

The Most Powerful Wealth System #Chapter 61.

Assassination attempt - Read The Most Powerful Wealth System Chapter 61. Assassination attempt

Chapter 61: 61. Assassination attempt

As Riki suspected, his uncle was trying to contact him.

It was nighttime.

Riki woke up from his sleep after the heavy rain had subsided. He saw that the clock on his smartphone showed that it was three in the morning.

Because he had just turned on his smartphone, all the notifications popped up.

This included several missed calls from an unknown number. At first, Riki doesn't want to know about the unknown number. Until a message came from the same number.

That said that it was his uncle's number. As Riki had suspected, his uncle was trying to act nice first. Even the language used in the message seemed very sweet and sickening.

Riki's fingers moved on their own to block the number. He didn't want to be contacted by anyone from his uncle's family. Or anyone from his father's family, who had never been nice from the start. The ones who had been nice from the start were Riki's mother's family.

When Riki's family was struck by tragedy, they came and comforted Riki's mother.

But unfortunately, none of Riki's mother's family were rich. None of them had money, not even for themselves. However, they always tried to help.

Especially his mother's older sister. Or Sean and Selene's mother. She was a strong woman. She didn't have any money, but she still tried to help Riki's mother.

Until Riki's mother died, and Riki's jerk of an uncle not only refused Luna's or Raynold's family's help. He also refused to let Riki's mother's family come to visit.

Riki knew this because his uncle was afraid they would ask for Riki's parents' inheritance.

He was truly greedy.

In fact, his uncle didn't share a single penny of the inheritance that should have belonged entirely to Riki.

But now, after finding out that Riki had some assets, after finding out that Riki had repurchased his father's company shares... he came and begged for help.

"Ugh, jerk..." Riki muttered.

Riki couldn't sleep anymore. He was feeling emotional and needed some fresh air to calm himself down.

So, he tried to step over Sean, who was sleeping with him. He tried not to make any noise so as not to wake Sean, as well as Selene, who was sleeping comfortably on the sofa. The girl insisted on sleeping there, even though Riki had offered her a bed.

But it seemed that the girl was comfortable sleeping in her cocoon sleeping bag.

Meanwhile, the others rented tents and set them up outside.

After making hot coffee, Riki got out of the campervan.

The cold, damp air immediately greeted him. Thick fog enveloped the place.

The atmosphere became quite mysterious.

Riki opened a folding chair and lit the kerosene lamp that Selene had brought. It was a small lamp that could be hung or placed on a small table.

With just that small lamp, Riki's vision, which had been blurred by the thick fog, became clearer.

The distinctive smell of wet soil and grass wafted through the air. It calmed Riki's mind after the stress caused by his uncle.

[Since you didn't get any missions yesterday, would you like to do one now?]

Riki furrowed his brow, "Oh? Why didn't I get any missions?"

[Of course, because you were on vacation.]

[The system is flexible and follows your activities, not the other way around. Because the system was created to make you happy.]

Riki laughed upon hearing the system's words. Even though the voice was just like a stiff robot's, Riki could feel the warmth in it.

Something created just for Riki and tailored to Riki, right?

Ah, why did the system's words make Riki feel touched? It was as if a small spark of enthusiasm had crept into his heart.

It made him feel like he could do anything at that moment.

"But isn't it still nighttime? It's ten minutes past three. What kind of mission can I do?" asked Riki.

[Of course there is, master!]

[So, are you willing to do it? You can do it alone or bring one person with you]

[You can also get an unexpected reward]

Riki sipped his coffee, tasting the bitterness he used to hate, which now felt very ordinary on his tongue.

"I'm willing," said Riki.

[Your mission tonight is to stop an assassination attempt—]

"Hold on, system! It's still nighttime, it's dark with thick fog everywhere, and you want me to do what? Stop the murder? You're crazy," whispered Riki, not wanting anyone else to hear him.

[So, you're just going to let this murder happen? An innocent person will die in vain, and the perpetrator will be free to go anywhere without having to worry about being punished]

[It might even be difficult to find the body because it was thrown off a hill]

Oh, damn it!

Riki's strong sense of humanity once again could not be ignored.

Riki, who had experienced many difficulties in his life, found it easy to sympathize with the misfortunes of others.

Damn.

[At least you won't feel sorry for someone who has been mean to you, right?]

Riki clicked his tongue lazily, then finished his coffee.

He stood up from his seat and headed for one of the tents nearby.

When Riki opened it, he saw Zeno, Aslan, and Evan sleeping soundly.

Riki was unsure whether he should go alone or take someone with him.

Whatever luck was on Riki's side, Evan suddenly woke up. He just sat up.

"Riki? What are you doing here?" Evan asked, then yawned and stretched.

"Let's go to the toilet at the end of the road," said Riki.

Evan, who was awake but still sleepy, looked at Riki in surprise.

"Isn't there a toilet in the campervan?"

Riki shook his head, "I can't use it if Selene is there."

Riki was actually just making an excuse, but he himself was surprised because his excuse made sense.

"You're right, I also need to pee. The toilet is near the hill, right? Let's go."

Finally, Riki and Evan walked towards the toilet near the hill, because all the toilets were there.

[The perpetrator was getting his potential victim drunk, after which he would take her up the hill and kill her there]

With that clue, Riki could guess that the two people drinking near a bright gazebo close to the hill were the ones the system was referring to.

Riki could see them clearly from in front of the toilet.

After they finished their business in the toilet, Riki held Evan back and continued to stare at the two people climbing up the hill. The perpetrator and the potential victim.

"What's wrong, Rik? It's still too late, we should go back to sleep," said Evan.

"Those two people are suspicious. I saw one of them forcing the other to go up the hill, even though going up the hill at night is very risky."

Evan also stared at the two people Riki was watching. They did look very suspicious.

"But what can we do, Riki? I'm sleepy," Evan complained.

"Okay, you can go back. I'll try to follow them. I'm afraid something bad might happen," said Riki, preparing to follow the two men from behind.

"Riki, you don't have to get involved, right?" asked Evan.

Riki turned around and smiled slightly, "Sorry, I'm just... being cautious. If someone is murdered and we only find out in the morning, can you imagine how regretful we would be? Even though we were so close to saving the victim."

Evan sighed heavily. He knew Riki was right, but he could also be wrong.

"Riki—"

"Go back, Evan. I'll follow them from behind."

Evan fell silent as he watched Riki quickly follow the two suspicious people.

Evan ran his fingers through his hair, frustrated by the situation. Evan just wanted to go back to sleep.

The cold air after the rain was the perfect atmosphere for a good night's sleep in that warm cocoon sleeping bag.

But unfortunately, Evan couldn't let Riki face these bad things alone.

In the end, he followed Riki. Just to make sure Riki would be okay.

But the more Evan followed the two people with Riki, the more he was convinced that something was wrong.

"Don't forget to record it, Evan. Did you bring your smartphone?"

"Oh? Yeah... I'm recording."

Riki smiled, "Good, it's just in case."

As time passed, the two of them realized that the heavily intoxicated person was a woman. She was being forced to climb the hill by a man.

After several difficult minutes, they reached the top of the hill.

Riki and Evan hid in a place where they couldn't be seen. They tried hard not to make any noise.

Suddenly, the man took out a dagger while the woman was unconscious.

Riki was shocked at that moment. Reflexively, he grabbed a rock the size of his fist. He threw the rock, hitting the man's hand.

Luckily, it was a dark night, and the thick fog made Riki invisible.

The rock hit the man's hand, causing the dagger he was holding to fall.

The man groaned in pain from Riki's stone.

But that made the woman come to her senses. She saw the dagger lying under the man's feet as he writhed in pain.

"You... you got me drunk to kill me?"

Wait a minute, why did Riki recognize the woman's voice?

"Don't we need to go there?" Evan whispered.

Riki put his index finger to his lips, then hissed, telling Evan to be quiet and just watch.

"Tell me, why do you want to kill me? How dare you! Damn you!" the woman continued to punch and kick the man's legs.

"Because I'm sick of you, Aileen! I know you have a lot of money, coming from a family that has everything. But you always act like you're above me. You embarrass me in front of my friends, and you—"

"You're only saying this because your father is bankrupt now, right? You owed me a million dollars yesterday and you spent it all on gambling, right? You want to kill me so you don't have to pay your debt, right? Bastard! I accepted you for who you are, didn't question your financial situation, I even forgave you for getting close to other women. But this is how you repay me? How pathetic you are!" shouted the woman named Aileen.

Suddenly, the man picked up his knife again, startling Aileen and causing her to scream reflexively as he swung the knife at her.

Riki rushed over and subdued the man. He kicked the man until he fell to the ground, then tied his hands behind his back so he couldn't fight back. Thankfully, Riki had a rope in his pants pocket, a shoelace he no longer used.

Evan also arrived shortly after, approaching the woman sitting on the ground, crying hysterically. She had just been about to be killed by her boyfriend. How terrifying.

"Are you okay?" Evan asked.

Aileen nodded slowly, trying to calm herself and wipe away her tears. She couldn't cry over that jerk.

"Damn it, let me go!" the man shouted.

Riki covered the man's mouth with duct tape he had found in the system. He couldn't stand hearing the man's shouts, which annoyed him.

"Where did you get that duct tape, Riki?" Evan asked, confused.

"It doesn't matter. What's important is, can you call Zeno and Aslan and ask them to come here? It's better if they know what happened," said Riki.

Confused, Evan simply obeyed Riki's instructions. Meanwhile, Aileen immediately grabbed Evan's smartphone.

"No, wait! Don't say anything to my younger siblings!"

Evan became even more confused, "Younger siblings?"

Riki snatched the smartphone from Aileen's hand, then called Zeno.

"Hello, Zeno?" Riki moved a little away from them so that Aileen wouldn't disturb him anymore.

Aileen cried silently again. She just didn't want her younger siblings to know that she was about to get killed, also, she embarrassed if they know that her boyfriend is not as good as she told them.

"Are you Zeno and Aslan's older sister?" asked Evan.

Aileen turned to Evan, this time really looking at him. She was surprised to see that Evan was a handsome man.

Then Aileen turned to her boyfriend—no, her ex-boyfriend, who was lying helplessly on his stomach. He wasn't even as handsome as Evan, had a bad attitude, didn't want to work hard, and just wanted her money.

How could Aileen have been so blind all this time?

Evan became even more confused when Aileen suddenly cried even harder.

She was very pitiful.

In such a confusing situation, Evan didn't want to just stand by and watch.

Because the air was very cold, Evan took the initiative to take off his jacket and give it to Aileen. At that time, Aileen was only wearing a thin knit sweater.

"Wear this, so you won't be cold," said Evan.

Not long after, Riki arrived and gave the smartphone to Evan.

"Zeno and Aslan will be here soon. You don't need to be embarrassed or shy, especially with your own brother. If you have a problem, isn't it natural for your brother to help you?"

Aileen didn't say anything, she just tightened Evan's jacket around her body to keep herself warmer.

The masculine scent of the jacket, for some reason, made Aileen feel much calmer.

When Zeno and Aslan arrived, Riki handed the problem over to them. Because they were Aileen's younger brothers.

Aileen cried again in Zeno's arms, while Aslan scolded his older sister for still wanting to date that pathetic man.

[Your midnight mission is complete!]

[Your reward is the Lightning Speed skill, which allows you to accelerate your work]

[You can use the Lightning Speed skill while running, walking, cutting things, and similar actions]

[You also gain an additional 2 points]

It was an interesting gift, but Riki didn't know how to use it. He would think about it later. Because now, he was starting to feel sleepy.

Aileen's ex-boyfriend was finally handed over to the authorities, using Evan's recording as evidence of the crime, which was a murder plot.

When the man was arrested, everyone woke up out of curiosity. It was around four in the morning.

Riki decided to go back to sleep in the large bed in his campervan.

But his smile faded when he saw two women sleeping comfortably there.

"Let them sleep, I think they're very sleepy," said Sean.

Riki rubbed the tip of his nose, feeling dizzy, especially because he couldn't stop Sean from letting the two women, Selene and Aileen, sleep there.

Because they were women, of course.

There was no way Riki would make a fuss over a bed.

"You can sleep on the sofa, Riki. I'll go to Deva and Travis' tent."

"What? Wait—"

Sean quickly walked out of the campervan. Even though Riki was the one who had just acquired the lightning-fast skill, not him.

"Oh my god, he's making me watch over these two women?" Riki muttered.

Since he had no other choice, he slept on the sofa, which was actually very small for Riki. However, Riki fell asleep quickly because he felt very sleepy.

***

Riki thought he would sleep comfortably as soon as he returned to his apartment. Well, even though he was bringing Selene and Sean with him. Because there were some things to discuss. But at least Riki could relax.

Although the campsite was quite pleasant, he also rode in a comfortable campervan. But still, the bed in Riki's apartment was much softer and more comfortable.

He had planned to sleep for a few hours first, then discuss some things with his twin cousins.

But that plan was ruined the moment Riki saw his uncle's family there.

Sitting casually in the apartment lobby.

Riki even remembered Sofie's words about her parents' separation. The girl said her mother ran away with her boyfriend, and her father liked to beat her.

But in reality, his uncle and aunt were sitting there, waiting for Riki's arrival. Sofie was looking down, looking very guilty.

"Why are you here?" asked Riki, not wanting to make small talk about inviting them to his apartment first.

He didn't want to spend too much time looking at their disgusting faces.

"Come on, my dear nephew... how can you bear to see your old aunt like this—"

"Tell me clearly what you want from me," replied Riki, not even bothering to hide his dislike for them.

"Is it polite for a nephew to treat his uncle and aunt like that? At the very least, invite us into your apartment. You got all that from the money my brother hid, right?"

Even though Riki's face showed only a blank expression, his eyes were darting around, knowing that the people around them were watching them.

The old Riki would not have been able to ignore all that. He would have always felt embarrassed, and as a result, he would have obeyed their wishes.

But now, Riki would not do that anymore. Instead, he would use that moment to embarrass them even more.

"So, you came here after hearing Sofie say that I now have a lot of money and a luxurious apartment? How ignorant of you. My uncle and aunt, who were supposed to protect me since I was little, refused help from others and said you could take care of me wholeheartedly. But it turns out you did all that just so you could take my father's wealth, right? Even my father's company and some other assets were divided among you who planned to destroy my family, right?"

Hearing this, they panicked.

"What are you saying? Is that how you treat your own uncle?"

"You really don't know how lucky you are. Who do you think raised you all this time, huh?"

Riki laughed out loud, causing the people around him to pay even more attention. They whispered among themselves, making his uncle and aunt panic.

"I fought for my own life, okay? When I was in trouble because my brother started gambling and got into a lot of debt, you just laughed at me and let me sink, right? What part of me did you ever care about? Oh! The only thing you ever cared about was... making sure I was down and out, unable to fight back, and easy to trample on, right? Then, after all that, I suddenly had money, and you came to take it from me too? Wow, you guys are amazing," said Riki, clapping his hands very loudly, making his uncle and aunt turn red.

Chapter 63: 63. Manipulator

"Riki, stop embarrassing us. Don't you feel sorry for us your uncle and aunty?"

Riki snorted at his aunt's words. They had been like this all along. Manipulating Riki's mind so that he would feel bad, feel guilty, until he finally obeyed the words of those jerks.

"So, I'm the one who's wrong now? Am I wrong for stating a fact? Besides, what's the point of you coming to me if you're not asking for money? I already know your situation. You went bankrupt because you couldn't manage the business. That company was built by my father with great effort. He was dedicated to his work. But you came and said it wasn't fair that my father could be successful and you couldn't. My kind father took you in, hired uncle there. But what did uncle do? He collaborated with my father's enemies to bring him down—"

SMACK!

A loud slap was heard.

Riki just stood there as his aunt raised her hand high to slap him. He even knew he was going to be slapped, but he didn't fight back.

Riki smiled, then chuckled. It made them feel offended.

Suddenly, Selene approached the old woman and slapped her back.

Everyone was surprised to see this, including the audience who had become absorbed in the exciting domestic drama.

Like a telenovela full of intrigue.

Riki took advantage of the moment to gain public sympathy.

He even remained silent when he saw someone recording the incident from the beginning.

Riki lived in an elite apartment. The people who lived there were certainly wealthy.

Among them were several social media influencers.

His uncle and aunt were very wrong to approach Riki without thinking twice. But, well... Riki knew his uncle and aunt never did that.

Think twice.

"You... who are you to dare slap me like this?" shouted the old woman.

Selene smiled broadly upon hearing this, then took Riki's arm.

"I am Riki's older sister! I mean, his cousin! I won't let anyone hurt him. You're lucky because Riki won't hurt a woman, but I can take Riki's place and do it for him."

"Cousin? Riki's cousin is my daughter, Sofie, not you!"

Selene burst out laughing, "You didn't know? If I'm the daughter of Riki's mother's sister, that also makes me his cousin? Don't act stupid, I'm Riki's cousin!"

"ENOUGH!!!"

Suddenly, Riki's uncle shouted, his face red with anger.

He must have felt very embarrassed by the situation.

"Let's go now! This ignorant nephew wants to embarrass us."

Riki grinned, then laughed out loud, causing them to look at him again.

"Uncle, we can talk again later, but not here... maybe — in court?"

The man walked away, looking so angry that he could explode at any moment.

"Let's go, Sofie!"

But the girl just stood there, looking like she could cry at any moment.

"Hurry up, come here!" Sofie's mother pulled Sofie's arm, urging her to follow them quickly.

Sofie looked back at Riki again, as if to say she needed help.

But what could Riki do? He didn't hate Sofie, but he couldn't just help her without a clear reason.

Without a word, Riki, Sean, and Selene took the elevator to Riki's apartment.

Even when they entered the apartment, they remained silent.

Riki, feeling strange, looked at his cousins one by one.

"Are you guys okay?" asked Riki.

Sean looked at Riki with an incredulous gaze, "We should be the ones asking that question. Are you okay after all that? That was crazy! I couldn't even speak when I saw someone who was supposed to be your relative—ugh... sorry, I forgot that humans are like that. Even my stepmother wasn't nice to me," said Sean. He leaned his back against the sofa and closed his eyes. Too many things had happened, filling his mind.

"Riki, if only we had known about your situation sooner, then we might have been able to help you," replied Selene.

Riki laughed when he heard that, then he gently stroked Selene's hair.

"No, don't say things like that. Besides, your situation isn't much better than mine, right?"

Sean and Selene agreed with that. The three of them had their own difficulties. It would have been almost impossible to meet if not for that day.

"I'm going to rest first. You guys rest too. There are other rooms here, so feel free to use them. Sean has stayed here before, so just ask him if you need anything," said Riki. Then he went straight into his room without looking back.

Selene stared at Sean, sitting very close to him. Their faces were only about ten centimeters apart.

Sean pushed his twin's forehead.

"Keep your face away from me!"

"How did you meet Riki first?"

"It's a complicated story. If I hadn't met Riki at that time, I might be dead now."

Selene was shocked to hear this. "Seriously? Hurry up and tell me what happened!"

"But I'm sleepy..."

"Come on..."

***

Riki woke up thirsty. As he sat up slowly and leaned his head against the headboard, he felt dizzy.

"Ugh, what's wrong with me?" Riki muttered hoarsely.

[It seems you have a fever, master]

"Then give me some medicine."

[I can't]

Riki furrowed his brow, "What?"

[You have a fever because there is too much magical energy in your body]

[As you know, humans on Earth don't have that kind of magical energy, it's very rare]

[In fact, there is a lot of magical energy around you, or inside the Earth!]

[You just need to release it little by little so you can recover]

[You can choose several ways to get rid of your fever]

[The first is to reduce the magical energy by fighting directly. You can go somewhere to hunt monsters—]

"Hurry up and do something! My head is spinning! It feels so hot!" Riki felt like his body was burning, but he was fine.

[The system will transport you to Etheria]

"Huh? Wait—Ethe what?"

Before Riki could finish his question, he found himself in a vast grassland.

He no longer felt dizzy or hot. Instead, he felt very light and refreshed.

[In Etheria, you won't feel feverish, but you still have to defeat the monsters that come at you]

[What weapon would you like to use?]

Riki was confused for a moment.

"Is this like in a game? Wow! I want a sword!"

[You have obtained a fire magic sword. Channel your magical energy into the sword and slash your enemies]

[You will earn money for each hunt]

Riki ran, using his lightning-fast skill, he could move here and there with ease.

Just as he entered the forest, he found a large black snake.

[Black Mamba King]

Riki tried to channel his magical energy, his sword blazing, but Riki's hand wasn't burned.

He swung his sword with lightning speed as well.

[Black Mamba King defeated, you get $500,000!]

It wasn't just the big black snake. Several other terrifying monsters came.

Riki, who had learned to play games, felt very happy.

It was almost like the game Zeno and Kaivan were making. Zeno forced Riki to try the game, and he also taught Riki how to play. But, according to Zeno, there were many flaws in it.

According to Riki, Zeno should try fighting directly like Riki to find out what was missing.

Because Riki was having fun slaying all the monsters in front of him at that time.

With lightning-fast skills, he moved quickly and attacked just as fast.

[You have defeated the Goblin King, your reward is 200,000$!]

[You have defeated the poisonous black spider, your reward is 300,000$!]

[You have defeated the Red Boar, your reward is 250,000$!]

Riki couldn't stop, he kept attacking, not allowing his enemies the slightest opening. He thought it was all a game, that there would only be dangerous monsters inside.

But suddenly, he saw a group of humans also fighting monsters.

They were poisonous spiders, just like the ones Riki had fought before.

[Will you help them?]

[You will receive double the reward if you successfully help them]

Riki nodded, then quickly moved towards them. In a flash, he defeated the poisonous black spider monster.

[You have helped a group of lost adventurers]

[Your reward is $600,000]

Wait a minute, was he in the real world?

[You are not on Earth, but in another world, and yes, this is all real]

[They are humans like you]

[The system has enabled you to speak and understand their language]

Before Riki could recover from his shock, a girl came and hugged Riki tightly while crying loudly.

Everyone in the group was also crying loudly.

But Riki saw that two people were seriously injured.

[Will you buy the high-level healing potion?]

Yes.

[2000$ has been taken, your potion is in your pants pocket]

Riki took out the potion bottle and gave it to the girl.

"Here, give this to your two injured friends. I have to go," said Riki.

"Wait a minute, who are you? And where can I meet you again?" asked the girl.

Riki smiled at her, "I'm Riki, but I'm not sure I'll see you again."

After that, Riki ran off again, unable to stay in one place.

Chapter 64: 64. Helping others

Riki caught his breath. He was back in his room. His heart was pounding, still unable to believe what had just happened.

Riki stared at the sword in his hand. It was no longer emitting flames.

"Can you keep this sword?" Riki muttered.

[Sword stored]

Riki felt relieved as the sword vanished from his hand. He ran his fingers through his hair, still unable to believe he had just killed a real monster.

Riki thought it was a game.

A game.

Not real.

But it turned out that it was all real?

[You yourself that thought it was a game]

Oh, that's right.

Riki ruffled his hair again. He had encountered a real monster.

"That was... fun," he muttered, smiling, then chuckling afterwards.

Suddenly, his bedroom door opened. Riki fell silent, pretending that nothing had happened to him.

"Riki, do you want to eat? Selene made chicken satay with peanut sauce and sweet soy sauce, it's really good! You have to try it," said Sean, walking over to Riki, who was a mess.

Sean laughed at Riki's appearance, with his messy hair and sleepy eyes.

Riki looked silly.

"Ugh, don't laugh, I'm hungry, hurry up and carry me," said Riki.

Sean clicked his tongue lazily, "I can drag you if you want. I may be older, but you're BIG! Walk yourself."

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance, but he was only joking when he asked to be carried. He got down and followed Sean.

Sure enough, Selene was cooking in the kitchen. The aroma of meat coated in sweet soy sauce and grilled on the barbecue smelled delicious. It looked good.

"Oh, you're awake, Riki? You don't mind if I cook something with the ingredients you have here, right? I know you must be very hungry. You slept for a long time and just woke up this morning," said Selene.

Morning? Actually, Riki woke up at night. It seemed that when Riki went to Etheria and then came back, time passed as usual. Riki thought he would return at the same time.

The three of them had a delicious chicken satay for breakfast. The peanut sauce was also very delicious, Riki liked it.

"I have to find a job," Selene said suddenly after they finished breakfast, while Sean was washing the dishes.

"What kind of job do you want? We might be able to help you," asked Sean.

"Hmm, I don't know... something I can do casually, but can earn a lot of money," replied the girl.

Sean chuckled when he heard that, "You want to be a sugar baby?"

Selene clicked her tongue in annoyance, "Come on! There must be other jobs besides that, which are relaxed and pay a lot of money!"

Riki, who had been silent, was helping by analyzing Selene's talents using his detection skills.

It turned out that Selene had several talents. She could cook, she could garden, she could sing, she could dance, she could paint, she could knit... she really had a lot of talents. Riki was confused about how to help Selene.

"Instead of being confused, you'd better just take care of me and follow me wherever I go today. You can decide after you've seen the situation around here," said Riki.

Sean turned to Riki, "That's a good idea, but where are you going today?" asked Sean.

"I'm going to Hayper Entertainment to help them select girls who will debut as idols later. I've also convinced Liz and Angeline to join, and if Selene wants to come too, she's welcome. Who knows, you might be suited to be an idol," said Riki.

"Idols are like the ones who always appear on television and the internet?" asked Selene enthusiastically.

Sean chuckled at Selene's sudden interest, "I can't imagine you becoming an idol, but with a face like that, I'm sure you'll be popular."

Selene smiled proudly, "Of course! I'm so beautiful that I have to get out of this village as soon as possible."

Riki and Sean immediately turned to the girl, looking at her with questioning eyes.

"What happened?" asked Riki.

Selene laughed awkwardly, then rubbed the back of her neck.

"Well... there were some people who tried to marry me... some wanted to make me their second wife, third wife, and some—well, anyway, there was a lot of chaos after my mother died. Some of them said my mother owed a lot of money, so I had to marry them. They even forced me. That's why I ran away. Actually, my mother didn't have any debts, but they thought I was stupid," said Selene.

Sean and Riki were silent, not expecting Selene to have such a story. And as Selene told it, she became very sad.

"Well... no need to worry now, anyway, I'm already here, right? Hahaha." Selene laughed awkwardly, making them feel even more sorry for her.

"You're not your mother's only child anymore—I mean, you don't have to pretend to be strong and face everything alone. I'm here now, if you need anything, I can help you. You don't have to work too hard either, as long as I can still work," said Sean.

Selene chuckled softly, "Oh my god, you're going to get married and have a wife, I can't just rely on you."

"Marry? I don't even have a girlfriend," replied Sean.

"Oh, I forgot. Is there a girl who would want to be the girlfriend of a pretty guy like you?"

"Damn it! I've had girlfriends before, okay! I've had exes, I'm not that pathetic."

"How can I believe that?"

"You're really annoying..."

Riki just smiled seeing how well his cousins got along with each other. Even though Riki still couldn't believe that he suddenly had cousins—well, he did have them... it's just that Riki couldn't consider himself close to his uncle's children.

But, Sean and Selene, whom he had just met, he already felt very close to them.

After finishing breakfast, Riki returned to his room. He felt very refreshed even though he hadn't taken a shower yet.

Before starting his activities, Riki took the time to open his smartphone. He smiled when he saw the messages from Liz.

Liz said that she and Angeline would attend the audition held by Hayper Entertainment, but neither of them were serious about it. So, if they weren't accepted, Liz and Angeline would be fine.

Riki chuckled at the messages. How could the two girls be happy if they weren't accepted?

Riki put his smartphone away, then stretched, loosening his stiff muscles. It seemed that Riki's battle with the monster had left his body exhausted. But it was a pleasant kind of exhaustion.

"Can I fight again?"

[Of course, especially if the magical energy in your body is already too much]

"Then just tell me when the magical energy or whatever is starting to fill up."

[Of course]

***

"Are you sure I'm going with them?" whispered Selene when she was already at the Hayper Entertainment building.

Riki introduced Selene to Liz and Angeline. Both were surprised to see Selene, who looked so much like Sean. Only like Sean had long hair. The two girls were surprised a second time after learning that Sean and Selene were Riki's cousins.

After the introductions, Riki asked Liz and Angeline to invite Selene to the audition.

Then Selene felt insecure seeing how beautiful and radiant Angeline and Liz were.

In fact, Riki had to admit that Angeline and Liz were the strongest candidates there. Not only Selene, but the other girls also felt insecure at that moment.

"Of course. They are also just trying, just to gain experience. Who knows, you might be suitable. If you are not accepted, it's okay. Besides, Sean and I have a lot of money, so you don't need to worry about finding a job," replied Riki.

Selene, who was worried, finally gave up and followed Angeline and Liz.

Selene, who was easy to get along with, quickly became close with the two of them.

Riki left the place because he had to meet Celine.

The woman was already waiting for Riki, and she immediately greeted him when he arrived.

"You're here, Mr. Khaizer? Please sit down."

Riki sat on the sofa, feeling very strange because Celine looked very awkward at that moment, unlike a few days earlier when they met.

"Is something wrong?" asked Riki.

Celine looked surprised, she smiled stiffly, then shook her head.

"Nothing is wrong, Mr. Khaizer, maybe you're mistaken."

Riki chuckled when he heard this. "Am I seeing things? I saw it clearly, Miss Celine. If you have a problem, you can tell me, because I'm ready to help, especially if it's about money."

Celine swallowed hard, which felt very difficult at that moment.

Riki stared at her as if he could see whatever was wrong with her.

"But this has nothing to do with work, so... I can't tell you," Celine muttered.

Riki nodded in understanding, "Oh, in that case, let's have lunch together, Miss Celine. As friends."

Celine was finally able to look at Riki, straight into his eyes.

Riki looked at her with a sincere gaze. Riki always looked at people that way. He was sincere.

There was no deception in his eyes, but that didn't mean he was easy to read. It was possible that those calm and sincere eyes were fake.

However, Celine didn't care if they were fake.

"Of course, Mr. Khaizer."

"Just call me Riki, why are you so stiff?"

Celine smiled, this time she was more relaxed.

"Thank you for your concern, Mr. Riki, now, let's get straight to the first topic."

Riki nodded, it was not in vain that he analyzed Celine with his detection skills.

Because helping Celine was his first mission today.

Celine, a woman around 23 years old, has high ambitions for her work, which has brought her to where she is today.

She does not feel successful yet, so she continues to pursue her career. After all, she is still young, she thinks.

Although she is ambitious, she is a very serious young woman who does not like dirty things.

Just yesterday, an influential man approached Celine, offering her great success in exchange for accompanying him to bed. The man said that if Celine agreed to sleep with him, he would give her luxury items and a lot of money. He also said he would invest millions of dollars in Hayper Entertainment.

But, of course, Celine refused outright.

Because of this refusal, which the man considered an insult, he threatened Celine.

The influential man withdrew all his investments from Hayper Entertainment. The owner of Hayper Entertainment, who knew nothing about the story between Celine and the man, scolded Celine this morning. This was because the jerk told the company owner that he was withdrawing all his investments because of Celine's insult.

At that moment, for some reason, Celine's lips were sealed. She couldn't say that it was actually Celine who had been insulted and sexually harassed.

That was what had been troubling Celine from morning until now. When she had lunch with Riki at a restaurant quite close to the Hayper Entertainment building.

Not wanting to be bothered, Riki reserved a VIP room, which was a private and enclosed room, so that Celine could talk freely.

"So that's how it is... no wonder you're so worried, Celine," said Riki, after hearing Celine's whole story.

The woman was crying, so Riki gave her a tissue to wipe her tears.

"A beautiful woman like you doesn't need to cry over a jerk like that. I told you, right? If you have a problem, especially if it's related to money, then I can help you," said Riki.

Celine wiped her tears with a tissue, feeling that Riki was right about not needing to cry over a jerk like that.

"Can you really help? The owner of Hayper Entertainment was very happy when he found out you invested a lot of money in several projects. You are also one of the largest shareholders. He really wants to meet you, Mr. Riki... I mean—Riki..."

For some reason, Celine felt awkward and her heart fluttered when she mentioned Riki's name, without the title "Mr." It felt very awkward, but it also made her cheeks flush for no reason.

"Then, he'll be very happy if I agree to buy all the shares that are currently being sold, right? Or... how much is needed to cover the losses caused by that jerk?" asked Riki.

Celine bit her lower lip, hesitant to tell Riki, but she also really wanted to say it.

For some reason, there was something about Riki that made Celine quickly feel comfortable and trust him. Even though they had only met once.

There was a worry in Celine's heart. She was afraid that Riki was also a jerk. But, for now, Celine wanted to believe that Riki was indeed a handsome prince who had come to her rescue.

"Actually, it's about one and a half million dollars," Celine muttered.

Riki laughed when he heard that. "One and a half million? Oh my god, I'm sorry, I don't mean to belittle your company, but... that guy made you cry just because of that amount of money?" asked Riki.

Celine was quite annoyed by Riki's words, but on the other hand, she couldn't be angry. Because for someone like Riki, that amount of money was probably like buying candy.

"I know that amount of money is trivial to you, but to me it's a lot, Riki! Don't laugh, you're so annoying!"

Riki stopped laughing and smiled broadly, "Alright. I'll invest two million dollars in Hayper so your boss won't be angry anymore. Now, you're happy, right? Smile, Celine. You're much prettier when you smile—I mean, you're pretty when you cry too."

Celine, flustered by his sweet talk and also embarrassed, pinched Riki's arm.

"So you like to see me cry?"

"Haha, that's not it!"

Their conversation had to stop because the food they ordered had arrived.

They were both very excited to see the food.

It was a dish that was currently viral. It made the restaurant they were visiting at that time have a lot of customers coming in. That was one of the reasons why Riki immediately booked a VIP table.

So that Riki didn't have to queue and could get a seat quickly.

The dish was a slightly spicy beef tendon curry. It was served with a plate of fluffy and fragrant warm rice. It was so appetizing for their lunch.

Accompanied by a glass of cold matcha latte that neutralized the spiciness and fat from the curry.

Riki was quite surprised when eating the beef tendon curry, because the meat was very tender and easily fell apart. It seemed that their claim about cooking the beef tendon curry for several hours was not a lie.

Even though he had his own restaurant, which Jay managed, there was no denying that Riki loved food.

With his cooking skills, he could taste all the spices used, how long the meat was cooked, and what temperature was used.

Riki also felt he could make similar dishes with the same recipe, or even improve the taste.

However, Riki won't give the recipe to Jay. Because healthy competition is something Riki always upholds.

After lunch, the two of them chatted about work again before heading back to the company.

The girls who had been gathered had practiced and rested.

After lunch, they could finally show their talents and the qualities they possessed to see if they could survive or not.

Celine and Riki were behind the stage, but they were still monitoring the show. In fact, they were secret judges who could point out anyone they liked.

At that time, Riki was not only with Celine, but also with two of Hayper Entertainment's best young producers.

Their names were Martin and Chris. Two handsome blond-haired men who looked like they hadn't slept much. One was very tall, the other very muscular.

Both commented on the girls' performances, telling Celine and Riki who they thought had potential.

Although they didn't have Riki's detection skills, the two young music producers saw the potential in all the contestants.

They praised Liz's soft and soothing voice. They also praised Angeline's extraordinary star aura.

Then, it was Selene's turn.

The girl was clearly nervous, she sang a bit carelessly, but she had a good voice.

After all the girls had performed, they had to choose about five main girls and a few backup girls.

As Riki had expected, they all agreed that Liz, Angeline, and Selene should be in the debut lineup.

However, they had trouble choosing the last girl. Because they only had Kaitlyn, Angeline, Liz, and Selene.

Riki remembered his mission again. He had to recommend one girl to be included in the debut lineup.

So, Riki suddenly raised his hand to get everyone's attention.

Riki cleared his throat before continuing.

"Actually, instead of that girl, I prefer this one. You might have ruled her out because her current appearance is quite concerning. I understand that you can't debut a girl who is a bit overweight, but she has great potential. Besides, I'm sure she can lose weight within the specified time. How about we trust her?" asked Riki.

They all doubted Riki's opinion. Their boss wanted a perfect debut lineup. From talent, aura, to visuals.

There couldn't be even the slightest flaw. And the girl Riki had just pointed out had almost everything, except that she was fatter than the other girls.

"Mr. Riki is the main investor for this project, what if we just trust him?" asked Celine.

Because of Celine's words, the others were forced to obey Riki's words.

[Your mission is complete!]

[You have recommended the perfect debut lineup to Celine!]

[You have received a big reward in the form of three gold tickets and five silver tickets to spin the prize gacha]

Riki frowned when he heard the word gacha. Was it like a lottery ball that would then give out several prizes from inside?

[Yup! That's the concept, master!]

[Congratulations!]

[You can spin it anytime you want]

Well, definitely not now.

After the meeting was over, it was already very late. Liz said that Kaivan would take Selene to Riki's apartment. Sean was too busy to pick her up.

It was already ten o'clock at night, and Riki hadn't eaten dinner yet.

"Riki!"

Celine walked quickly to catch up with Riki.

"Hey, slow down, I'm here," said Riki, worried that the woman would break her leg because she was walking too fast. Especially since she was wearing high heels.

"You haven't had dinner yet, right? How about having dinner at my place? I saw that you really liked the beef tendon curry at the restaurant earlier, right? I'll cook it for you. How about it?" asked Celine.

Since Riki was curious about Celine's cooking, he agreed to the offer. Riki thought Celine couldn't possibly live alone; she must be with her family. Living with family, especially a young woman, was very common in that country.

But it turned out that Celine was the only one in that luxurious apartment.

Chapter 66: 66. Woman's scents

"Wait a minute, Celine, you live alone?" asked Riki.

At that moment, they had just entered Celine's apartment. It turned out that Celine's apartment was in the same building as Riki's. However, Celine's apartment was on the 11th floor, while Riki's apartment was on the top floor. You could say that Riki's apartment was a penthouse.

Riki was very confused to see that there was no one else in the apartment but the two of them.

"Yeah, of course. My family lives in the village, while my younger siblings go to boarding school. You know, my parents really like a quiet life, they both garden and raise livestock. Then—"

"No, I mean—" Riki even had trouble explaining. He just didn't want anything unwanted to happen.

Celine approached Riki, then stopped in front of him. She was so close that Riki could smell her perfume. And the scent of strawberries from her hair.

"You said you wanted to have dinner with me, right? I have a wine collection—I like wine, especially red wine. If you don't like it, I also have some bottles of grape juice. So, come sit down."

Celine pulled Riki's arm, then led him to sit on the ivory-colored sofa.

The woman smiled, then tied her hair with an ivory scrunchie.

Riki just stood there silently, staring at the woman.

His mission to help Celine was not yet complete. For some reason, Riki didn't know why.

In fact, Riki had helped with investments and so on. In fact, Riki made Jake and Jean angry because he didn't go to the office building. Jake and Jean had been waiting for him to tell him something.

Riki did all that just for Celine. He met with the owner of Hayper Entertainment briefly. Riki talked to the man for a moment.

But the mission was still not complete.

It turned out that Riki had taken his mission too lightly.

"Is there anything else you want to tell me, Celine?" Riki asked suddenly, surprising Celine.

The woman became nervous immediately after hearing Riki's question.

"Wh-what are you saying? I don't-don't..."

"Just say whatever you want to say to me. No need to be shy or anything. Even though I'm someone you've just met, I think you can trust me. I won't hurt you or do anything bad to you," said Riki.

Celine stopped smiling and stared at Riki intently for a moment. Then she smiled again and nodded.

"Of course," she said, then turned her back on Riki and continued walking towards the kitchen.

Riki stood up and took off his jacket. Then he followed Celine to the kitchen.

He watched the woman as she prepared the ingredients for cooking.

"Can I help?" asked Riki.

"No need, I'm cooking to entertain you, so—wait a minute!"

Riki took over, ignoring Celine's refusal.

"Of course I have to help. We can cook together, right? What do you want to make?"

"I want to make the curry we had before."

Riki nodded, "Okay... but we won't get the same result because the one at the restaurant is cooked for hours until it's that tender. But to save time, we can substitute chicken." said Riki.

"Oh, I like chicken too."

"Great, let's cook now."

The two of them cooked together. Celine didn't expect to see another side of Riki.

How Riki looked gentle and sexy while cooking. To Celine, Riki always looked sexy even when he wasn't doing anything.

Riki always made Celine's heart flutter uncontrollably. However, because Celine had always pursued her career, she had no experience in romance. So, she didn't know what to do.

She even felt very stupid as soon as she realized that she had invited Riki to her house. Even though there were only the two of them there.

Celine pretended not to understand the meaning of Riki's previous words to cover up her embarrassment at that moment.

"I didn't expect you to be so good at cooking, Riki. That was amazing, you're like a professional chef," said Celine.

They were having dinner at that moment, on Celine's apartment balcony, accompanied by red wine that somehow perfectly suited the atmosphere at that time.

Riki didn't like alcohol, but he could drink. He only sipped it occasionally so as not to disappoint Celine, who had gone to great lengths to host him that night.

"I'm used to cooking because I live alone. But now I'm living with my cousin," said Riki.

"Don't you have any siblings, Riki?"

When he heard Celine's question, for some reason Riki's thoughts turned not to his deceased brother, but to Anton.

Damn it.

Riki still couldn't believe that he and Anton had the same father. It was very annoying.

"No, my brother died a long time ago," replied Riki.

"Oh, that's too bad. If they're your cousins, why are you living with them?" asked Celine again.

"Because we have no one else but each other. We both lost our parents, so we decided to help each other. Oh yes, my cousins are Sean and Selene, who passed the audition earlier," said Riki.

Celine was surprised to hear this.

"Wait a minute, the Sean you're talking about is..."

"Sean, who is currently an actor at Hayper Entertainment. He just joined because of my recommendation, remember?"

Celine's eyes widened in disbelief, "No, I know Sean, I mean—"

"Selene is Sean's twin sister. They're both my cousins."

Celine even covered her mouth now.

Riki chuckled, finding Celine's reaction amusing.

"Is that surprising?"

Celine shook her head, "No, it makes sense that you have two very talented cousins with such great looks. If only you hadn't entered the business world, you would have been perfect as an idol. I'm sure you would have had a lot of fans."

Riki laughed when he heard that, "Oh my god, you're exaggerating."

Celine shook her head, "Of course not."

[You have successfully completed the mission to help Celine!]

What? Wait a minute, what did Riki do? Suddenly, the mission was just completed.

[Celine's main problem is loneliness, master]

Riki fell silent, staring at the woman who was casually drinking wine. She smiled beautifully, while looking at the beautiful night view of the city.

[Your reward this time is the sweet tongue skill, which allows you to make anyone believe your words, even if it don't make sense]

[This skill requires magical energy, so you must use it wisely.]

[You can only use this skill on one person at a time]

Strange skills began to appear, and they all sounded very unique and quite interesting. It made Riki curious to use them. However, he had to be careful and not use them recklessly.

Riki would only use them at important moments.

But wait, was Celine lonely?

"If you need a friend, I can keep you company, Celine," said Riki, unaware that his words made the beautiful woman in front of him's heart beat wildly.

"You're such a kind man, Riki. I like you," Celine murmured. The woman looked at Riki, her palm on her chin. She stared at Riki with an expression that left him confused.

"Do you like me?" Riki asked, confused whether Celine was drunk or still sober.

Celine chuckled, then took another sip of the wine in her glass.

"Yeah, I like you... I've never liked a guy like this before. And... you're so sexy, so I've been thinking about you ever since we first met. You're my type. If only you had asked me to sleep with you, I would have said yes right away. But unfortunately, only jerks like me. It's annoying..."

Celine rested her head on the table in front of her.

Riki immediately grabbed Celine's shoulder, checking to see if she was still conscious. However, her eyes were closed.

Was she asleep?

"Celine?" Riki called out.

Slowly, Celine's eyes opened, and she smiled when she saw Riki's face so close to hers.

He was very handsome.

Celine wanted to grab him and make him hers.

Riki, who was about to lift Celine's body, thought she was asleep, so he was very surprised when Celine suddenly woke up and sat on his lap.

It happened very quickly.

When Riki realized it, Celine was already kissing his lips.

This is bad!

Riki didn't want Celine to think he was a jerk who would take advantage of someone who was drunk.

So, Riki quickly pushed Celine away from him, then carried her to the bed.

The woman fell asleep immediately after her body touched the bed.

Riki breathed a sigh of relief.

He was grateful that he hadn't become a jerk.

"Oh, this is really dangerous. I have to leave immediately," Riki muttered.

He left Celine's apartment and walked quickly to the elevator.

Before the elevator doors opened, he received a call from Angeline.

"Hello, Angeline?"

The call was immediately disconnected, leaving Riki confused. However, Riki then sensed someone behind him.

When he turned around, he saw Angeline standing behind him.

"Angel? Why are you here?" asked Riki.

Angeline clicked her tongue in annoyance, "I didn't let you go so you could play around with other women, Riki. I thought you liked Liz. If this is how it is, I won't—"

"What are you talking about? I'm not playing around with other women!"

Angeline chuckled when she heard that, then she pointed at Celine's apartment door.

"That's a woman's apartment, and you came out of there with the scent of women's perfume on your body. Then where's the jacket you were wearing earlier? Did you leave it inside?"

Oh, Riki just remembered that he had taken off his jacket.

Chapter 67: 67. Triangle love

"Listen, Angel, I don't want to fight with you. I swear I didn't do anything. I just had dinner with a coworker, that's all. I don't care whether you believe me or not, but I'm telling you the truth," said Riki, before stepping into the elevator that had opened.

Angeline remained silent, lost in her own internal debate. She felt very emotional, but she also knew she was no one to Riki now. In fact, she was the one who had decided to distance herself from Riki, ending their relationship so abruptly.

But now she was approaching Riki. It didn't matter whether her cousin liked Riki or not. She didn't even really care if Riki liked Liz or not. She was just using Liz's name as an excuse to get angry.

"Are you coming up in the elevator or not?" asked Riki.

Angeline quickly entered the elevator.

Inside the elevator, there was no conversation between the two of them.

They were both busy with their own thoughts.

But really, Riki didn't like the awkward atmosphere. But, on the other hand, he didn't know what to say. He didn't even know if what he had just said hurt Angeline or not. He just said what was on his mind.

"Angeline, I—"

"Riki—"

Suddenly, they spoke at the same time. Both of them became even more awkward than before.

"You go first," said Riki.

Angeline turned back to Riki. Her head tilted slightly upward because Riki was much taller than her, even though she was wearing high heels.

"I'm sorry if I'm being presumptuous by meddling in your affairs. We're broken up, so you're free to be with anyone. You're also free to sleep with any woman you like—"

Angeline was surprised when Riki suddenly pushed her against the wall. Angeline didn't know why, but she was mesmerized by the look in Riki's eyes, which seemed angry at her.

Why did Riki look so sexy when he was angry like that? If a person's gaze could kill, then Angeline would probably be dead by now.

"Do you think I would do something like that carelessly? Do I look like a jerk to you? I never even touched my ex-girlfriend because a woman's honor is very precious. How could you think—"

Riki immediately moved away when he heard that the elevator had opened. However, his gaze remained fixed on Angeline.

The girl also stared at Riki, with a calm look in her eyes.

Angeline wasn't afraid of him, even though Riki was showing his emotions.

"You and Hanna never did that?" asked Angeline.

Riki looked away, then replied.

"Of course not, even though we broke up, I loved her sincerely."

Angeline smiled upon hearing this, then pulled Riki's arm, exiting the elevator.

There was no further conversation with Angeline after that.

Riki felt strange about the girl.

Angeline still captivated Riki. She was a girl with extraordinary manners and etiquette. Whatever she did always looked elegant. Even when she was emotional, she still looked calm.

However, Riki felt very guilty.

Because he still couldn't like Angeline as much as Angeline wanted him to.

Inside Riki's apartment, Riki was surprised to see Liz and Kaivan there. They were having dinner. It seemed that Selene had cooked all the food.

"Angeline, you were gone for so long—oh, you're here, Riki? Have you had dinner? I made a simple country-style dinner," said Selene.

A beautiful and energetic young woman, that's the perfect way to describe Selene. She was really the female version of Sean.

She was easy to get along with.

In fact, Riki thought at that moment that Kaivan was closer to Selene than he was.

"I already ate at a friend's house," said Riki. He sat down at the dinner table, even though he was already full from the chicken curry he had made himself.

"I can smell the curry and wine," said Liz.

"I did eat that," replied Riki, not realizing he immediately smiled when he heard Liz ask him. That little thing did not escape Angeline's attention.

Angeline didn't know if Riki was aware of it or not, but he always smiled sincerely like that when he was with Liz.

"Why didn't you invite your friend here so I could eat that too? Now I want curry," replied Kaivan.

Riki glared at Kaivan, "Why would I—"

"I want some too, Rik. It would be delicious if you cooked it," Liz replied, silencing Riki immediately.

Riki nodded, "Alright, I'll make it. I'm sure you'll like it."

It didn't take long for Riki to dash to the kitchen and make chicken curry at Liz's request.

Selene, who was seeing this for the first time, was amazed.

"You can order Riki around like that? Riki looks tired, his eyes are narrowed, he looks sleepy. But he immediately rushed to cook when you asked him?" Selene asked, still unable to believe what she was seeing.

Selene knew that Riki was a very kind person, but he wasn't someone who would do something if he wasn't in the mood. However, even though Riki was tired, it was as if his energy was still full after hearing Liz's request.

"Is this the first time you've seen him like that? I'm sick of seeing it," replied Kaivan.

"Does Riki like Liz?" whispered Selene, so that Riki couldn't hear her.

"I think so," replied Angeline quickly.

"Stop it, you're embarrassing me," replied Liz, her face reddening from their conversation.

"Do you like Riki too?" Selene asked Liz, still whispering so that only the four of them could hear.

Liz smiled shyly at that, making Selene chuckle. Selene could see that the girl also liked Riki.

"If you like each other, why don't you just date?" Selene asked again.

"We can't! We're busy with college and our careers. Besides, the three of us suddenly passed the audition, right? How about you, Angeline, are you going to sign the contract later? I mean, you already have several jobs," said Liz.

Angeline smiled, "You know I'm a hard worker, right? Of course I'll sign the contract! Besides, this is Hayper Entertainment, a promising big agency."

"Wait a minute, how many jobs does Angeline have right now?" asked Selene, confused.

"She's been a model since she was a child, whether it's clothing, advertising, or catwalk modeling. She's also an influencer on social media, not to mention that she's been working at Little Heaven lately," replied Liz. She was very proud of her amazing cousin.

However, Liz's attitude made Angeline secretly feel very guilty.

***

Riki stopped running and turned around. He smiled when he saw Liz running with difficulty behind him.

Riki chuckled softly at the sight of the girl running slowly, chasing after Riki who was standing still.

Liz didn't like sports. But she liked dancing.

Liz had even repeatedly refused Angeline's invitations to do pilates.

However, she immediately agreed when Riki invited her to jog around the building.

Not only around the building, Riki began to invite Liz to go to the Arcelia River.

It was the weekend.

It was time for people to go on vacation.

That meant the Arcelia River would be crowded with visitors, and the number of vendors around there would also increase.

Riki reached out his hand when Liz got close, then he caught the girl's body, which immediately collapsed after getting close to him.

"Don't laugh, Riki!"

"Do you dislike sports so much that you're this weak?"

"I'd rather dance for hours than do sports like this."

Riki invited the girl to sit on one of the park benches. From there, they could see the view of the Arcelia River clearly.

"Isn't that just as tiring?" asked Riki.

Liz shook her head, "No, I like it, so I'm not tired."

Riki chuckled, then he reached out his hand again to pat the girl's head gently.

"But you looked excited when I asked you to go jogging earlier. Even Kaivan was still sleeping in his room," said Riki.

Liz and Kaivan were staying at Riki's apartment. However, Kaivan preferred to sleep in Sean's room rather than sharing a room with Riki.

Sean, who had just returned home, had to give in and sleep with Riki.

In fact, Riki wanted to kick him out so he could sleep at his own house.

But as expected, Kaivan was too worried about Liz, even though Selene was there.

Angeline? She went home by taxi.

"Of course I was excited because I was doing it with you."

"At five in the morning like this? The sun hasn't even risen yet," replied Riki.

"Precisely because the sun hasn't risen yet, we can enjoy this quiet atmosphere together."

Riki laughed when he heard this.

Then, for a moment, they were silent. Enjoying the moments alone together. Waiting for the sun to rise.

Riki turned his head and looked at Liz, who had her eyes closed. She felt the soft breeze blowing gently on her face.

Beautiful.

Liz had always been beautiful as far as Riki could remember.

Riki used to think that Liz wouldn't like him.

But now that he knew she liked him, he came up with many unreasonable excuses not to clarify their relationship.

Riki's memory returned to last night, when Angeline saw Riki leaving Celine's apartment.

Riki felt caught red-handed at that moment, feeling guilty towards Liz, who didn't even know anything about Celine.

Without realizing it, Riki's face was right in front of Liz's.

Chapter 68: 68. Helping Anton

When the girl finally opened her eyes, she was surprised to see Riki so close to her.

So close that the distance between them was only one centimeter.

Liz's heart was pounding wildly, waiting for Riki to kiss her.

Time seemed to pass so slowly. A few seconds felt like minutes. Finally, their lips met.

It was very soft, sweet, and—

"Riki!"

Riki quickly broke the kiss. Liz immediately turned to the person who had just called Riki. Liz was very upset because their kiss only lasted two seconds, and she hadn't even had time to enjoy it.

Riki frowned when he saw who it was.

"Riki! You're here, we need to talk," said Anton, the person who had just interrupted Riki and Liz's moment that morning, when even the sun was still shyly peeking out.

"What do I have to talk to you about? I don't feel like I have anything to do with you!" said Riki.

Anton clicked his tongue in annoyance, then said, "After destroying my family, now you feel like you have no problem with me? Of course we have a problem, you jerk!"

Riki raised an eyebrow, remembering that he had sent a video to Sandra's husband, in which Sandra told Riki's father that Anton was the son of Riki's father, Edwin.

Riki turned to Liz, "Do you want to go back to the apartment or stay here? I have to talk to Anton," said Riki.

"What are you talking about? Take me to your apartment, you jerk!" replied Anton, which made Riki angry.

"Why does it have to be at my apartment? My apartment is full!" said Riki.

"I'm hungry, I haven't eaten since yesterday," replied Anton, this time with a pleading look on his face.

Riki snorted, "What do I care?"

"This is all because of you! My father kicked me out, saying I wasn't his son. Then my brother sided with him and kicked me out of the house. Now I have nothing, even Hannah broke up with me and is dating that ugly CEO bastard! But... I got back the apartment I bought for her, even so—"

"Enough! Fine, let's go to my apartment, but remember not to make any noise. I'm not doing this out of pity, I just want some information from you. So, if you want food, then prepare a lot of useful information for me," said Riki.

Hearing that, Anton nodded quickly. He would do anything as long as he didn't have to starve. Even if he had to beg the people he used to bully.

Reluctantly, Riki took Anton to his apartment. Now, Riki's apartment was full of people. Even Evan came to his apartment. He brought radishes for Riki, and he also wanted to tell Liz that the roses he had planted were starting to grow very large. Liz had bought some of the roses, but she hadn't picked them up yet because she wanted them to grow bigger first.

"Here, eat this." Riki placed a plate of shrimp fried rice in front of Anton, who had chosen to sit alone on the balcony.

Anton's eyes immediately lit up when he saw the fried rice. Then he ate it hastily, as if he hadn't eaten in two days—oh, Riki forgot that Anton had said he hadn't eaten since yesterday.

"Eat slowly. No one is going to take your food, everyone has their own portion," said Riki, then he ate his own fried rice, while still watching Anton.

At that time, Riki used his detection skills to assess Anton's condition.

It turned out that Anton was indeed starving. His health was still good, and he was not dehydrated.

In addition to his health, Riki could also see Anton's talents and abilities. It was undeniable that Anton actually had great potential. He was quite intelligent, he had athletic talent, artistic talent, and even good business skills. His business skills were almost on par with Jake, Daniel, or Jean.

However, Anton's bad environment prevented him from focusing on his education or career. Instead, he was busy with girls and his useless friends.

"Actually, if you've already taken the apartment you bought for Hannah, how can you be starving?" asked Riki, when Anton's plate was empty. Riki also offered him some fried rice from his plate, which Anton immediately ate without saying anything.

Riki fell silent, waiting for Anton to finish eating so he could ask him some questions.

While waiting for Anton to eat, Riki sipped his coffee so he wouldn't feel dizzy.

It wasn't easy to accept Anton, who had been bullying him all this time, inviting him to his house and feeding him.

Damn it.

Why was Riki so nice? He wanted to be a bad person who was cruel to others for once.

But if he didn't have a good heart, he might not get the system. This was really annoying because Riki couldn't protest.

"I did get the apartment back, but I spent all my money to make it in my name. I want to sell it, but where will I live? Because I don't have a place to live anymore. I kicked Hannah out, but Hannah didn't even care because she got a new apartment from her boyfriend, the CEO," said Anton after he finished eating.

Riki looked at Anton again and sighed deeply.

"So, you need a job?" asked Riki.

Anton nodded, "Yeah. I came here because my mother told me that if I had any problems, I could come to you. I couldn't go to Deva because he probably wouldn't care about me. You know, Deva has his own problems too. I know he's trying to sue Vicky and David, who terrorized Sean. Deva must be mad at me because, actually, I was the one who introduced Vicky to Deva. Vicky has been my friend since childhood. I know Vicky is obsessed with Deva, but I kept quiet. So... you're the only one I have, my brother."

Riki's head spun again when Anton called him his brother. It annoyed him, but he couldn't do anything about it because it was the truth.

"Okay, but do you really have no money left?" asked Riki.

"If I had money left, I wouldn't be starving, right?"

"Didn't you sell your things? Your car, for example?"

Anton glared at him, "What did you say? How could I sell my cars? They're all my treasures!"

Riki's forehead wrinkled upon hearing this.

"You're smart, you get good grades because of your intelligence, and you often show off to me. But you're not even smart when it comes to managing your finances? Sell your car! Just one of them, at least then you'll have a little money to survive. Then find a job, so you can buy another car! Ugh, I shouldn't have to teach you this, someone who always gets A's in class, right?" said Riki, half-angry, to the point that he almost shouted. But he held back, because Liz and Kaivan were inside.

Anton pouted unhappily, "I know what you're saying is right, but—"

"But you can ask me for money? No. I won't give you money, but I can give you a job. That's all I can do for you, my half-brother. Nothing more. You don't expect me, the one you always bullied, to be kind and help you unconditionally, right? There is a condition: you have to be useful to me!" said Riki.

Anton was stunned. This was the first time he had seen Riki look angry, but he was able to control himself well.

Riki had changed a lot.

As for Anton... he was even confused about what to do after being kicked out of his house. In fact, when Riki's parents died, Riki was able to survive on his own, and at that time, Riki was still very young.

"I'm sorry," muttered Anton.

"Hmm, what are you talking about?" asked Riki, who hadn't heard Anton's muttering just now.

"I'm sorry. For always bullying you, mocking you, and hating you. Even though you did nothing wrong. I'm also sorry for taking Hannah away from you, I—"

"For that part, I'm grateful you did it. Because it would have been a waste for me to stay with a girl like that. Have you even slept with her all this time?"

Anton was shocked to hear this. "What? No! I didn't sleep with her, even though she often tried to seduce me, because I wasn't ready for sex yet. I have trauma—why am I telling you this? Just forget it!"

Riki chuckled, he didn't expect Anton to reveal his weakness.

"You have trauma?" asked Riki, finding it funny. Because in his eyes, Anton looked like a playboy who liked to sleep with any woman. But it turned out he had trauma related to sexual relations.

Anton rubbed the back of his neck, feeling very awkward at that moment.

"Yes... I have trauma because I was harassed by someone."

This time, Riki stopped laughing. Now, Anton's trauma didn't seem funny to him anymore.

"Who harassed you?" asked Riki.

"If I tell you, can you catch the perpetrator?" Anton asked back.

Riki shifted his gaze to the sky in front of him.

"Well, I don't know. It depends on you, if you want to—"

"I'm sure this information will be useful to you, because the person I'm referring to is my own father—I mean, my stepfather, um... my mother's husband," said Anton, his voice trembling at that moment.

Riki had already suspected that the man, Sandra's husband, was a jerk, but he didn't expect him to be that much of a jerk.

"So, you already knew that I was targeting your parents, Anton?"

Anton nodded, "Yes, you must know that they planned the death of your parents, right?"

Chapter 69: 69. Rose garden

Humans are indeed created with reason. They will try to find various ways to survive the trials that befall them.

One of them is taking refuge under someone they once hated and despised.

And that is what Anton is doing now.

It is sad indeed.

Really sad.

Because the wheel of life is indeed terrifying. It can turn quickly, without warning.

Just a few months ago, Anton, who hated Riki for no reason, tried to get rid of Evan so that Riki would be left alone. In fact, the jealous Anton also approached Hannah so that Riki would be even more devastated.

He was very happy to see Riki fall at his feet.

Why? Even Anton couldn't find a reason. He hated Riki and bullied him as if it were the most natural thing in the world. It just flowed naturally, as if it were his duty.

But Anton still remembered. When he was little, for some reason he was always jealous of Riki. His parents had instilled this hatred in him since he was a child, towards Riki and Riki's family. Until it became a habit for Anton.

Now, after everything had changed, Anton realized how stupid he had been.

What was so cool about bullying someone who was already beneath him? It only dragged Anton down, just like now. In fact, Riki was the one who suddenly rose to the top.

It was very sad, wasn't it?

Now, Anton was watching Riki get ready to go to Little Heaven. At Liz's request, they went to the backyard of Little Heaven to see the roses that had bloomed.

Anton himself will not be joining them. He will go with Kaivan to find a suitable job for him. Anton knows that there are actually no jobs for him. But somehow, Riki persuaded Kaivan to give him a job.

And somehow, Kaivan obediently found him a job at his company. It was a game company that made various types of games and already had several employees.

"You're ready, Anton, let's go," said Kaivan.

Anton nodded, then stood up from his seat. He saw Evan leaning against the wall near the door, waiting for Riki and Liz to finish getting ready.

Evan glanced at Anton, smiling slightly, as if mocking him. But Anton didn't care, because he had no other choice to survive.

Even if it meant becoming a remora fish, he felt he could do it.

"Why are you staring at them like that?" asked Riki, when Anton and Kaivan had left, to Evan who was still leaning against the wall.

Evan shrugged, "Well, I'm just surprised by him. I still remember when he threatened me to stay away from you. I also remember how he always bullied you in high school."

Riki shook his head, "No, he always bullied me, even in elementary school. You can imagine how much I hate him, right? And it turns out he's my brother."

Evan furrowed his brow, "Huh?"

"Anton's mother had a relationship with my father before my father married my mother. You know that Anton is a year older than me, right?"

Evan slapped his forehead, "I forgot that Anton started school late because he was sickly, so I always thought he was the same age as you. But, so—he's your brother?"

Riki sighed heavily, "Unfortunately, yes, he's my brother."

Evan chuckled when he heard that, laughing so hard he held his stomach.

"We're ready! Let's go see the roses!" exclaimed Selene, who was even more enthusiastic than Liz, the rose lover.

"Do I really need to be there? If not, I'd rather just rest here," complained Sean, who had just returned from a day of filming a variety show with Deva and Travis.

"Oh my gosh, don't be so weak, you're a man! Being a little tired is normal. You said you would buy me lots of clothes and shoes, right? After seeing the roses, we'll go shopping," said Selene, hugging Sean's arm so he wouldn't run back to his bed.

"Just go with Riki! Not me! Let me rest, don't you know I'm really tired? I've been playing a lot of weird games, I even had to slide down from a height! I'm not as athletic as Riki or Deva!" complained Sean, who instead of getting sympathy, got laughter from the others.

It wasn't that they didn't feel sorry for him, it was just that Sean was very funny when he sulked like that.

"If I didn't remember that you're older than me, I would definitely make you my adopted little brother!" said Liz.

Riki glared at her, "Do you like cute guys like him?"

Liz nodded confidently, "Yes, I like cute guys like Sean! Isn't he adorable?"

Selene and Evan laughed mockingly at Riki. And for the first time, Sean was happy and proud to be called cute. If it weren't for Liz, Sean would have probably thrown a tantrum.

"Then what about me?" asked Riki.

Liz looked at Riki in confusion, "You're not cute, Riki," said Liz.

Riki, who was annoyed, immediately walked away.

Liz herself was confused as to why Riki was suddenly acting like that.

"What's wrong with him?"

"Nothing, Liz, don't worry about it," replied Selene.

***

"Look at this, all the rose seeds you gave me have grown this big. It's amazing, because I've never grown roses from seeds before," said Evan. He showed all the roses he had planted from the seeds Riki had given him earlier. Even the seeds Riki had given Liz were also planted by Evan, because Liz had entrusted them to him.

"That means the seeds have a 100% success rate for growing, right?" asked Riki, who was very enthusiastic because the seeds he bought from the system had proven to be of very high quality.

"I think 100% is too much, because only Evan planted them. And I think Evan is a professional in this field. If people like us planted them, they might not grow this fast," replied Liz.

Riki nodded, "In that case, I'll lower it to 99%. I'm confident in what I'm selling. So, since it's been proven, I think I can sell it now. I'll contact Jake."

"Don't forget to sell the fertilizer from before too, Riki!" Liz replied.

Riki nodded, "The fertilizer can be bought at this store starting tomorrow. And not only fertilizer, I will also sell natural pesticides and others."

"Why don't you just sell chemical pesticides?" asked Selene.

Riki shook his head, "There are only organic ones and I only sell organic ones."

A few minutes later, Selene and Liz had already walked around the place.

Only the three handsome young men remained, sitting in the gazebo in the corner of the place. They enjoyed iced coffee lattes to refresh their throats.

The sun was very hot that day. The gardener hired by Evan had come to water the plants and check if anything needed fixing.

Evan always hired this gardener, especially when he was very busy or didn't feel like working.

The gardener, on the other hand, was very happy to be called every day by Evan. After all, making money was very difficult when the global economy was not doing well.

"By the way, Riki, the garden at your mansion is almost finished. Do you want to request any specific plants?" asked Evan.

"Oh, really? I don't know anything about plants," replied Riki.

"How about hibiscus? Or bougainvillea, it's very pretty and comes in many colors," said Sean.

Riki nodded, "That's right, bougainvillea is very pretty. Just plant that flower in various beautiful colors."

Riki leaned back, staring up at the bright blue sky at nine in the morning.

At that moment, Riki realized that he hadn't received any missions that day. Lately, the system had been giving him very few missions.

[When will you use your gacha ticket, master?]

Riki almost spit out the latte he was drinking when he saw the system screen suddenly appear along with that distinctive robotic voice.

Riki coughed because he choked, making Evan and Sean laugh at him.

"Damn it, why are you guys laughing when I almost died?" protested Riki.

"You're not going to die just from choking, Riki, especially if you still have a long life ahead of you," said Sean.

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance.

"That's true, because if your time is up, you'll die even if you don't do anything strange. My neighbor once died after tripping over a rock," replied Evan.

"You're not joking, right?" asked Sean.

"I don't think he's joking, because my own father died suddenly."

Evan and Sean couldn't smile after hearing Riki's words.

"Oh my god, you're making me unable to smile anymore," said Evan.

"Did your father have a history of heart disease?" asked Sean.

Riki shook his head, "Not that I know of. My father was healthy and fit. But the doctor said he died of heart disease."

"Can heart disease be faked? I mean, maybe there's a special poison for that. Or maybe the doctor's statement is false, or maybe the doctor is also fake... sorry, I'm just saying strange things."

Riki shook his head, "No, it makes sense to me, because my father's opponents are power-hungry lunatics. Should I hire the best detective in the country?"

[Your mission today is to find someone who can help investigate your father's death]

[You only have one day, and your reward will be randomly selected]

Riki furrowed his brow.

Apparently, the mission could come after being triggered by Riki himself.

"As far as I know, Arvin knows a pretty good detective. Do you want to try contacting him?" asked Sean.

Riki nodded, "Try contacting Arvin and ask him."

Chapter 70: 70. Leon the detective

The Raynold family is one of the country's conglomerate families. They own several large companies that are very influential in the country's economic growth. They have so many businesses that people often say that Raynold has everything you need.

Riki thought that was an exaggeration. But it turned out to be true.

Because the detective that Arvin Raynold introduced to him was Leonard Raynold, or commonly called Leon. A 30-year-old man whom Riki thought was only in his twenties because of his baby face.

That afternoon, Riki met Leon at Jay's restaurant, which was getting busier by the day. In fact, tomorrow was the day the restaurant would move to a bigger place on the Arcelia River.

Jay said it was the last day he would open the restaurant in that small place. So he invited Riki. Coincidentally, Riki had to meet Leon.

So, there they were.

Sitting comfortably, accompanied by a table full of delicious dishes that Jay cooked himself.

The restaurant was already empty because Jay had closed it. He opened it especially for Riki.

"I really like this," said Leon.

Riki raised an eyebrow, "What do you like? My family's case, or this food?" asked Riki.

Leon laughed and shrugged, "Well, everything. I like the case you want me to investigate, and I also like this food. In fact, I also like how you were able to rent this viral restaurant just to meet me."

Riki chuckled, he really liked the misunderstanding Leon had just expressed.

"Okay, Leon, first of all, I have shares in this restaurant, and second, my friend who runs this restaurant wanted to treat me to a meal before the restaurant moves near the Arcelia River tomorrow."

Hearing that, Leon laughed out loud.

"I'm glad to hear what you just said. You even helped Jay set up his restaurant? No wonder he didn't go bankrupt and was able to move to a bigger restaurant. So you're his investor, huh?"

Riki wasn't surprised to hear that Leon knew Jay. Basically, Jay came from an upper-class family and was working hard to prove himself.

Surely people from the conglomerate circle know each other, right?

"Alright, Leon, back to my case, you want to investigate it, right?" asked Riki.

Leon nodded, "More than that, let me catch all the perpetrators. I'll make sure you win this case. Because all the evidence you have is already very clear. You just want to make everything clearer, right? You can leave it to me. Coincidentally, I'm bored and need an interesting case, then you came along. I think this is a good coincidence—hahaha."

Riki just smiled weakly. Leon was really noisy. He was an extrovert who was easy to get along with, lively, and sucked up a lot of energy from the people around him.

"Then, I'll be counting on you, Leon," said Riki.

Leon nodded, "Yeah, don't worry, buddy. You can count on me. I'll get to the bottom of everything."

[You have completed your first mission today. Your reward is ownership of a vacant lot on Azeria Street and an additional 5 points to all stats]

[You also get an additional 5 points]

Riki smiled slightly, seeing that his reward was a vacant lot in a strategic location.

Azeria Street was not far from the Arcelia River and was a very busy street. Riki could use the vacant lot for business later. Even if he sold it, the price would definitely be very high.

"Please help me, Leon," said Riki.

"Hahaha, don't worry. Zeno's friend is my friend too. You can consider me your friend or your own brother. You don't need to be shy with me."

Riki just smiled in response to Leon's words. Riki's energy for socializing dropped drastically just because of Leon.

While finishing their meal, Leon continued to talk. He asked a lot of questions about Riki, and he also asked a lot about Riki's parents' case. Riki himself answered casually, revealing everything from his personal point of view.

Before they knew it, two hours had passed.

Finally, Leon went home, leaving Riki at the restaurant alone with Jay.

"Are you okay, buddy?" asked Jay, chuckling as he saw Riki staring blankly after Leon left.

Jay approached Riki and sat down in front of him.

"I'm fine, it's just that I feel like my soul has been drained. Leon really talked a lot," replied Riki.

Jay laughed as he cleared the dishes from the table.

In fact, there were no other employees left in the restaurant. Jay wanted to cook for Riki alone. But that didn't mean he wasn't happy that Leon had come.

"Leon is a good person. He is very friendly to everyone, and he is also known for being very thorough. Even though he comes from a great family, he has proven that his abilities are no joke. You know how people always assume that people from rich families get jobs because of their family's money or connections. Leon is different. He even went abroad so that no one would know he was rich. Well, we're not very close, but I know a lot about him," said Jay.

Riki nodded, "I can also see that he has great talent in his current job."

Jay snorted and asked, "Then, am I talented in what I'm doing now?"

Riki looked at Jay seriously, paused for a moment, then nodded.

"Yeah, you're talented at running a restaurant, Jay. You also have a talent for managing finances. I think your current job is the best fit for you. Your cooking skills are also good."

For some reason, Jay felt that Riki was praising him sincerely. It made him proud of what he had been doing all this time. Proud that he didn't give up at the last minute.

He also felt that his meeting with Riki was destiny.

He heard the sound of several people approaching.

"You're still open—oh my god, Boss! You're here?"

Jay chuckled when he saw Jake and Jean arrive, and immediately approached Riki. Both of them looked very upset with Riki.

"This place is closed, why did you guys come?" asked Riki.

"Forget that, boss, you better read my chat that you haven't even opened since yesterday!" protested Jean.

Riki hurriedly took out his smartphone and was surprised to see several chats he hadn't seen. He had missed them all, or they had been buried by other chats that weren't very useful.

"Oh, I'm sorry. I'll reply now," said Riki.

"Forget it, Riki, you can reply here," said Jake.

"Wait a minute, let me read all your chats," said Riki.

"I heard that your boss isn't the type who likes to play with his phone, according to his close friend, Evan," said Jay.

Jake clicked his tongue in annoyance, "He even let his social media accounts gather dust. Even though he's famous, which is good for promoting our business, but guess what? he ignored it."

"Do you need a social media admin, boss?" asked Jean.

"Wait a minute, let me read all this! Be quiet!" protested Riki.

"Our boss even takes a long time to read," said Jake.

"Because your chats are like a Chinese novel, be quiet!"

***

Riki slowly opened his eyes when he felt the sunlight penetrating the curtains of the windows in his room.

Oh, no, it wasn't his room. It was a room in his office building.

Riki, Jake, and Jean stayed at the office after a full day of handling pending work.

Jake and Jean were also in the only room in the office.

Jean was sleeping next to Riki, while Jake was sleeping on the mattress he had laid out below.

That's how it should have been.

But it turned out that Riki was alone on the bed.

When Riki looked down, Jean was there. Sleeping cramped together with Jake.

The two of them were very strange.

Riki got out of bed and walked to the bathroom. He washed his face briefly to wake himself up, then went out to make some hot coffee. Not forgetting, he ordered food from a restaurant that was already open nearby.

Riki took his coffee to the rooftop of the office building.

He sat relaxed in the corner, enjoying the beautiful morning view.

Riki could even see the clear morning sky, complete with the chirping of birds in the morning. It was like a pleasant morning melody.

In that relaxed atmosphere, a woman suddenly appeared. The woman was unaware that Riki was also there.

[Your first mission is to stop the woman from committing suicide]

Riki almost spit out his drink after seeing the mission.

Suicide, said the system?

Riki looked back at the woman who was still standing there, crying softly. The woman was standing near the railing.

The roof of the building had a railing that wasn't very high. It was only about a meter high.

But, according to Riki, it would be difficult to commit suicide from there. But it turned out that the woman was dragging a wooden chair that was almost too heavy. She was ready to jump.

Before jumping, the woman looked hesitant, then she screamed very loudly.

"YOU FAT, FUCKING BASTARD!! AFTER RAPING ME, YOU FIRED ME AS IF I WAS THE ONE WHO SEDUCED YOU, YOU BASTARD! I DON'T EVEN WANT TO LOOK AT YOUR UGLY FACE!! DAMN IT!!!"

Riki was very shocked to hear the scream. Then, after he remembered, the woman was the secretary of one of the companies renting an office in that building.