand and tilted their heads, looking confused.

Xiao Ming Rui: "We're just watching the cartoon for a while."

"That's good."

Kang Guosheng nodded in satisfaction.

Main bedroom.

He Hui sat on the edge of the bed and chatted with Kang Li.

"You've got a good thing with that duvet cover."

With a duvet cover for protection, there's no need to worry about the duvet getting dirty, having to take it apart for a major wash, and then restitching it.

"I'm just lazy. But indeed, duvet covers and bedspreads are good things. If they get dirty, just take them off and wash them, no need to strip and starch everything."

Kang Li casually agreed, then added, "Sister-in-law, you might consider adopting this, it would save you some trouble."

"Good things are naturally worth adopting."

He Hui nodded with a smile.

"Sister-in-law, before I came to North City, I sent some things to you, my brother, and my two nephews. Did you receive them? If they're not suitable, you can make some adjustments."

"You sent us something?"

"Yes."

Kang Li nodded, then shared the discussion she had with her younger brother Kang Guoan and the rest of the family, making no secret of her continuation in sweet-talking her sister-in-law after her brother and other relatives.

She chose to bring up the "gifts" she sent, not to show off, but simply to inform her sister-in-law He Hui,
