Chapter 41: 41. Triple cashback

The phone rang. Riki opened his eyes slightly. It seemed like it was already noon. Who was calling?

Reluctantly, Riki rolled over and sat up. His hand automatically reached for his smartphone to see whose name was on the screen.

Riki immediately answered the phone.

"Hello, Evan? Hmm—what? What flowers? Oh—what did you say? Okay, see you later."

Riki remained silent after the call ended.

Evan said that all the rose seeds he planted were growing well. In fact, they were growing too well.

In less than a month, all the seeds had turned into adolescent-sized plants, some of which even had buds. Evan said he pruned all the roses that morning. He also said that sales at the shop had improved, even increasing by five percent from previous sales.

Riki didn't know if he would go to the shop later or not. He felt so exhausted after using his disguise skill, which required a lot of energy. Even though the energy taken was magical energy, not energy from Riki's body, he felt like his soul had been sucked out.

[You can increase your magical energy, master]

[The way to do it is by drinking an energy-absorbing potion, which costs only $50, and afterward, you can feel the magical energy in your body and around you]

"How could such a thing exist in this world? You know this is the modern world, right?" Riki asked, unaware that having a hologram screen in front of him was already strange enough.

[Of course, there is magical energy in this world, but because the people here are modern, they consider magical things to be just fantasy, so there is a lot of magical energy in this world].

Riki held his head, which felt dizzy. He didn't understand much about magic. But he needed magical energy because in order to perform strange skills, he needed a lot of magical energy.

"What are the effects if my magical energy increases?"

[The effects are that your body will feel lighter, and you may become stronger].

Riki immediately felt enthusiastic upon hearing that he could become stronger.

He hurriedly bought the potion recommended by the system. He bought a small ten-milliliter bottle and drank its entire contents, as one bottle was for one drink. He was only allowed to drink one bottle per day.

Riki felt a strange reaction afterwards; suddenly, his body felt warm. It was a very comfortable warmth.

It was invisible, but Riki could also feel a strange energy around him.

[You must close your eyes and breathe in that energy, like you breathe in oxygen]

[You can do it if you focus]

Riki did what the system told him to do. He tried to calm down, clear his mind, and then feel the foreign energy around him.

After a few minutes, he finally mastered breathing using that foreign energy.

Thirty minutes passed, and Riki felt completely full, so he stopped.

There were no significant changes, but he felt very light at that moment. So refreshed.

The door opened, and Deva's head appeared. He looked at Riki in surprise.

"Are you awake? Hurry up and come down. We're eating at Travis's place. There are many things to discuss with Arvin too. Come on!"

Riki immediately jumped down, feeling his body very light, his mind clear, and his mood improved.

"Okay! Let's go."

"What's wrong with you? You look very fresh this morning."

"Haha, nothing happened, it's just your imagination."

The two of them left the villa and headed for Travis's villa.

Arvin and Zeno were already there, sitting at the dining table, which was laden with various dishes.

Travis was very wealthy; he was the son of a famous businessman. So it was no surprise that he had set up his own agency, even though it was later acquired by Hayper Entertainment. However, being under Hyper Entertainment was the right move for him. That way, he had many advantages, and his small agency grew rapidly.

Hiring the best chefs in town was no big deal for Travis. So, Riki was very happy to see all the delicious food served there.

"Back from the enemy's lair, Riki?" asked Zeno.

Riki chuckled and nodded, "Yeah, it was a unique experience. Suddenly they were afraid of me after finding out I had a lot of money."

"Speaking of a lot of money, I have a good offer for you, buddy. That's why I'm here now."

Riki looked at Zeno with a confused look, "A good offer?"

[Today's first mission is to spend money to get triple cashback!]

[You only have three hours from now]

[If you spend less than two million dollars, you will fail, and the system will deduct one million dollars from your money]

Wait a minute, what kind of mission is this? Spending more than two million dollars in three hours is completely insane! Is this a difficult mission like the one at the supermarket back then?

"Yeah, I know someone who wants to sell some of their shares, I think you're the right person for this, buddy," said Zeno.

Riki looked at his good friend with a puzzled look.

"What do you mean?"

Zeno smiled mysteriously, "Don't you want to take revenge on the people who destroyed your family? How about starting by taking back the company your father built?"

Riki's eyes widened.

Riki's father had worked hard to build his business for three years. He turned a small company into a medium-sized one. Then, two years later, it became a company that was slightly bigger than before.

Riki's father could be considered successful. However, Riki's father was a good man. He was so kind that he didn't know that many of his trusted people were stabbing him in the back.

Riki's father was ousted from the company he had built himself. He then died of a heart attack.

"How much is that company worth, Zeno?" Riki asked, sounding much more serious than before.

Zeno laughed, then showed something on his smartphone.

"My uncle happens to own quite a lot of shares in K.H Company. You know that the company became very chaotic under your uncle's leadership, right? So—"

"He's not my uncle..." Riki muttered.

Zeno paused for a moment, then continued after remembering that it was Riki's close relative who was most likely behind the destruction of his family.

"Uh, sorry—so, um... because the company's management is bad, even though the products they sell are still competitive in the market. Still, the company could go bankrupt at any time. That's why my uncle sold all his shares."

Riki nodded with a serious look, "Yes, I'll buy them right now."

"Right now? But I haven't told you the price yet, have I?"

"Right now, Zeno, I'll buy them now! We have to hurry."

"But why are you in such a rush—okay, I'll call my uncle now, stop staring at me like that."

Zeno immediately contacted his uncle.

While eating their breakfast, which was a bit late because it was already almost noon, the stock transaction was finally completed.

However, even 35% of the company's shares only required less than a million dollars.

[You have purchased shares from K.H company for 850,000$!]

[You received a cashback of $2,550,000]

There were only two hours left.

"This is still not enough, Zeno. I have to buy something that costs more than a million dollars. I'm serious," said Riki.

At that time, they were in the living room of the villa. Neither of them joined Arvin and the others in their conversation. Riki had something important to do at that moment, which was to buy anything for more than a million dollars.

"Do you have to spend that much money right now?" asked Zeno in surprise.

Riki nodded, "Yeah, you know, I have to show those people that I have everything right now. Help me find something I can buy right now, like a mansion."

Zeno raised an eyebrow, "A mansion, huh? I think—wait, let me check first, I think there are still some mansions left... you know, I know someone at L.I. Company, they often build luxury mansions for the upper class. But, there are also many people who cancel their purchases. People like that initially say they want a luxurious mansion worth tens of millions, but it turns out that even after everything is built according to their dreams, they can't afford it. I mean—even if you want to build your dream house, just adjust it to your budget, right? Oh, there are two mansions that haven't been sold yet, Riki! Take a look at this—I think this one is nearby, look!"

Zeno showed a picture of a large, luxurious mansion with a super spacious yard, and behind the mansion was a large private beach.

Then, Zeno swiped his smartphone screen, showing another mansion.

"The previous one was around ten million dollars, and this one is around three million dollars."

The second mansion he showed was also quite nice.

But of course, Riki chose the first mansion because he liked the atmosphere around it. Plus, it was close to the beach. It was perfect. After all, he would get cashback.

"I'll buy the first mansion, now!"

Zeno was surprised.

"It costs ten million, Riki! You're crazy!"

Riki chuckled briefly, then returned to his serious face, "Buy it now, Zeno."

"Oh, you always manage to surprise me, buddy. Let's check out the mansion after the online payment goes through."

"Sure, but we're buying it now."

"Stop nagging! I'm calling them!"

Riki was driving Zeno crazy, but he couldn't deny that he was excited just because his friend was buying a mansion at such a fantastic price.

Chapter 42: 42. Manipulating the cunning woman

The mansion that Riki bought is still located in the vicinity of Travis's villa. This area is well-known as an elite neighborhood. Not everyone can afford to buy a villa or house there. The cheapest price in the area is three million dollars.

Owning a house, villa, or even a mansion in Palm Beach is a dream for most people. Others don't dare to dream because they know they will never achieve it.

Like Anton's family, they were only able to buy a villa for three million dollars after making a large profit from selling land.

The land was purchased by the government for the construction of a toll road, so they obviously got a high price for it. However, they obtained the land by deceiving people.

This made Riki wonder if the only way to get a lot of money was to commit a crime back then.

Riki was grateful that he never followed his heart to commit crimes just to get money.

Riki now had a system that allowed him to make money. Although it was in a strange way... Riki admitted that.

But it was definitely not through criminal means.

Riki could feel the envious glances directed at him. But Riki just smiled slightly. He entered the mansion and looked around inside.

Fully furnished.

Elegant and classic in style, but also with a unique tropical touch. It was truly a mansion suitable for an area near the beach.

That afternoon, Riki looked around his mansion with Zeno, Deva... and Anton, who always wanted to stick to Deva.

Knowing that Riki had bought a mansion in the area, Anton's mother and Andre were also curious and came to see it. They still couldn't believe that Riki, who was supposed to have fallen into the mud and never get back up, could suddenly afford luxury items, even a mansion worth ten million dollars.

Riki signed the sales contract, and it was finally done!

He finally completed his mission at the last second.

[You have purchased a mansion for 10.5 million dollars!]

[You received a cashback of 31.5 million dollars]

[Your mission has ended, you earned 5 points]

Riki smiled widely.

He had obtained so much money, more than he had ever imagined he could get before.

This is crazy!

Riki felt the envious stares growing heavier, piercing his back.

However, when he turned around, the envious stares turned into broad smiles.

"Oh, Riki... I didn't know that your father left you so much wealth, dear, you are very lucky. That's what I wanted to tell you," said Sandra.

Riki smiled broadly, hiding his annoyance because he knew the woman would say that.

People like her were very predictable.

"What did you want to tell me?" asked Riki, pretending to be innocent and stupid.

"Not here, it's a secret, dear... how about we talk somewhere else?" asked Sandra.

Riki turned to the others, "You guys can look around here first, I'm going to talk to Aunt Sandra alone, it's important," said Riki.

Zeno and Deva nodded in agreement, while Anton and Andre just stood silently, feeling very jealous of the mansion.

Riki looked back at Sandra, "Come on, auntie, let's talk over there, it looks more comfortable."

Riki took the woman to the veranda next to the mansion. There was a classic white gazebo with a long chair and a table for relaxing. From there, they could see the empty garden and the beach.

Riki could ask Evan to take care of the garden later, and the view there would definitely be even better.

"Talk, Auntie," said Riki.

Sandra felt very unsure about what to say. But she was a greedy woman who would do anything to get what she wanted.

"Here's the thing, Riki... this is an old story, but I think you should know about it now. You see, before your father married your mother, I had some problems, and then—um, please don't get mad at me, okay?"

Riki was still smiling, looking very relaxed at that moment, which made Sandra even more courageous to reveal the facts about the past.

Riki glanced at his system screen, which was doing its job, namely the automatic recording feature that Riki could buy for $500 at the system store.

The feature was like a hidden CCTV camera, recording whatever Riki wanted to record. It was a great feature, although it was quite expensive, because $500 was for one week of use. Riki had to buy it again when the week was up.

However, it was very useful for moments like this, and very helpful.

"Auntie, relax, after all, I already consider you my own aunt. In the past, you were always there even when my mother was sick in the hospital, right? You were there to replace me in taking care of my mother. Just say it, Auntie."

Riki's words sounded so innocent and harmless that Sandra was a little hesitant, but she had to say it for herself and Anton's sake.

Suddenly, Sandra started crying. Riki knew they were fake tears. But Riki pretended to panic and gave her a handkerchief. It was actually a poisoned handkerchief.

Riki had deliberately prepared it for Sandra.

"Riki... Edwin and I slept together. I didn't tell your father that I was pregnant with his child because I didn't want to ruin your parents' happiness at that time. It turns out that Anton is also your father's child, so Anton is actually your biological brother, dear. Forgive me for only telling you all this now."

Suddenly, Riki laughed, surprising and confusing Sandra.

Riki covered his face with both palms, continuing to laugh, leaving Sandra confused.

"Riki?"

Riki stopped laughing, opened his palms, and said.

"Oh, sorry, Auntie... I actually already knew all that. Look at this photo, Auntie! This is you and Dad, right?" Riki showed a photo from his smartphone.

It was a photo of Sandra and Edwin drunk.

Sandra was certainly very surprised to see that photo with Riki.

"You... how—"

"I got it from my mother's old files, auntie... I thought, what is this photo, but it turns out there are some explanations on the back. My mother's writing, saying that you two slept together. My mother also wrote there that it was before my mother and father met. There was no explanation that Anton was my father's child, but... auntie's husband had difficulty having children. Andre was even conceived through IVF. It was possible that auntie was pregnant with uncle's child, but that was only about a 2% chance? How could that miracle happen to produce Anton? Even Andre was conceived through IVF? Why didn't uncle suspect anything, even though a little kid like me could figure it out so quickly?"

Riki's words made Sandra feel confused and scared at the same time.

"Ri... Riki... you—"

"Auntie, I also have some videos from old files at home. I don't know why they're all there. Do you want to know what they are?" asked Riki. He didn't need the woman's permission to show her the CCTV footage that the system had provided.

It was a video of Sandra injecting something into Riki's mother's IV fluid.

"Wait... wait a minute, that wasn't me! I swear, that wasn't me, Riki!"

Riki laughed again, "So, are you still going to ask me for my father's money? For Anton, right? Do you think I'm going to keep quiet with all this evidence?"

Suddenly, Riki's voice became very cold. So cold that it felt like it could pierce Sandra's heart.

It made the woman feel suffocated for no apparent reason.

"Ri... Riki—"

"I won't report you if you do whatever I tell you to do. How about it? I'll keep quiet about this video, but you have to do something for me. If you betray me later, I'll spread the video recording and also the recording of our conversation now."

Hearing this, Sandra panicked, looking around frantically for hidden CCTV cameras.

But of course, she found nothing.

Then Riki played a video, which made Sandra's eyes widen in disbelief.

It was a recording of when they first arrived at the gazebo.

"Where are the CCTV cameras! How could you do that when this mansion was just purchased!"

Riki laughed even harder at Sandra's fear. But the woman couldn't move her body; when she was scared, she froze there.

"Now you know how great I am, right? I'm not like my parents, who are easily fooled and taken advantage of. So, what's your answer now? If you refuse, you will lose everything, and your husband will surely divorce you, right?"

Sandra immediately grabbed Riki's hand and held it tightly.

"Please! Save me, Riki! I'll do whatever you tell me to do, please... don't spread any videos."

Riki was satisfied to hear the woman's voice, which was trembling with fear.

So this is what it feels like to be a bad person? It was very enjoyable, because Riki was hurting the most cunning woman he had ever known.

Riki immediately pulled his hand away, unwilling to be touched by the woman.

"All right, all right, auntie... for now, I want you to get shares from K.H. Company. I know your husband has them. After that, give me those shares. Because I am the one who is most entitled to them, and besides, those shares will soon lose their value because the company is going bankrupt."

"I'll get all of that for you, Riki! Don't worry... I can even give you shares in the company from my husband's friends too."

Riki smiled broadly, "That's good... get them for me soon, I don't like waiting long, auntie."

Chapter 43: 43. Cunning plan

"Ed, are you there?" Sandra stepped onto the second-floor balcony of her villa. She found her husband sitting relaxed, enjoying the view of the beach while sipping his hot coffee.

"So, does that kid really have the money to buy that mansion?" asked Edward.

Sandra sat down next to Edward, bringing her own coffee to keep her husband company. After all, she needed caffeine to stay sane in the face of the bitter reality of her life.

How could Sandra have known that Edwin, Riki's father, had that much money stashed away somewhere? If Sandra had known, she would have told Edwin that Anton was his son before the plan to bring Edwin down was carried out.

Damn.

Now it was too late, because Riki—wait, maybe it wasn't too late at all.

"That kid really does have money, Ed. I think his father did stash away a lot of money for emergencies. Who knows, maybe he's not as stupid as we thought, right? And maybe he only told Riki, or someone he really trusted to tell Riki when he grew up. Right? It must be like that."

Edward raised an eyebrow after hearing his wife's words.

"So, it's real? All of it isn't fake?"

Sandra sighed heavily, "Unfortunately, it's all real, Ed. But I have a good plan. I'm sure he still doesn't know anything if you're involved in Edwin's murder plan."

Edward laughed upon hearing this, "Haha, of course he doesn't know. A stupid boy like him couldn't possibly know anything. We hid all the evidence neatly. In fact, all the evidence has been destroyed. So, what's your plan? It would be even better if we could get that damn boy's fortune. After all, Deva is friends with him, right?"

Sandra smiled, thinking she could use this moment to get the shares Riki wanted.

"So, the plan is to pretend to be nice to him. You don't have to do anything, just give the shares of Edwin's company back to Riki. He will definitely be very grateful to us, right? If possible, convince your friends to give up their shares. After all, the company will soon go bankrupt. He's willing to buy everything. After that, I'll keep getting close to him and look for an opening so we can gain his complete trust," said Sandra.

Edward laughed heartily; he was always satisfied with his wife's cunning.

"You're always so clever at coming up with cunning ideas like that, my dear... Giving the shares to Riki is very easy. The shares, which are now drastically devalued, won't last long. I'll give him a low price, and he'll be very grateful, right? But once he gets the company back, there will be nothing left, it will be too late, and he'll be very sorry and devastated, hahahaha!"

Edward and Sandra laughed happily, feeling that they had the situation well under control.

Like sparks and gasoline, the two were perfect for each other.

***

"How about it, this is great, isn't it? I want you to build a beautiful garden there, as beautiful as possible, as luxurious as possible... don't worry about the funds, I won't run out of money," said Riki.

At that moment, he was already in Little Heaven, specifically in a small office on the upper floor of the store.

He said he was a little late because he had to buy a mansion first. Of course, Evan and Daniel were very surprised.

Riki said he had just bought a mansion as if he were buying candy at a convenience store.

That's why Evan and Daniel looked at photos of the mansion on Riki's smartphone. Seeing rich people flexing was entertainment in itself for the two of them.

"Speaking of the team to work on the garden, Riki... everything has been taken care of. So, I hired some people who are very skilled in their fields. And... there is someone who is talented enough to do all the designs for the garden. I hope you will accept her, because she doesn't have any titles in this field... but I'm sure she's very talented, it's just that—"

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance, "Get to the point, Evan, don't beat around the bush," he replied.

Evan scratched the back of his neck, looking very awkward.

"That person also helped design the gardens that Liz worked on... in fact, Liz recommended her to me, I mean—"

"Do I know her?" asked Riki, impatiently.

Evan nodded quickly, "Y-yeah..."

Riki furrowed his brow, "Then why beat around the bush? It shouldn't be a problem, just tell me her name. If she's talented, then I won't have a problem hiring her at Little Heaven. We prioritize talent, not just diplomas, which can be deceiving."

Suddenly, the office door opened from the outside, and someone entered.

As she entered, the room suddenly became brighter, more dazzling. A soft and elegant fragrance spread.

Oh, Riki recognized this scent. When he turned around, his thoughts did not disappoint him at all.

"Angeline?"

"Oh, boss! I finished looking at all the flowers in the garden... they're all beautiful, especially the roses and chrysanthemums—oh, I forgot that I haven't been accepted to work here yet."

Riki was, of course, very surprised. Of all the people, why did Angeline suddenly apply for a job at Little Heaven? Wasn't she a fairly well-known model? She had quite a few followers on social media. She usually gets endorsements for certain products. By posting just one product, she can earn a lot of money.

But suddenly she wants to design gardens and work at Little Heaven?

Why?

It's unbelievable.

If it were Liz, Riki might not be this surprised.

Angeline gracefully approached Riki and showed him something on her pink iPad.

"Look at this, Riki! I designed the garden concepts for Liz myself. I've always loved designing gardens... and Liz happens to love gardens. She was happy to use my designs, and she said I was talented. Then, I also wanted to prove to my parents that I could work hard! They don't think working with my face is hard work, so— um, can I be accepted?"

Riki took the pink flat object and looked at Angeline's work.

It was a very beautiful design, with unique and elegant concepts. It was like a painting that was painted softly and with feeling in every stroke.

Riki knew that Angeline was a girl who always excelled in everything. She was very ambitious.

In terms of appearance, she liked to take care of herself, and she also had good genes. So her appearance was always perfect.

Academically, she was also very diligent and smart. She was known for often being at the top of her class.

In terms of career... she had been a model since she was little, an influencer who was quite influential, especially in the world of beauty and fashion.

Even so, a shining star will always be surrounded by jealous and hateful people.

Angeline receives insults every day, even when she hasn't done anything wrong. However, Angeline is able to turn their hatred into motivation to keep moving forward.

That's why Angeline is the most beautiful girl in the university. Even in this city, if Riki may say so.

With all these advantages, why did even her own parents say that she hadn't worked hard all this time? When Riki met them, they seemed very nice.

"Of course you will be accepted, Angeline. You have the opportunity to be accepted as a permanent employee here too, by making a design sketch for the garden at my mansion. Do you want to do it? I need to know how good your work is, right? I'll send you photos of my mansion's grounds. Give it a try," said Riki. He took his smartphone back from Evan's hand.

At that moment, Evan and Daniel just stayed silent, pretending to be busy with something so they wouldn't feel awkward there. Considering that the two of them had dated before.

But actually, only they felt awkward, not Riki and Angeline.

"I've sent it," said Riki.

"Okay, I'll work on the design for you. So, I can go home, right? I'll do my best."

Riki nodded, "Of course, did you bring your own car, Angel?"

Angeline nodded, "Yeah, I brought my Porsche."

No wonder Riki saw a pink Porsche in the parking lot. Apparently, it belonged to Angeline.

"Do you want me to walk you to your car?" asked Riki.

Angeline shook her head, "No, you're my boss, not my date anymore."

Now, Riki felt awkward. He was just making small talk, but somehow that awkward feeling just came out of nowhere.

He felt bad for Angeline. They had decided to stop dating only because Riki didn't really like Angeline.

Come to think of it, Riki was very inconsiderate. However, feelings cannot be forced.

No matter how perfect Angeline was, if there were no feelings, it would just feel bland.

Old people say that love comes after you get used to someone. But Angeline herself felt uncomfortable dating if she was the only one who had feelings for Riki.

Chapter 44: 44. Angeline

"Oh, I suddenly feel very awkward," muttered Riki, which Evan could hear.

Daniel, who felt bad about letting the girl go down alone, finally accompanied her down to the parking lot.

Angeline didn't refuse, because Daniel was the manager there. Meanwhile, Riki and Evan were, so to speak, the owners of the store.

"Can I say that you are very inconsiderate for rejecting such a beautiful and talented girl?" said Evan.

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance, "I know I'm inconsiderate! But feelings can't be forced!"

Evan sighed heavily, "So, you liked Liz from the start, huh? I still remember, before you dated Hannah, you said she was the most beautiful girl you'd ever seen. I thought you were talking about Angeline, but it turned out to be Liz... I was surprised at the time."

Riki looked at Evan with an incredulous expression, "So you think Liz isn't beautiful? Just because she was chubbier back then, she was still beautiful!"

"I didn't say she was ugly! Oh my god... but yeah—maybe we have different tastes, Riki. Liz looks like a Barbie doll, while Angeline looks like a ball jointed doll, you know what I mean, right?"

"It's just their makeup, Evan. Liz would look like that if she wore the same kind of makeup."

Evan furrowed his brow, "Really?"

Riki sighed irritably, "Never mind. I'm going to meet Jake for a bit, I'm leaving!"

"Let's have dinner together later, Riki!"

"Okay!" Riki replied, continuing to walk out of the office.

Unfortunately, when Riki left the store, it suddenly started to drizzle.

He hurriedly got into his car.

[Your second mission today is to stop someone who intends to commit suicide on the roof of your office building]

Riki furrowed his brow upon hearing his new mission. Who in their right mind would go to an office building just to commit suicide? They must be completely insane.

[Make sure to calm him down, because he got some talent in business]

[If you succeed, you will receive a randomly selected reward, which is an A-level reward]

[If you fail the mission, your office building will have a bad reputation, resulting in a significant decrease in value]

Riki knew the mission wasn't too difficult, but why did the punishment for failure make him so annoyed?

Riki was just an ordinary human being who could make mistakes.

[That's a normal punishment, because if someone commits suicide in that building, then the office building will have bad news in the articles, you wouldn't want that as the building owner, would you?]

Well, that makes sense.

Riki had arrived in front of the building.

The people inside the building certainly recognized who Riki was, after Andre had made an unnecessary commotion earlier.

They put on their big smiles, greeting Riki warmly, but Riki walked quickly. He was in a hurry to get to the roof of the building.

He hoped he wasn't too late to stop the person from committing suicide.

However, the women who saw him didn't lose their smiles.

The very handsome Riki looked radiant in their eyes.

"The owner of this building is so handsome!"

"Why is he in such a hurry? I want to see his handsome face longer."

"Come on, you guys, you're too old for the building owner!"

"What's wrong with fantasizing? It's free!"

Meanwhile, Riki quickly reached the roof of the building. He used a special elevator, so he didn't have to share it with other employees.

However, when he arrived at the roof, Riki was confused. There was no one there.

Don't tell him that he was late...

Suddenly, someone came and bumped into Riki's shoulder, but he seem didn't even notice.

Riki really wanted to reprimand the man, but he immediately changed his mind after seeing the man's back.

It looked like he was carrying a heavy load on his back.

But it seemed like he recognized the man. He looked like his senior from high school, who was also the student council president. A kind, smart young man with many friends.

Riki hadn't heard from him since college, but—what was the former student council president doing here?

"Jean! Is that you?" shouted Riki, after confirming that the man was his former high school classmate.

However, the man did not turn to Riki at all. He continued walking until he reached the edge of the building's roof.

Riki walked quickly, approaching the man, Jean.

When Riki pulled Jean's shoulder, he could see empty eyes staring back at him.

Jean pushed Riki's hand away, then turned back and was about to jump.

"JEAN! STOP!"

Riki grabbed the man's shoulder again. Fortunately, Riki was stronger than him. Riki tried to shake the man's shoulder to wake him up.

"Hey, Jean! Wake up!"

Slowly, Jean raised his gaze and looked at Riki with eyes full of sadness.

"Oh, it's you, Riki, isn't it? Let go of me and just let me die."

"No!"

Riki dragged Jean away from the edge of the building's roof.

"This is my building, I won't let anyone kill themselves foolishly here. If you have a problem, try talking to your friends!"

Suddenly, Jean rebelled, trying to run back to the edge of the building's roof.

Riki, who was impatient, pulled Jean with all his might, then hit him.

Jean fell silent after being hit, then slumped down and sat on the floor.

He couldn't even shed a tear or show any anger. He was completely devastated.

"Jean... please listen to me."

"I'm sorry, Riki!"

Riki was very confused by this sudden apology.

"What?"

"I used to underestimate your problems in high school. And now, karma has caught up with me. My family is destroyed. My parents are divorced, and my mother left with her new husband. My father drinks heavily and is in a lot of debt. The friends I thought would help me immediately distanced themselves when they found out I had problems. My girlfriend ran away with her lover after trapping me with bank debt. My mother also suddenly called me, saying she needed money for a vacation with her new husband. Meanwhile, today, I was suddenly framed and then fired by my boss. So, who should I talk to about my problems, Riki? I have no one now! Let me die in peace!"

Riki fell silent.

He saw the same despair he once felt.

Before he got the system.

Jean might not be as lucky as Riki, but...

"You still have me, Jean. Consider this my way of repaying you for always helping me when I was bullied at school."

Jean laughed weakly, "Riki, I was the student council president back then. It was normal for me to help you."

Riki shook his head, "You needed a rich friend to help you, right, buddy? And I was that friend. Come on, get up and go to my office. We'll talk about everything properly, okay? I might have a job for you too, because I happen to need a lot of workers. So, this isn't just free help."

Jean, who didn't like being pitied, felt relieved to hear Riki's words.

They went downstairs to the office where Jake was.

"Oh my God, boss! You're soaking wet!" Jake shouted after seeing Riki and Jean. Their clothes were wet because it was drizzling outside.

"Quickly get some clean towels for the boss! Take two! If there are any clothes, take those too," Jake shouted again.

Riki chuckled at Jake and the other employees who were so panicked.

"Calm down, Jake, I'm fine. No need to panic like that," said Riki.

"How can I not panic seeing my boss—oh, isn't this an employee from the office below?" Jake finally turned to Jean.

Jean smiled awkwardly, confused about what to do, so he just stood there and smiled slightly.

"Yeah, he just got fired, and this is a good coincidence, we can hire him," said Riki.

Hearing that, Jake and the employees there were shocked.

How could their boss immediately hire someone who had just been fired?

"I know you're confused, but Jean was just framed and... I really believe in his abilities. He has extraordinary talent, I'm sure of it."

Hearing this, Jean was deeply moved. It turned out that someone who used to be so small and fragile had now become someone so great, with a generous heart, and he even believed in Jean.

In fact, they hadn't seen each other in a long time.

"Why do you trust me so much? What if I get fired because my skills are poor?" Jean muttered.

"This is not the time for that. Just prove your abilities, and then you'll have the money to fix your messy life. As you know, I also had the same difficulties as you in the past. But I wouldn't be like this without help. So don't be shy, buddy... just take the good opportunity given to you, don't waste it."

Riki's words not only moved Jean, but also made the other employees look at Riki with happy expressions.

They were happy that their boss turned out to be a good person.

Despite their boss being very young, Riki was a good person, not arrogant and tyrannical like their image of other young people with a lot of money.

"Then, I'll take the job here, Boss Riki! I'll do my best and won't disappoint you," said Jean, sounding more enthusiastic than before.

At least, Riki could see a glimmer of life there. There was no longer a Jean who wanted to kill himself.

Chapter 45: 45. Sweet potato

"Why do you look so tired?" asked Evan, who had just arrived at Riki's apartment. Evan brought something with him.

"A lot has happened, and I got caught in the rain, so my body feels very tired," replied Riki. He felt that his body was still fine, but at the same time, he felt that something was strange about his body.

"Since when did you get sick just from getting caught in the rain? Your immune system is much better than mine." Evan sat on the sofa in front of the big television.

On the table in front of the sofa, Riki had prepared some food, which he had ordered from a nearby restaurant. Riki didn't have time to cook, and besides, he didn't want to bother.

"Whatever, what did you bring, Evan?" asked Riki, who was curious about Evan's belongings.

Evan opened the package he was carrying, revealing something that felt nostalgic to Riki.

"That's..."

"Sweet potatoes, you like these, right? I brought them for you. You remember if I have an inheritance, right? One of them is a large plot of land in the village. Before I sold it, the land was actually planted with sweet potatoes. But because it was neglected, it was just abandoned. Now the new owner of the land is clearing it. He harvested all the sweet potatoes and distributed them to the neighbors. And it turns out he also picked the good ones and sent them to me. I'm sharing them with you. There are purple sweet potatoes, yellow ones, and white ones too... all of them are definitely sweet. Oh, there's also a bonus of purple taro."

Riki still remembers that Evan's family often gave him sweet potatoes. Riki used to roast or steam them. He often couldn't eat for a day, so he was very happy when he got sweet potatoes, cassava, or sometimes potatoes from Evan's family.

But what Riki liked the most were the yellow sweet potatoes.

Evan smiled seeing Riki so happy to receive something as simple as that. Even though Riki now had a lot of money, he hadn't changed. Evan was very relieved to see that. He thought Riki wouldn't accept the sweet potatoes.

"I'll make something with these later. Let's eat first, Evan, I'm hungry."

"While watching a movie, okay? What movies are trending right now?" asked Evan, who had already turned on the TV and was choosing a movie to watch on a popular app.

"I don't know, you know more about these things than I do, right?"

Evan glanced at Riki in surprise, "You're younger than me, but you don't even know what's trending among young people? Have you ever opened your social media?"

Riki, who was ready to eat his meal, turned to Evan and looked at his friend with a lazy gaze.

"When I didn't have money, I didn't have time for things like that because I was busy working while studying. Then after I had money, I was still busy working to start a business, Evan. I only look at social media when I need to."

"But people need entertainment, Riki! Let's go camping on the weekend, or go to the movies."

"Do I need all that? I have a campervan, but I think I'll go to Hayper Entertainment on the weekend."

Evan looked at Riki in disbelief. How busy was his friend that even on the weekend he had to go to Hayper Entertainment?

"Why are you going there, Riki?"

"I was asked to come, Evan... it seems like they want to talk to me about something. Actually, I already handed that kind of thing over to Jake."

"You're making Jake very busy, Riki!"

"Don't worry, now there's Jean—you remember the student council president, right? He works with me now."

Once again, Riki made Evan look at him with an expression of disbelief. Of course Evan remembered Jean. A friendly person, with many friends, skilled in everything, always looking like someone with a bright future.

"Jean?"

"Yeah, you were in the same class as him, right? He even graduated before you."

Evan clicked his tongue in annoyance, "Don't compare me to someone as smart as him! Besides, I took a leave of absence from college, right? Of course he graduated first, but I'll graduate and get my degree soon, just you wait and see."

Riki chuckled at Evan's annoyed expression. That was ridiculous.

"Okay, hurry up and choose a movie and eat! You're wasting too much time just choosing a movie!"

Finally, Evan chose the latest movie starring Deva and Travis. It was a fantasy teen movie about fairies, vampires, and werewolves. Even though the movie was released about a month ago, it was still very popular. There were even many requests for a second season.

It was a movie that made Devano and Travis famous in a short time. Moreover, their visuals were very suitable for the characters they played.

Devano, with his snow-white skin and blood-red lips, was perfect for the vampire character. Likewise, Travis, who had a tall, exotic, and sexy light tan body, with a face like a prince from a fairy tale, was perfect for the werewolf character.

Moreover, the actress playing the fairy is a young actress who has been in the acting world for a long time.

Selene Rozeth.

With her iconic fairy-like beauty, she also has extraordinary acting talent.

Their food was gone in no time, even though the movie wasn't over yet.

Riki, who rarely watches movies, was easily drawn into the storyline. Although there were many things he thought were a bit strange, it was fantasy, so of course anything could happen.

However, since things like systems and magic really existed, could something like fairies also exist?

Well, that was just Riki's wild imagination. Besides, what would he do if he met such a creature?

***

Liz stared bored at Kaivan, who was playing computer games in front of her. The girl sighed repeatedly as she read an article about Riki that was trending on social media.

People were starting to find out about Riki because he had repeatedly made surprising appearances in the virtual world.

This time, suddenly, out of nowhere, they were talking about the mansion that Riki had just bought. Riki hadn't posted anything on his dusty social media accounts.

But Zeno, who had helped Riki get the mansion, posted about it. It wasn't surprising, because Zeno had connections with luxury real estate agents. Zeno has many followers on social media and he often posts things like that. Because if someone buys property through him, he will get a commission.

That's how the conglomerate's grandson gets richer every day.

The sound of a courier delivering food orders could be heard. Kaivan immediately rushed over to the courier, because he was the one who ordered food that night.

It was very rude considering Liz was trying to lose weight.

Even though she received a gift from Riki that helped her lose fat, she still maintained her diet. Liz was also trying to learn skincare and makeup from her cousin, Angeline.

However, Angeline herself was busy with the garden design that Riki had requested.

Liz felt like she was the only one with nothing to do.

She felt very left out.

Even Kaivan, who was playing games, wasn't just playing. Her twin brother had loved games since he was little, and he even learned how to make games and now had his own startup company. The company made several games that were currently very popular with children and teenagers.

The game Kaivan was playing at the moment was the latest game he was developing with several of his professional employees.

Once again, the girl sighed heavily.

Should she do something too? But what? All she could do was sing, but she didn't even know if she was good at singing.

Liz left the living room before she was tempted by the donuts and pizza Kaivan had bought.

"Where are you going? Don't you want a donut? There's a vanilla cheese donut that you like, with strawberries on top," said Kaivan.

Liz hesitated to take the donut or not.

The donuts Kaivan bought were Liz's favorite too, they were soft donuts with delicious vanilla cream in the middle.

"Okay, I'll take one," Liz took one of her favorite donuts.

"That's unusual, you usually take two," replied Kaivan, who also gave Angeline a chocolate strawberry donut.

"Where are you going?" asked Angeline, when she realized that Liz was standing up, about to leave.

"I'm going to do something in my room," replied Liz, who hurriedly left before they could ask any further questions.

Angeline and Kaivan looked at each other, feeling that Liz was very strange.

"I don't understand why the girls in our family like one young man, who is even very bad at understanding women's feelings," Angelo suddenly appeared. Angeline's younger brother was ready to try Kaivan's new game. But eating donuts was more important.

"Finally, someone understands my feelings too. I don't like Riki, but I also understand why they both like him," said Kaivan.

Angeline clicked her tongue in annoyance, "I actually like men who are not easy to get, like him."

Angelo and Kaivan looked at Angeline with surprised expressions. Then Angelo said, "He's clearly a jerk, Angeline! Wake up."

"He's not a jerk, he's just—"

"Just what? You can't defend him anymore? He is a jerk!"

Liz, who heard their argument from upstairs, just shrugged, not really caring.

There was something she had to do in her room at that moment.

She had to make herself proud of something, so she wouldn't be compared to Angeline anymore.

Liz had to find her talent.

Chapter 46: 46. Handsome young man

The morning sun peeked through the curtains of Riki's bedroom window.

It was already morning, and Riki was awake, but he just sat silently staring at the ceiling. Actually, he was just thinking about what he had to do today.

Jake and the other employees had already taken care of some of the work. Then, Jean would also take care of the shares of K.H Company so that the company could soon become Riki's property.

If the company became Riki's property, he would move the old office to his own office building.

After all, the company was almost bankrupt. Articles on the internet had spread the news that the company was laying off a large number of its employees.

It seems that the plan of "those" people is simply to destroy the company. Or... maybe they are just so greedy that they don't realize they have destroyed the company.

Initially, K.H Company was quite large, with profits of up to $10 million. But over time, especially after it was taken over by his father's relatives, the company was unable to even make a profit of $500,000.

Perhaps even now, they have no profits at all. Riki doesn't know how much they are currently losing.

What is certain is that he wants to restore the company's glory once again. And the person Riki trusts to do that is Jean.

It turns out that Jean's name is also on the list of people Riki can trust to help with the business, which was provided by his system. Riki only realized this last night.

After acquiring shares at a low price with Sandra's help, Riki will spend a lot more money on rebranding and other things.

Riki has to show those people that he can do it. Then he will trample on them, just like they trampled on his family in the past.

The people who were jealous of his parents. Riki will make them suffer slowly.

[It seems you need more money, master]

"Hmm, of course I need a lot of money for my plan. Will you give me a new mission?"

[Of course, master!]

[Your first mission today is to stop a robbery at a small bakery that just opened]

[The shop is near your university]

[The robbery will take place around 6:20 a.m.]

[If you are late, your mission will fail and you will be punished by having your stats points reduced]

[But if you succeed, you will have the opportunity to get triple cashback on what you buy]

Riki immediately got up from his reclining position. He couldn't waste such a good opportunity.

He glanced at the digital clock on the nightstand.

It was still 5:30 a.m.

It turned out that Riki woke up too early.

He had plenty of time to get ready.

Around six in the morning, Riki was ready. He went down to the parking lot to get his car.

It only took him about five minutes to get to the store.

The shop opened at six in the morning. The aroma of freshly baked bread wafted through the air as Riki got out of his car.

Riki had just found out that there was a pretty good bakery there, with a cake house theme. It was a shop that would stand out, especially to children and girls.

When Riki entered the bakery, a girl was arranging some freshly baked bread and cakes.

"I just found out there's a bakery here," said Riki.

The girl was surprised; she hadn't realized that a handsome customer had come to the shop.

"Oh! Welcome! You're our first customer today, and the shop just opened yesterday, so it's no wonder you didn't know about it. Please take your pick, sir," said the girl, who was very friendly and smiled a lot. She had a bright smile, as bright as the morning sun.

"I don't know, do you have any recommendations for me? I haven't had breakfast yet, so I'll have breakfast here," said Riki.

"In that case, how about blueberry bread with cheese spread and a glass of hot chocolate? That's my favorite breakfast menu. Especially because the bread with dried blueberries is very delicious, you have to try it!"

Riki was interested in the offer. He accepted it and also ordered other items, such as a cheese croissant and tiramisu.

After ordering, he sat down at a table near the window. He checked the time on his smartphone.

It was still 6:15 a.m., only five minutes left.

At 6:18 a.m., the girl came back to serve Riki's order, then went back inside.

Not long after, Riki saw a group of thugs coming.

They looked like a bunch of drug or alcohol addicts who liked to gamble until morning.

Riki immediately called 911 as they approached the store.

"Oh no! They're coming again! Patricia!" the first girl called out to someone inside.

Another girl came out, who was most likely the older sister of the first girl. They both had the same red hair.

Both girls were very beautiful and unique. They wore brown maid-style uniforms with white lace aprons in front. Both of them also had their hair braided into two pigtails.

Before the thugs entered the store, the two girls immediately came out to chase them away. One carried a broom, the other a wooden stick.

"Go away, you guys!" shouted the girl named Patricia.

"We won't leave until you give us $1,000 as security!" shouted one of the thugs.

"This store just opened, we don't have that much profit!" shouted Patricia again.

The thugs laughed when they heard this, as if it was very funny.

"Then let us take bread and cakes for free here! That way we'll leave," said another thug.

"You can also pay with your bodies..." said another thug.

They stared at the two girls with lewd looks.

Riki, who couldn't stand it anymore, finally came out of the store.

"What's going on here?" asked Riki.

"Is there a strong hero here?"

"You think you can defeat all of us? Your small body will be beaten to a pulp if you dare to fight us!"

Riki, who didn't look the least bit scared, stepped forward to face them. He signaled to the two girls to back away, to be safer.

"So, you want to be kicked out violently? That's fine too, come on and fight me," said Riki, deliberately provoking them to come forward first.

Not far from there, a car stopped. Two people got out, one carrying a camera, and the other a beautiful girl who was popular as an influencer. She was a girl who liked to make content about culinary.

Coincidentally, she got the recommendation for the bakery from Liz and Angeline, because the three of them had known each other since junior high school.

"Looks like there's a fight, Ben! Quickly record it all! There's a handsome guy fighting them, I'll live stream it on social media!" said the girl, Bella.

Thanks to Bella's live stream, the incident went viral in no time.

Riki managed to defeat the thugs because, basically, they were extremely tired after drinking alcohol and using drugs. The police arrived to arrest them, the troublemakers in the area.

Bella came to interview Riki on her live broadcast.

"Handsome young man, can you explain what happened here and who you are?" Bella asked.

Confused, Riki tried to answer Bella's question.

"Oh, I'm Riki, a student at a nearby college. I'm here because I heard that the bread here is very good, then suddenly those thugs came. Of course, I tried to help them."

Bella was silent for a moment, stunned by the handsome young man in front of her. But she quickly came to her senses when her friend, Ben, asked her to interview the two girls who owned the shop as well.

Riki returned to the shop, finishing his bread, cake, and hot chocolate.

He didn't know that he was the topic of heated discussion on social media.

After all, Riki hadn't been on social media for a long time.

[You have successfully completed your first mission!]

[Your reward is triple cashback for a whole day. Ends at 12 midnight]

[You gain +5 to your strength]

[You also gain 5 points]

"Excuse me, Riki."

Riki looked up and saw the two girls who owned the shop and Bella standing in front of him.

"Thank you for helping us today," said Patricia.

"My name is Veronica, and this is Patricia. We really owe you," said the first girl, Veronica.

"No, it's my duty as a fellow human being," replied Riki.

"You are very kind, we will give you some bread and warm cakes as a gift, please accept them," said Patricia.

"O-okay, I'll accept it."

Patricia and Veronica left to prepare the gifts for Riki.

Meanwhile, Bella suddenly sat down in front of Riki.

"Hey, handsome," she said.

"Yes?"

Bella smiled broadly, "I didn't know there was a young man as handsome as you at the university. I have a friend at that university, and I guess I was too busy to know about you. You must be very famous, right? By the way, can I upload the content I made earlier?"

Riki nodded, "Of course, you can upload it. But I'm not famous, and I'm not that handsome. My friends are more handsome than me. I'm just average," said Riki. He wasn't trying to be modest; he genuinely felt that way.

After all, the people around him, like Evan, Zeno, Deva, Travis... they were very handsome. So, Riki saw himself as average.

"You must be very humble, Riki. Can you introduce me to your friend? Who knows—"

"Oh, Jake! Evan! Why are you here?"

At first, Bella was annoyed because Riki ignored her. But after she turned around and saw the two young men approaching Riki, she understood why Riki had said what he said earlier.

It turned out that Riki only hung out with good-looking people.

Chapter 47: 47. The secret

"I came here because I saw Bella's live stream and was worried because you were fighting those thugs alone. It just so happens that I also have class today," said Evan.

"I was looking for food around here when I ran into Evan," replied Jake.

Riki nodded in understanding, then turned to Bella, who seemed very fascinated by Jake and Evan. Riki had expected this; he thought he wasn't as handsome as the two of them.

[You and them are on the same level, why do you keep thinking like that? Remember, you have to think clearly, you can't feel insecure or anything bad because you have everything and can get everything.]

Riki wanted to chuckle when he heard the system's voice. However, the system's words gave him enough motivation.

Why should he feel insecure just because the people around him were more handsome? Riki had everything and could get everything.

"Are you really that famous, Bella?" asked Riki.

Evan laughed at Riki's words, "Haha, gosh, Riki really doesn't care about social media. Bella is an influencer or content creator who usually makes content about food. She even often promotes small businesses, especially those related to restaurants. She is also studying culinary arts at the university next door. She is quite famous, Riki," said Evan.

Bella smiled happily upon hearing Evan's explanation about her, feeling proud of her own achievements. Just yesterday, she had complained to Ben that she was not satisfied with what she had done so far.

"Then we can be friends, Bella. Who knows, I might need you someday," said Riki.

Riki's mind immediately connected Bella with his father's company, which he would soon inherit. The company had several instant food and beverage products.

"Really? I'd be happy to be needed by you," Bella replied quickly.

"How about promoting the restaurant?" suggested Jake.

"Bella went there yesterday, I saw the content on social media," replied Evan.

Bella was surprised to hear this, "Wait a minute, yesterday I went to a restaurant owned by my friend's brother."

"If his name is Jayden, then that's the restaurant we're talking about. Riki has shares there," replied Jake.

Bella was surprised again, then she said, "So... you're the one who saved Jay? Wow, it's a small world after all—does that mean you have a lot of money?" Bella asked, looking very enthusiastic.

However, Riki was a little confused by Bella's first sentence.

"Saved Jay?" asked Riki.

Bella nodded quickly, "That's right, if the restaurant couldn't be saved, Jay might have been forced to back off from his position as heir apparent. There is competition within their family. Jay has to be able to build a business with his own abilities, with his own money, finding his own connections. In fact, he is the one who is most entitled to be the heir—uh, I think I've said too much."

Then Ben arrived, saying he had ordered all the bread and pastries Bella wanted. Bella left with Ben after getting Riki, Evan, and Jake's contact numbers.

"Why didn't Jay tell us about his problem?" asked Evan.

Riki shrugged, "I don't know, maybe he just wasn't ready to tell us yet, right? But I'm grateful to know him, because he has a talent for the restaurant business. I get the benefits, and he gets his rights as an heir. I think it's a win-win situation."

Then, Riki turned to Jake, who was silent, eating Riki's cheese croissant. Riki didn't mind, because he was already full from eating blueberry bread and hot chocolate.

Then Veronica and Patricia arrived, bringing two boxes filled with various breads and cakes. Of course, Riki accepted their kind gesture, because it would be rude to refuse someone's gift.

Even so, Riki insisted on paying for his previous order. Although the two girls refused, they finally accepted Riki's payment.

Right after Riki, Evan and Jake left, several young people arrived. From their conversation, it seemed that they had come after Bella's live stream.

They also recognized Riki, but Riki hurriedly got into his car.

Evan and Jake got into their own car, although Riki arrived at the parking lot at the same time as Evan.

"What are you going to do with all that cake, Riki?" asked Evan.

"I'll share it with Liz."

Evan laughed when he heard that, "Is she the only one on your mind? I'm your best friend standing right here," he complained.

Riki laughed and opened the cake box, "Take whatever you want, buddy."

Riki only brought one box at that time, which contained cakes, while he gave the box of bread to Jake to share with other employees at the office.

Before their class started, as usual, they hung out in the park first. They looked for a quiet and comfortable spot to eat cake there.

Riki, of course, invited Liz too, because he was sure she had already arrived at campus.

However, it turned out that Liz wasn't the only one who came. She came with Kaivan, Angeline, and Zeno.

As Riki had expected, Angeline approached him and showed him the design she was working on. She was so enthusiastic that she had made two designs.

The design were both very beautiful, and Riki liked them both.

"It seems you have a talent for this, Angel. Evan, do you think you could make a garden like this?" asked Riki, passing Angeline's iPad to Evan.

Angeline sat up straight, looking nervous, afraid that Evan wouldn't like her designs. Compared to Riki, Evan understood more about gardens, especially Daniel.

Previously, when Angeline applied to work at Little Heaven, Evan and Daniel easily found various mistakes in her designs.

"Oh, this is much better than before. As I thought, you are very talented in this field, Angeline. If you want, I can focus on your garden first, Riki. Because yesterday I already fixed Liz's garden, so I can work on your garden right away. As for the store, let Daniel handle it," said Evan.

Kaivan and Zeno remained silent because there was food there, while Liz was still haunted by what she had done yesterday.

She had created a social media account just to upload content. She didn't even dare to open it, afraid that the results would not be as expected.

Because of that, Liz was less focused this morning. In fact, it was Kaivan who read Riki's chat earlier, not Liz. Suddenly, Liz was dragged to the garden.

Of course Kaivan wanted to come because of the food there.

"Well then, this weekend, come to my mansion. I'll take you there later, but during the day I'm going to Hayper Entertainment," said Riki.

"You're making me work, buddy?" replied Evan, just joking actually, because he was really excited to be invited to the mansion. Going there was like going on vacation, because there was a beach behind it.

"I'm coming! Let's go, Liz," replied Angeline.

"Oh? O-okay..." replied Liz, who was lost in the conversation. She didn't understand what Angeline was talking about.

"Then I have to come too," said Kaivan.

"Stop following your twin, Kaivan. Evan is a good person," replied Zeno.

Kaivan shook his head, "I believe Evan is a good person, but I don't trust Riki."

"Hey, I'm going to Hayper Entertainment after that, and I'll be back in the afternoon," replied Riki, annoyed by Kaivan's childish behavior.

"You promised to update the app with me, you idiot," Zeno retorted, annoyed that Kaivan had forgotten his promise so easily.

"Oh, I forgot. In that case, I'll go there after I finish my business," replied Kaivan.

Riki wondered why Kaivan still couldn't trust him. But well... if he were in Kaivan's position, after his cousin and sister liked someone as stupid and indecisive as Riki, maybe Riki would act the same as Kaivan.

Well, Riki couldn't complain.

[Your second mission today is to help Liz solve her problem]

[You will receive a reward of +5 to charm]

[There is no penalty, so you can refuse this mission]

Riki turned to Liz. At that moment, he realized that the girl seemed to be lost in her own thoughts.

What was wrong with her? Was she jealous because Angeline was working for Riki? But, it didn't seem like Liz would be jealous of something like that.

There was no other way but to ask the girl directly. However, for some reason, Riki was very happy to know about the mission. Because he now had a reason to approach the girl again.

A few minutes later, Riki and Liz were in class. They were waiting for the lecturer to arrive, because the lesson would start in about five minutes.

At that moment, Hannah arrived late, but there was something strange about her. She was wearing a mask to cover her face, and even her eyes were covered with sunglasses.

She sat in the corner, a place where no one would notice her.

However, precisely because she was covering her face, the others began to notice her.

Anton then arrived. Without saying much, he sat a little far from Hannah.

People began to speculate that Anton and Hannah had broken up. They began to pity Hannah, who had dumped Riki, and then was also dumped by Anton.

"Do you still like her?" Liz asked suddenly.

Riki immediately turned to Liz and shook his head, "No, why would you ask that?"

Liz shook her head, asking a question that surprised Riki, because he knew Liz wasn't the type of girl who liked to ask such questions.

"Me and Hannah, who is more beautiful?" asked Liz.

At that moment, Riki looked at the girl more closely. It turned out that Liz had changed her makeup style. This time, she was wearing makeup similar to Angeline's.

"I think you're much more prettier."

Liz smiled when she heard that.

[Your second mission has been successful! Liz has regained her enthusiasm]

[You have gained +5 points for charm]

[You have also gained 1 system point]

Huh? What happened?

The second mission ended just like that?

Wait a minute, Riki didn't do anything yet.

Chapter 48: 48. The talent

"Do you have a problem, Liz?" Riki asked immediately after class ended.

Liz, who was packing her things into her bag, turned to Riki and smiled.

"A problem? What human being doesn't have problems, Riki? And one of my problems is that the person I like seems to be playing with me... he makes me fly high, then knocks me down quickly, but then makes me soar high again." Liz turned to Riki, looking at him with her sweet smile.

"Are you in love with someone, Liz?" asked Riki, confused by the girl's words.

[She's talking about you, master. Why can't you understand something this simple?]

Riki raised an eyebrow, not believing that the system had just said to him. It seemed like the system was fed up with the way Riki's brain worked, taking a long time to understand a girl's words.

"Forget it, actually, I'm thinking about a lot of things, one of which is... what talents I have. I feel like I can do many things, but I don't feel like I'm good at everything I do. My abilities in the things I like are, in my opinion, only average," said the girl.

Riki nodded, trying to understand what the girl was saying, but he was always distracted by her beauty.

"What are the things you like, and what do you like the most?" asked Riki.

Liz sighed deeply, then tried to think, "Like gardening, I do it to relieve stress, and I like it. When the flowers grow and bloom beautifully, or when the seeds I plant grow well. But I also know that I'm not very good at it. Then, I also like making clothes. My mother is a designer and has her own boutique. She taught me how to design my own clothes and sew them myself. But I also know I'm not an expert at that either. Just like my other hobbies, such as knitting, singing, dancing, traveling, songwriting, and my new hobby lately, which is learning makeup. Actually, what I like most is singing or songwriting at certain times. Well, even though I realize that my abilities are average."

Riki was silent at that moment, staring at the girl. Liz looked sad, but also enthusiastic at the same time. It made Riki realize that Liz's problem at that moment was just to convince herself that she could be better than others.

No wonder when Riki said that Liz was prettier than Hannah, the mission was immediately successful.

And it seemed that Liz needed encouragement from others to tell her that she also had talent in certain fields.

"Then, how about we find out if you really are talented or not," said Riki.

Liz looked at Riki with her enthusiastic gaze, which was adorable.

"Like... how?"

"Show me how you sing."

Suddenly Liz became nervous, even though Riki's smile had made her feel more relaxed.

"But not here... I'll show you somewhere else," said Liz.

Riki nodded, "Okay, let's go to the park. I'm sure there won't be many people there."

Liz shook her head shyly, "How about we go to the roof instead? There won't be anyone there."

The roof?

The university building certainly had a roof, and it was quite an interesting place. There was a mini garden up there, and even a mini vegetable garden. It was equipped with several solar panels, which helped with the electricity problem.

However, no one knew who started it, but there was a horror story about that place. Because of the horror story rumors, even the garden and vegetable garden had been neglected for several months. Riki didn't know if the plants there could survive or not.

But one thing was for sure, it was very quiet there. Because the place had become haunted, even though the horror story was just a rumor.

"Of course."

Riki and Liz went up to the roof, unaware that someone was following them.

Of course, it was Hannah.

Hannah just didn't like seeing Liz take Riki away from her, even though she was the one who dumped Riki. But as if she had amnesia, Hannah didn't remember that she was the one who cheated first.

Hannah felt a chill when she found out that Riki and Liz had gone to the roof of the building. But she tried to keep following them, even though she was scared. If the two of them went to a secluded place like that, Hannah was sure that they would do something indecent.

Moreover, she had heard earlier that Liz was going to show Riki something there.

What a bitch. Hannah knew that Liz was definitely a cheap woman; she even made her cousin break up with Riki.

Hannah, who was happy that she could embarrass the two of them after this, chose to do a live broadcast on the most popular social media platform.

Hannah had always been very active on social media, so she had quite a lot of followers. Because Hannah was very beautiful, and she also often flexed her wealth. Even though everything she showed off was Anton's wealth, Anton's gifts... and everything Anton owned.

Even so, she also often showed off Riki as her boyfriend in the early days of their relationship. Because Riki was handsome, of course. But she soon stopped showing off Riki when she found someone richer than him, namely Anton.

Riki didn't know anything about it, because he didn't have time for social media.

By doing a live broadcast, people would quickly see the embarrassing things that Riki and Liz would do.

Hannah was sure her live broadcast would be a sensation.

Hannah did a live broadcast while secretly recording Riki and Liz there.

"I'm not sure, Riki..." said Liz.

"It's okay, relax, Liz, I know you can do it. If you're embarrassed, then I'll never know if you're talented or not," said Riki.

Liz closed her eyes, cleared her throat several times until her nervousness disappeared. Then she started singing.

Hannah, confused as to why Liz was singing instead of taking off her clothes, just stood there silently, lost.

Liz's melodious voice was loud. It was very soft and clear. Liz's singing voice was like a gentle breeze or a river flowing in the countryside. It was soothing, but also powerful at the same time.

Riki was speechless when he heard it.

How could this girl say she wasn't talented when she could sing such a difficult song, with its various difficult high notes, so effortlessly? It was as if the song wasn't difficult at all.

Even though Riki and Hannah didn't know much about singing, they knew Liz was using great vocal techniques.

Hannah was stunned at that moment.

Damn it.

The live broadcast was indeed crowded with viewers, but that was because of Liz's extraordinary voice. It wasn't because of the indecency that Hannah had thought of earlier.

Viewers in the comments started asking who the girl with the beautiful singing voice was. People began to recognize Liz.

Was Hannah helping that girl become famous?

Oh, damn it.

Hannah turned off the live broadcast and immediately left before she got even more annoyed.

Now, everything seemed to have turned around. In the past, Hannah was the one who received a lot of praise because she was beautiful, friendly, and had a great style...

Hannah could also bully rich girls like Liz because of her slightly chubby body, calling her fat, and also laughing at her for liking Hannah's boyfriend at the time, Riki.

But suddenly Liz became slimmer and healthier. Liz's appearance became fresher and more beautiful with a light touch of makeup. She also turned out to have such an extraordinary singing talent.

Damn it!

"Where have you been?"

Hannah stopped when she saw Anton waiting for her at the bottom of the stairs.

"None of your business!" Hannah tried to get past Anton, but he quickly grabbed her hand.

"Let go of me, Anton!"

"Why are you covering your face like that? Don't tell me you just had plastic surgery! My credit card that you're holding also has a lot of charges, Hannah! Quickly return my credit card!"

Hannah quickly racked her brains, not wanting to lose Anton again.

She grabbed Anton's arm and hugged him.

"Come on, Anton... you'll be happy if I'm prettier than Angeline and Liz, right? Then, we have to work together to get back at Riki for always embarrassing us."

Anton pushed Hannah's hand away and glared at her.

"Stop acting up! If you still want to be with me, be a calm and nice girl. Stop bothering Riki, because he now has a lot of money. He even bought a mansion for ten million dollars! He even bought back the shares of the company that used to belong to his father. You'd be stupid to do anything to him, because you'll definitely get karma again."

Hannah, who didn't want to give up, grabbed Anton's hand again.

"Then I won't bother him anymore. But help me, Anton! I have to become an idol now!"

Anton furrowed his brow, confused by Hannah's strange request.

"What are you saying just now?"

"Come on! I want to surpass Angeline and Liz! You'll help me, right?"

Anton finally gave in. He felt like a fool who was still trapped with Hannah.

"Okay, but promise to do it well, okay?"

Chapter 49: 49. Spend some money

"Are you sure you don't want to have dinner with me?"

Liz chuckled softly. Riki had asked her that question three times, but Liz's answer remained the same.

"Tonight, Angeline and I are welcoming our distant relatives. They will be staying at Angeline's house, but I have to go there to help. Besides, I'll come to your mansion this weekend," said Liz as she got out of Riki's car, which he had opened for her.

"Liz—"

"It's not like you don't have anyone else to have dinner with, right?" asked Liz, before Riki could finish his sentence.

Riki chuckled, feeling very silly. He just wanted to have dinner with the girl, even though Riki could actually have dinner with his friends.

"Okay, how about next time?" asked Riki.

Liz nodded, "Of course. Next time..." muttered the girl.

Riki was already back behind the wheel, smiling before finally driving away.

"Eewh."

Liz immediately turned around, not at all surprised to see Angelo. The teenager was mocking her with a cheeky expression.

"Oh, go away, Angelo! Don't bother me."

Angelo didn't listen to his cousin, he just kept following Liz from behind.

"Stop following me, Angelo!"

"Are you getting cocky because you became famous overnight?"

Liz stopped, then turned to look at her cheeky cousin.

"What do you mean?" asked Liz.

Angelo took out his smartphone and showed her the content she had created the night before and uploaded to her social media account.

At first, Liz was confused. It was no surprise that Angelo saw everything she uploaded, because they even followed each other on social media.

But then Liz saw how many likes her video had. Liz quickly grabbed her own smartphone and checked it.

With around 300,000 likes and more than two million views, Liz's video was going viral.

It was just a video showing the girl singing on her balcony. It was less than a minute long.

"Besides that, there was a live broadcast by someone at your campus. I think it was taken secretly. Do you want to see it? Many people recorded the live broadcast and re-uploaded it."

Liz was silent, her mind racing with her own thoughts. She didn't expect to suddenly go viral on social media.

"What should I do, Angelo? People already know who I am! They'll soon find out that I used to be very fat!"

Angelo laughed when he heard this.

"Oh my God, you're overreacting, Liz. All you have to do is make another video! I'll help you, cousin," said Angelo.

"How?"

"Did you forget that I'm good at playing the piano? We'll record another singing video!"

Liz just gave in as her cousin pulled her arm to quickly enter the house.

***

Riki was busy with the launch of his product. There was a lot to do, such as stocking goods, promotions, advertising videos, and so on. At that time, only half of the process had been completed. All that was left was the promotion and advertising video.

They needed a capable model for the product. Someone who could attract the attention of their potential buyers, most of whom were young women.

"I've prepared some advertising model recommendations for this product, boss. Here's the list," said Jake, preparing a list of models that would suit their product.

Since it was a beauty product, Jake's list consisted of several female models who were in high demand by various brands. Some of them were celebrities, famous models, idols, and even influencers.

Riki even saw Angeline's name on the list. No wonder, she was an it girl wherever she went. She had a fresh and adorable beauty that would be loved by every woman.

"We can ask Angeline to do it, after all, she's my employee now," said Riki.

Jake furrowed his brow, "You mean Angeline Harland?"

Riki nodded, "Yes, she insisted on working at Little Heaven."

Jake showed a silly look of surprise, but Riki could understand his shock. Because a girl as talented as Angeline, who could easily become a famous idol, model, or even an actress if she had acting skills... why would she work at Little Heaven?

"You're serious, right?" asked Jake.

Riki chuckled, then nodded, "Yes, but it's just a job she can do at home and relax. I think she'll still accept the job as an advertising model. She's also a beauty influencer on social media, right? So, you can contact her. Oh! I also want Sean to be a model for this product, because I think he's perfect for it," said Riki.

Jake nodded, "Okay, but for Sean, that means we have to wait until his problems are resolved, right?"

Riki sighed deeply, "Yeah, we'll go to Hayper Entertainment tomorrow afternoon."

"I hope everything gets resolved quickly, boss. Since Arvin Raynold is helping them, I think they'll succeed without much unnecessary drama."

Riki nodded and smiled. He also hoped that everything would be resolved quickly and that Vicky would be brought to justice for her murder plot.

Riki didn't know if David could be brought to justice too, but he hoped that David would also be punished.

"Oh yeah, boss... Jean said he could immediately process the takeover of the bankrupt company. However, are you sure you want to spend a lot of money on that company? According to Jean, it could work to make the company successful again, but the chances are low."

Riki smiled and said, "Even if the chances are low, there's still a possibility, right? Oh yeah, Jake, help me spend some money."

Jake turned back to Riki, looking at him with a confused expression before finally asking if he had heard him correctly.

"What did you say?"

"Help me spend some money, for example, buy the biggest mall in this city, buy a famous nightclub... I need to spend a lot of money, Jake!"

"Are you serious?"

Riki nodded, "Very serious. What should I buy now?"

Jake was stunned for a moment, until he realized it, then immediately looked for what they could buy around there. He forgot that his boss had more money than he could even imagine.

"Right now, there are several properties you can buy, and it can all be done in just a few hours. Like a beautiful resort, several large stores and—"

"Buy everything, Jake! Don't think about anything, just buy everything, okay? You can arrange it for me, right? I'm going to the roof for a moment to clear my mind."

Jake nodded, "Okay, boss! Leave it to me, but do you have a limit on how much I can spend?"

Riki smiled slightly, "About fifteen million dollars, Jake. Buy anything, whether it's profitable or not. Okay?"

Riki then left, leaving Jake looking very excited.

Actually, Riki just wanted to know whether the people the system deemed trustworthy to work with him were truly trustworthy or not.

Because, in truth, humans easily become reckless and greedy when it comes to money.

Riki needed to know how wisely Jake would carry out his tasks.

Riki had reached the roof of the building. The wind was blowing quite strongly that night.

It was cold, but Riki found the coldness of the night quite pleasant.

He let the night breeze blow against his face.

The view of the city at night was so clear. It was beautiful. It was dazzling.

Riki sat on a plastic chair that was somehow up there. Maybe Jean had put it there for someone to jump off the building, or maybe it was just for someone who wanted to sit there.

Since the roof of the building was quite spacious, Riki planned to open a kind of cafe there, to relax or hang out. After all, office workers who were stressed out from work would definitely come to the roof often if it was comfortable.

[You have purchased a resort for 2.5 million dollars]

[You have successfully received a cashback of 7.5 million dollars]

[You bought ownership of an orphanage for 450,000 dollars]

[You have successfully received a cashback of 1,350,000 dollars]

[You bought ownership of an orphanage for 800,000 dollars]

[You successfully received a cashback of 2.4 million dollars]

Wait a minute, Jake bought all that so quickly! And he bought two orphanages!

Next, Jake continued to buy several other properties. Such as two large stores in strategic locations, several vacant lots in the city center, and Jake also bought ownership of a guesthouse and campground on the outskirts of the city. It was located on top of a hill that was famous for its incredibly beautiful view.

The total purchase was only around 9 million dollars.

Then, Jake stopped.

Riki chuckled. It seemed that Jake bought anything that would be very useful for Riki.

[You have donated one million dollars to a trusted foundation that usually helps underprivileged children]

[You get a cashback of three million dollars]

Riki snorted. Jake was really wise in using money. Unlike Riki. Well, maybe it was because yesterday Riki only had a short time, so he panicked.

But still, Riki didn't think of donating his money to those in need.

Riki returned after he was satisfied with just sitting and looking at the bustling city view. He was already feeling hungry.

Jake gave a report on all the money Riki had spent in a short time.

Everything Jake wrote was in accordance with the system report.

"Can I know why you bought these two orphanages, Jake?" asked Riki.

Jake began to fidget, as if he was hiding something.

"I'm not angry, in fact I'm quite impressed with where all my money was spent. Can you tell me the reason?" asked Riki.

"You won't be angry if I tell you the truth, right?"

Riki furrowed his brow, "Why are you making me suspicious?"

"It's not a bad thing... it's just that one of the orphanages is where I used to live before I was adopted. And the other orphanage is where my younger sibling is."

Riki had no idea Jake came from an orphanage. He thought Jake came from a wealthy family.

"Why should I be angry about that, Jake?"

"Because... I bought it of my own free will."

Riki laughed when he heard that.

Chapter 50: 50. Sugar baby

Having a lot of money didn't make Riki accustomed to all that money. He only thought about how he could make his money useful, or how to make it grow even more.

However, suddenly, the system asked Riki to spend the money on himself.

Because of that, Riki found himself in that famous place.

A nightclub called White Pearl, a place that was more upscale than Cherry Liquid.

Of course, Riki wasn't alone. He was with Evan, Jayden, Jake, and Jean. Jayden had invited him, and Riki happened to be with Jake and Jean. As it turned out, Jayden had come with Evan.

They were in the VIP area because Riki didn't like crowds.

Suddenly, the system screen appeared and said.

[Why aren't you having fun, master? Once in a while, eat good food and drink expensive drinks]

[You have a lot of money but you're too frugal and only think about business]

[If it weren't for the triple cashback, you wouldn't buy so many things]

Well, that wasn't the mission, and Riki was very surprised to hear it. The system was mocking him, and Riki found it very strange. Considering that a robot said all that—oh, wait a minute.

Was the system a robot? Could it be that someone was controlling the system?

Ugh, it was better not to think about strange things.

Riki was hungry.

As the system said, Jayden took them to that place not because he wanted to have fun or get drunk. It was because the place was famous for its delicious and classy food.

Since it was Riki's first time there, he didn't know what was on the menu. So, he asked the waiters to bring them everything they recommended.

The waiters there were very happy to hear that. Riki was sure they would bring him all the most expensive items on the menu.

"You didn't tell us you were a rich kid, bro," Evan asked Jayden.

Jayden chuckled when he heard this, "My parents are rich. As for me—they even kicked me out of the house," he said, sounding very sad.

Jake patted Jayden on the back and replied, "It seems like your family problems are quite complicated, bro. It's okay if you can't talk about it yet, because we just met."

Jayden smiled bitterly, "I can't tell you guys not because I just met yall, it's just... too difficult for me to remember it again."

"Then don't remember it, and I think everyone has their own stories that are difficult to express," replied Jean.

They were silent after that.

Meanwhile, Riki wasn't paying much attention to their conversation. He just stared outside, where drunk people were dancing to relieve their fatigue.

His brow furrowed when he saw someone he knew there. But, as far as Riki remembered, that person shouldn't have been there because she was still underage.

Riki stood up, surprising the others.

"Where are you going, Rik?" asked Evan.

"You guys talk first, I want to make sure of something," he said, then left. He approached the crowd.

Riki felt many pairs of eyes staring at him, but he didn't care. He kept walking, pushing through the crowd until he found someone he seemed to know.

Riki tapped the person on the shoulder until she turned around.

Riki was surprised because he hadn't mistaken the person.

"Sofie?" called Riki.

The girl called Sofie shook Riki's hand off her shoulder. She looked at Riki with disgust.

"Ugh, what are you doing here? Do you know that this is a high-class nightclub, huh? Are you working part-time here? Hahaha, crazy. Someone like you can work in a nice place too, huh? I didn't think you still remembered me, cousin! Ugh, I hate calling you cousin because you're not on the same level as me," said Sofie.

"SOFIE! Wake up, you're only 17 years old! You're not allowed to be in a place like this! If you get caught—"

Riki stopped talking when Sofie laughed loudly, "Hahaha, if I get caught what? My boyfriend is an influential person! He has a lot of money, he can even rent this place just for the two of us. So, a poor person like you would definitely beg me for money, right? Unbelievable, you're so disgusting, Riki. With your looks, I could introduce you to rich old women to be their sugar baby... just like me."

Riki knew his cousin was drunk. She was even talking nonsense.

Riki, who still cared a little even though he hated his uncle's family, tried to drag the girl to the edge.

However, after Riki managed to save the girl from the crowd and several perverted men who wanted to touch her, the girl slapped Riki instead.

"Damn it! Why did you drag me here? Are you crazy?"

"Let's go home. I'll take you after I finish eating," said Riki. He dragged the girl back into the VIP room.

"Hey! Let me go! I don't want to— Let go! Help, security!"

Suddenly, a man came over, about to punch Riki. However, in Riki's view, the man's fist came slowly.

Riki didn't know if it was the one of his skills. But thanks to that, he was able to catch the man's fist quickly, then push him backwards until he fell.

The man immediately got up and glared at Riki angrily.

When Riki looked closely, the man seemed to be quite famous. Riki felt like he had seen his face somewhere before. But he couldn't remember at all.

Unexpectedly, Sofie ran into the man's arms.

"Daddy! Why did you take so long? He's a jerk who wanted to touch me, punish him quickly!" Sofie said, pointing at Riki's face.

Riki chuckled, not expecting his cousin to actually become a sugar baby for a man in his late thirties.

The man was quite handsome, but he was almost the same age as her parents. And Riki was sure that the man must have a wife and children at home.

"So, you prefer that man over your own cousin who is kindly trying to help you?" asked Riki.

Sofie laughed out loud, "Help me? Help yourself, poor Riki! You're poor but you have a lot of nonsense! Don't talk so much if you can't even help yourself... look at me. Even though my father went bankrupt, I found another way to still get the luxury items I wanted! Unlike you, who is short-sighted and works hard like a poor person. Don't come near me because I'll catch your poverty."

Riki felt really stupid for thinking he could help the girl. Even though she was Riki's cousin, Sofie's family was one of the reasons for the destruction of Riki's family.

In fact, the luxury that Sofie mentioned earlier was the luxury she got from Riki's father.

Sofie's family took everything, and they considered it all theirs.

When they found out that Riki, who was still underage, was having difficulties, they just stood by and laughed at him.

"Fine, cousin, whom I will no longer refer to as my cousin... go play with your old sugar daddy. I won't interfere," said Riki. Then quickly, Riki entered the room he had been in before.

"Daddy, why don't you just kick him out? I'm sure you can do it, he's just a part-time worker here," said Sofie, clinging affectionately to the man's arm.

"Are you stupid? Look, he's entering the VIP room, which is off-limits to ordinary people. Even though he works here, I think he works for someone influential. It's better if you come with me to a better place," said the man. Not forgetting, he waved a few bills at Sofie.

Seeing all that money, Sofie became excited.

"Of course, let's go to a better place, daddy!"

Meanwhile, Riki, who was sitting back down, couldn't feel happy seeing all the delicious food served there.

"Who is that girl?" asked Jayden.

"My cousin, and she's 17 years old," muttered Riki.

They were all stunned to hear this.

"Isn't the rule here that you have to be at least 19 years old to enter?" asked Jean, confused.

"She said her old boyfriend could arrange everything for her. I tried to help, but she—ugh, forget it," Riki muttered.

Besides, if it was worth helping, the system would make it a mission. However, the system didn't tell him any missions.

Riki was sure that meant he didn't need to help Sofie.

However, Jake's words after that made Riki feel uneasy.

"That guy... isn't he the one who's often in and out of jail for selling stolen cars? He often gets into trouble because of that. But since he always manages to get out of jail easily, I think he has someone influential helping him," said Jake.

"How do you know that?" asked Evan.

Jake shrugged, "I've seen him appear several times in the news. He was arrested for illegal business, but somehow he always manages to get away."

"Are you sure you don't want to help your cousin, Riki?" asked Jean.

Riki sighed deeply, "I don't know... it feels hard to help her after being rejected once."

Jake, Jean, and Jayden, who had been helped by Riki even though they were nobodies, were surprised to hear this.

"You guys might be confused, but Riki's family was destroyed because of that girl's family... even though they were supposed to be relatives, instead of helping, they always insulted Riki," said Evan.

Riki tried to eat his food, but he couldn't swallow it properly.

Damn it!

Riki shouldn't feel sorry for people who don't even want to be pitied.

Suddenly, Riki stood up and walked out of the room.

"Riki, wait!"
