Chapter 81: 81. Kill the boredom

Riki leaned back in his chair, staring at Jake with a look of confused.

"You seem very surprised. Why would you be surprised if I bought the hotel? You know I already bought this building... so I don't think it's strange," said Riki.

Jake sighed deeply, "Well, I guess it's not strange."

Finally, Jake sat down in the chair in front of Riki, his expression turning serious. This made Riki even more confused.

"You know who owns Oceanica, right, boss? It belongs to a man who is ranked third richest in our country. The hotel is quite old, but it can still be considered new, having been built about seven years ago. And Oceanica Hotel easily became the most luxurious and expensive hotel with an exclusive feel. It requires reservations at least a month in advance for the cheapest rooms, but it takes up to a year to book the most luxurious rooms. Did you know this?"

Riki cleared his throat for a moment, then said, "Actually, no, I don't know much. You can continue your explanation."

Jake's brow furrowed upon hearing this. How could Riki buy something without thinking about it first? How much money did Riki have that he could easily buy something like the most luxurious hotel in the country? It seemed that Riki's name would be among the ten richest people next year.

"Oh, okay. Because the hotel was so luxurious, the third richest man in the country couldn't handle it, so he sold it. Even so, two years later, no one had bought the hotel. But some people said that wasn't the reason the man sold it. Rumors were spreading everywhere. People have started to speculate about it. And suddenly you bought it? That's incredible, you know? Maybe you don't realize how incredible it is, huh?"

Riki's expression became even more confused, which frustrated Jake.

"Is it really that extraordinary, Jake?"

"Of course, Riki—I mean, boss... could it be that you're the richest person in the country?"

Riki laughed when he heard this, "Hahaha, of course not, I'm probably only number two. Number one is too much, you know. Look at me, I'm very simple like this."

Jake smiled slightly, he really admired his boss. Riki may still be young, he is even still learning about business. But sadly, he is even far greater than other bosses out there. As far as Jake knows, some of the people on the list of the richest people have had scandals.

Their scandals are also mostly about their employees' salaries.

Some had delayed paying their employees' salaries, leading to protests from their staff. Others had been sued for paying salaries that were not commensurate with the work required. There were also conglomerates that had scandals about never paying taxes. Others had scandals involving money laundering and corruption.

Of course, not all of them were like that.

However, according to Jake, Riki was extraordinary. He never paid his employees arbitrarily; he paid them according to what they could do. He always paid for building facilities and other expenses on time. Riki was also never lazy about paying taxes. In fact, Jake was sometimes surprised to see how much Riki liked to spend money.

To the point where Jake couldn't worry about Riki's excessive spending. Because it seemed that the more Riki spent, the more money he had.

Does that make sense? Of course not, but that's just how Riki is.

"Jake? Why are you so quiet and lost in thought?" Riki flicked his finger in front of Jake's face. After calling out to him several times, Jake remained silent and didn't answer.

Jake shook his head, "No, I'm just amazed by you."

Riki laughed when he heard this, "Oh my gosh, I'm the one who should be impressed with you. I only have a lot of money. But look at you, you handle all of my business ideas, find the right people to work for me, and even implement some of those ideas. You're amazing. That's why I hired Twaila to work with you, to lighten your workload. But don't worry, your salary will remain the same, and I'll even raise it later."

Hearing this, Jake became excited, "Are you sure, boss? So, Twaila will always work with me?"

Riki furrowed his brow, "Of course not, you two will work together. She will do some of the work, and you will do the rest. But you can decide for yourselves whether to work together or split it up. You know best, right? But remember, don't mess with Twaila."

"Got it, boss!"

Riki laughed, very happy that he had made the right choice. Jake was extraordinary. If it weren't for the system, Riki would never have met Jake.

"In that case, since I have class tomorrow, you and Twaila visit the Oceanica Hotel, okay? Report back on the situation there later."

"Yes, boss!" Jake put his hand on his forehead, saluting Riki, who then gave him a gentle kick on the leg.

"Don't overdo it, do you think I'm your captain?"

"Yes, Captain Riki!"

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance, but then laughed along with Jake.

Riki couldn't stop laughing that night, as Twaila danced around in front of him in her small form. The fairy looked very adorable and entertaining.

It was very different from when Twaila turned into a human.

In her fairy form, she was very cute and adorable, but in her human form, Twaila was still adorable, but she also looked like a supermodel.

Riki was more comfortable seeing Twaila in her small fairy form, flying in front of him like a dragonfly.

Riki was still chuckling when the tired fairy rested in front of him. She sat on a tissue box, waiting for Riki, who had not finished his college assignment.

"Are you going to be long, master?" asked Twaila.

Riki nodded, "Yes, just a moment. Don't bother me, I'll finish this myself. You go ahead, you can play with Sofie or something."

Twaila shook her head, "There's no one else in this apartment but the two of us, master. Sofie and Selene are still at the mansion. As for Sean, he's gone with Deva to sell his old apartment, which isn't safe from those fans."

Riki nodded. He remembered that Sofie and Selene had chosen to return to the mansion because there were several servants there. Besides, according to Selene, Sofie was mentally unstable, so she had to be healed first in a comfortable environment.

Since the mansion was near the beach, they decided to stay there. Riki didn't mind because there were many servants and security guards who took good care of them.

Besides, even though Selene was very beautiful and looked petite, she was strong enough to fight someone off. She had learned martial arts, so she said she would kick the ass of any jerk who bothered her.

"So, I'm alone, huh? Why does it feel so lonely?" Riki muttered. He had finished his college assignments, so he realized that the apartment was very quiet.

He called Evan, but it turned out that Evan was very busy. Evan, Angeline, and Daniel were still at the office discussing some work related to the construction of a park.

According to Evan, there were many interested customers. But because there were too many requests, they had to turn some of them down. It turned out that they didn't want to be rejected; they were willing to wait in line for a long time just to have Little Heaven build their gardens.

Riki lay down on his bed. He felt really lonely.

Usually, he was always surrounded by many people, and he complained about it. It turned out that after being alone, Riki began to feel empty. He was used to being around many people.

There was a message from Celine, inviting him to dinner again. However, Riki had to refuse. He didn't want Celine to fall even more in love with him.

As Angeline had said before, if you don't really like someone, you can't force a relationship with that person. Because it will only hurt one or even both of you.

[How about you just do the mission, master?]

"If it involves dead people, I don't want to."

[No, don't you have a key to go to another world? How about exploring another world to kill boredom?]

Riki immediately sat up, looking more excited than before.

"I want to! How do I use the key?"

[Just hold the key and say "open" and a secret door will appear]

Riki took out the key, said "open," and the door immediately appeared.

When Riki held the doorknob, he felt the door glow for a moment, then he was able to open it.

When he opened the door, he was already in the forest.

[Your mission for today is not hunting, but exploring the city of Arendale!]

[If you walk around the city and buy ten items with your gold coins, the mission is complete!]

[Twaila will guide you in Arendale]

[Your reward is an additional 300 gold coins]

[Have fun!]

[Oh, I almost forgot, this is your identity in this world]

A gold-colored card appeared. It says Riki's name, and Riki's occupation is adventurer and merchant. Just like in the modern world, identity is definitely important.

Twaila returns to her human form, 170 cm tall, but this time her wings remain on her shoulders.

"Are you ready, master?" asks Twaila.

Riki nods, "I'm more than ready."

Chapter 82: 82. Mushroom meat burger

Arendale is a fairly bustling city, home to various types of creatures, such as humans, fairies, elves, dwarves, half-humans, and others. Arendale is a large trading city, ruled by a duke who is known to be very powerful and wise.

Riki and Twaila were just walking around there. It happened to be daytime in Arendale, so it was very crowded.

So far, Riki had bought three items. They were fruits similar to apples but black in color, large oval-shaped red avocados, and large oranges the size of volleyballs.

Having already bought three types of unique fruits, Riki was now looking for cakes or bread. For some reason, Riki was always interested in food. Since he had the identity of a merchant, he could immediately join the market and sell anything.

The currencies there were bronze coins, silver coins, and gold coins.

A small bronze coin was equivalent to one dollar, a large bronze coin was equivalent to ten dollars, a small silver coin was equivalent to twenty dollars, while a large silver coin was equivalent to fifty dollars. Then, there are small gold coins, which are equivalent to one hundred dollars, and large gold coins, which are equivalent to five hundred dollars.

And the gold coin that Riki has is a large gold coin.

At first, Riki was confused by the currency there, but a few minutes later he had adapted.

According to Riki, the price of food in Arendale is quite expensive, because the cheapest is one large bronze coin.

After looking around, they found several bakeries selling various types of bread, such as wheat bread, plain bread, baguettes, and others.

Riki bought bread from three shops, and suddenly his mission was complete.

[You have completed your mission, which was to buy ten items with a total price of one large gold coin and one large silver coin]

[Your reward is an additional 300 large gold coins]

Although Riki thought the prices in Arendale were quite expensive, with just one large gold coin, Riki had gotten a lot of food. For fruit, Riki bought one sack of each, weighing about five kilograms. As for bread, Riki bought three large boxes from each shop.

So, it makes sense that Riki spent around $550 on food there.

However, Riki still felt unsatisfied. He wanted to buy a few other things, and his choice fell on a merchant whose wares were completely ignored by everyone else. In fact, Riki's detection skill could show that the merchant was selling good quality items.

Riki approached the vendor and noticed a mushroom that looked ordinary, white in color and shaped like an umbrella. His detection skills told him that it was a white mushroom with a savory taste that would make any dish delicious. It was suitable as an additional ingredient to enhance the flavor of a dish.

In addition to mushrooms, the vendor also sold various types of fresh cheese of the highest quality.

"Are you interested in buying any of my goods?" asked the vendor, smiling slightly, because he already knew that his goods were not attractive at all.

Riki nodded, "Yes, I'll buy everything."

The vendor was silent, showing no reaction, even though Riki thought he would be happy.

"Wait a minute, I think I heard you wrong."

"I want to buy everything, all of this," said Riki.

The vendor was very surprised, "Are you sure?"

Riki nodded, "Of course I'm sure, how much is the total?"

"Oh, thank you, sir! I thought I wouldn't sell anything today because all of this is unsold merchandise in Arendale. They don't like white mushrooms, or rather, they don't know how to cook them. But in my village, these mushrooms are very popular because they taste good. The total is two small gold coins."

Riki bought one large gold coin from the merchant.

"I'm sorry, but I don't have any change."

Riki shook his head, "No need, just consider this as thank you, because I finally found these mushrooms, and also... the quality of this cheese is also very good. Buy whatever your children want so they'll be happy." Riki said, then he left immediately afterwards.

The merchant couldn't believe that there was such a generous person in Arendale.

"May you always be blessed, sir," he muttered.

"Can I help you, master?" asked Twaila.

Riki turned to the fairy flying beside him.

"Today you will replace me to go to the Oceanica Hotel with Jake. Report on the condition of the hotel, or what needs to be repaired," said Riki.

"Well, I'm also very happy to become human, because they really like me, especially Jake, he's so nice and handsome! He looks like the duke of Arendale," said the fairy.

Riki chuckled, even the fairy knew who was handsome.

"Really?"

The fairy nodded, "That's right, the duke of Arendale's name is Daniel, he's a year older than Jake, but they look very similar! You have to meet the duke of Arendale, master!"

"No need, Twaila, I'm only there to look for business opportunities. And this morning, I want to prove whether the mushrooms and cheese from there are better than the ingredients in this world," said Riki.

That morning, Riki woke up at six o'clock. He couldn't wait to make the food he had been thinking about all night.

Namely, mushroom burgers. So, he mixed minced meat for the burgers with chopped white mushrooms. Riki also used two types of cheese for the burgers.

Because Riki wanted some people to try it and wanted to know their reactions, he made several mushroom meat burgers.

"Later, give this to Jake, okay? And the other one is for you. Remember to share it with Jake, then ask him what he thinks about this burger, whether it's delicious or not."

"Isn't my opinion enough?"

Riki looked at Twaila with annoyance.

One thing about the fairy that annoyed Riki was that she really liked to eat. Riki had to stop her from eating all the food, otherwise it would all go into her small stomach.

"Of course not, because everyone's opinion is different—I'll give you lots of food later if you do everything well," said Riki.

He thought having a fairy assistant would be free, but it turned out not to be. She ate all the food she saw.

"Promise?"

"Yes, I promise."

That morning felt very long. Riki was too excited to make something new. Not only did he make burgers, he also made a vegetable stir-fry. He used long beans, green eggplant, and white mushrooms. He added chopped beef leftovers from making burgers. Riki only seasoned it with chili, shallots, garlic, sweet soy sauce, and a little pepper. He didn't need to add any other seasonings; it already tasted very good.

After finishing breakfast alone with Twaila, Riki finally got ready to go to university. He had two classes with two different lecturers.

He didn't forget to bring some burgers to share, because he wanted to see people's reactions when they ate them.

Just as Riki finished getting ready, he received a call from Anton, who said he was already downstairs to pick Riki up.

At that moment, Riki didn't refuse, because he had the same class as Anton. Even when they were in the car, Anton didn't say anything. He just sat quietly and drove the car.

Riki realized that Anton looked like he was carrying a heavy burden.

"Anton, are you okay?" asked Riki.

Once again, Anton showed his fake smile.

"I'm fine, really."

"No, you don't look fine, I can see it. Tell me what's wrong, maybe I can help," said Riki.

Anton turned to Riki, "It's precisely because of that..."

"What?"

"It's precisely because you've been so good to me, always helping me even though I used to be so mean to you."

Riki fell silent. He never imagined that his kindness could hurt others. Riki knew for sure that Anton felt very guilty right now. Especially his mother, and also someone he had always considered his father, had done something completely unforgivable. They had been arrested and were under investigation.

Anton probably couldn't believe that his mother had been so cruel to Riki's family, and he didn't think he deserved Riki's help at this moment.

"Then work harder, earn a lot of money, and you can pay me back what I lent you," said Riki.

Actually, he had already given up on the money to pay off the bank debt. But Riki didn't want Anton to feel even more guilty because of it.

"Of course, from now on I will be your personal driver and you can tell me to do anything. I'm serious, so..."

"You quit working for Kaivan?"

Anton nodded enthusiastically, "Yup! That way, I can help you directly, right? You have so many businesses, I might be able to help you too."

Riki knew that people changed quickly. But he didn't expect that the person he used to hate, who he always cursed for always doing bad things to him, was now his brother, and what's more, he could also be a genuinely good person.

It was really ridiculous.

On the other hand, the person he used to love, Hannah, had become a complete stranger. Riki couldn't even recognize her anymore.

"Well then, Anton, take this, we have to share it with our friends." Riki handed Anton a box of burgers he had cooked that morning.

"Oh, what's this?"

"If people like it, then I'll sell it later."

Anton's eyes widened.

It turned out that what Zeno said last night, that Riki always had business ideas every day, wasn't just a figment of his imagination.

"Are you going to open a burger restaurant?"

"Maybe."

Chapter 83: 83. Some business ideas

"This is delicious! You should sell this, if possible, on every corner of the city!" Kaivan pleaded, immediately after finishing one burger.

Riki didn't know whether to be happy or what, but Kaivan had already taken the rest of Liz's burger, which Liz could only eat a little of.

Riki was happy because everyone said that the burger he made was delicious, but he was also sad that Liz still couldn't eat well.

"Does Jake know about this?" asked Evan, who hadn't finished his burger yet, but seemed to be enjoying it very much.

The burger was indeed not small, about the size of Riki's palm, and Riki's palm was large. Even though the burger was big, Angeline and Bella were able to eat it, and it was almost gone. Do you still remember Bella? She was an influencer who often posted about food. Bella happened to stop by to visit her friends, Angeline and Liz, because she had also just bought some bread.

"Don't tell him yet, he'll be mad at me," said Riki.

"Of course he'll be mad, because you just bought a hotel yesterday, right?" replied Zeno.

Riki's eyes widened, "You know that?"

Zeno nodded, "Of course I know, the Oceanica Hotel belongs to my uncle, my father's younger brother. Uncle Felix."

Riki was stunned to hear this. "Your father is the fifth richest man, and his younger brother is the third richest?"

Zeno laughed at Riki's expression, then nodded.

"Don't worry, only the two of them in my family are in the top five, the others are in the top two hundred. But out of all the family members who started businesses in this country and chose to live here, only my father and my uncle are very successful. And you, you're very similar to my uncle, Uncle Felix. He's also like you, with lots of business ideas and plenty of money to make them happen. He also has shares in almost all the successful companies. He has about three very loyal assistants. I think when you grow up, you will be like him. Unfortunately, he still doesn't have a wife. He once had a wife and a child, but his wife died after giving birth. He has never been in a relationship with another woman since then."

Riki listened to Zeno's story intently. Zeno told the story enthusiastically, but suddenly his face became sad.

Kaivan patted Zeno on the shoulder, "It's useless to cry over people who are richer than us, bro."

Zeno clicked his tongue lazily, "I'm not crying! I'm just a little sorry for him."

"It's the same thing."

"By the way, doesn't your grandfather have more money, Zeno? Why isn't he on the list?" asked Angeline.

Riki also realized this. Zeno's grandfather should have been on the list because he was richer than the others.

"That's because my grandfather is no longer a citizen here, and besides, he doesn't allow the media to highlight his wealth," replied Zeno.

They fell silent again for a moment, enjoying their burgers. Except for Liz, who was busy with her iPad, sketching clothing designs.

"But I agree with what Zeno said earlier, I mean Uncle Felix is similar to Riki. Not his face, just—um, maybe his personality? I don't know," replied Bella, who had met Felix when she reviewed pizza from his new restaurant. Of course, Bella had researched everything about Felix before meeting and interviewing him.

"One thing's for sure, if you open a burger restaurant with a variety of delicious burgers, I'll definitely visit your restaurant too, Riki!" added Bella.

Well, but Riki also started to think. Could he handle a burger business too? If it was food, Riki was sure he could succeed. With his cooking skills, he could create foolproof recipes to give to his trusted chefs to make the most delicious burgers ever.

The most important thing in the food business is the quality of the food being sold. If the quality is good, Riki was sure he could succeed quickly.

[You can ask for advice from Zeno's uncle, who is very experienced in handling business, master]

That's true, but isn't he selling the Oceanica Hotel?

"Zeno, may I ask why the hotel is being sold?" asked Riki. And that question made the others fall silent, watching Zeno because they were also curious.

Why would a hotel as big as the Oceanica Hotel be sold?

Zeno chuckled, looking very awkward, but then he answered the question.

"Actually, he just got tired of the hotel business. He wants to switch to the resort, cottage, or glamping business. He's wanted to sell it for a long time, but no one could afford it. Then, suddenly it sold, and the buyer was Riki. When my uncle told me, I felt strange, but on the other hand, I wasn't surprised either. So yeah... that's how it is."

For some reason, Riki felt that Felix's personality was very similar to his own.

"Do you want to meet him, Riki? I think it would be really nice if you could meet him," said Evan.

"I think so too!" replied Zeno.

Riki just laughed softly, confused about how to respond to them. He wanted to meet Felix too, but... he felt awkward just thinking about it.

"If you want to meet him, I'll ask my uncle when he has a day off," said Zeno.

"Oh, okay..." replied Riki.

Before he knew it, the 12 p.m. class was over. Riki felt very relieved, but he also felt annoyed because there was group work to do.

Since they could decide their own groups, Riki only grouped with Liz and Anton.

"How about we do this assignment now? Because Riki might be very busy later," asked Liz.

Anton turned to Riki, "Aren't you busy today, Riki?"

Riki shook his head, "No, I've handed my work over to Twaila. So we can do it—how about we do it at the mansion? Aren't you busy, Liz?" said Riki.

Liz shook her head, "I'm not busy for the next few days, but later I'll be busy with the others for debut preparation practice."

Riki smiled when he heard that, "Are you really ready to be an idol?"

Liz nodded enthusiastically, "Yup! Of course I have to be ready! I know it won't be easy, but what Angeline said yesterday made me feel calm. She said, the harder the road we take, the greater the success we will achieve. That's right."

Riki smiled broadly at the girl's smile.

Anton cleared his throat several times because he was very annoyed by the intimacy that filled the air, even though Riki and Liz were just looking at each other.

It was so annoying.

"Why do you suddenly want to be an idol? Don't tell me you're following me, okay? You know I'm preparing for my debut as an idol too, so you're following me? You're really obsessed with me, aren't you?"

Suddenly Hannah came to their table and joined the conversation.

Liz fell silent, shocked by Hannah's words. She didn't even know that Hannah was also preparing for her debut as an idol.

"I didn't even know that you—"

"Don't lie, Liz! You're even close to my two ex-boyfriends now. You must be happy to take them away from me, right? Are you proud of doing all this? God, you're so pathetic."

Liz couldn't even speak anymore, she was too shocked to hear Hannah's unreasonable words.

"I'm so sad to see you like this, Hannah," said Riki.

Hannah turned to Riki, smiled broadly, then approached him.

"Why are you sad? Are you starting to regret leaving me for a pathetic girl like Liz?" asked Hannah.

Riki laughed when he heard this, "Are you the delulu final boss? You left me for Anton, then now you're leaving Anton for that old married man... then you come to us and say all that nonsense? You need a psychiatrist, Hannah. I can pay for you to see the best psychiatrist in the country if you want," said Riki.

Hannah was annoyed by Riki's words, thinking that Riki wanted to get back together with her, so she finally left, running a little.

"You're right, Riki, I feel sorry for her. She doesn't want to be blamed, so she starts blaming others for her actions. I think she really needs a psychiatrist," said Anton.

It wasn't just the three of them; several people in the classroom who hadn't left were also talking about Hannah. Someone even secretly recorded the incident.

Riki knew about it, but he remained silent. Because he thought, the more drama, the more exciting it would be.

"I feel sorry for her too. I wonder what made her like that. Maybe the environment around her house is bad," Liz replied.

"Never mind, let's just go to Riki's mansion and do our homework," said Anton.

Meanwhile, Hannah, who was already on the campus grounds, continued to walk quickly. She ignored the people around her who were talking about her. She was used to people talking badly about her. In fact, she was happy when many people talked about her, because it made her even more famous.

Suddenly, a Ferrari appeared in front of her.

Hannah froze, confused by the car. As she was about to leave, she saw the car door open, revealing a very handsome man.

Hannah stood frozen, transfixed by the man's good looks.

"Oh, we meet again, miss. I don't think this is a coincidence," said the man.

"You're Leon, right? The one from yesterday?" asked Hannah, shyly.

The man, Leon, smiled slightly, then opened the door wide, "Would you like to go for a drive with me, miss?"

Without thinking twice, Hannah got into the car.

Chapter 84: 84. A fun day

Riki didn't know if "subduing" was the right word to describe Anton's current behavior. But Riki thought he had indeed done it. Subduing Anton to be on his side.

Humans are capable of changing to be anything, whether it be good or evil. It is the individual who will determine it.

It's not easy to switch to goodness, because most people in Anton's situation end up becoming criminals. But no matter how much Riki used his detection skills, he still couldn't detect any evil in Anton. All he saw was Anton wanting to be useful to Riki, so that he wouldn't feel even more guilty.

Very unique.

Anton was indeed very unique.

But what Riki liked about Anton was that he was smart. Not only is he good at academics, but he's also quite athletic.

Because of that, when there are group assignments, Anton is always relied upon. So, the reason Riki could never fight back against Anton back then was because Anton wasn't a brainless bully. He did act stupid sometimes, but at least he was always able to tease Riki from his position as first or second in the class.

Unfortunately, Riki was always in the same class as Anton.

But now that Anton was on Riki's side, it felt like a huge relief. Although it also felt strange.

"Finally, it's done. I think you two should do the presentation," said Liz.

"What are you talking about? We'll take turns. I can explain the complicated parts, and you two can explain the rest. That way, the professor will give us equal grades," said Anton.

Liz clicked her tongue in annoyance, "I really don't like being in front of a lot of people."

"Then don't be an idol, you fatso—oh, I mean... forget it."

Liz clicked her tongue, glancing at Anton in annoyance, "I'm already this skinny, and you still call me fat? When you're much bigger than me?"

Anton rubbed the back of his neck, feeling very awkward at that moment.

"I'm sorry for always calling you fat. I used to call you a bulldozer too. I'm really sorry," said Anton.

Liz smiled contentedly, seeing how guilty Anton looked.

"Should I kneel in front of you so you'll forgive me?" added Anton.

Riki came back to the gazebo carrying slices of red and yellow watermelon. Next to him was Selene, who was carrying avocado juice.

"Looks like you guys are getting along," said Riki as he placed the tray in the middle of them.

"Do you guys like avocado juice? It's really good!"

"We're not close, Riki. Anton just feels guilty about what he used to say to me," said Liz.

Anton cleared his throat several times because he felt very embarrassed. He quickly took a large glass of avocado juice and tried it.

Anton was surprised by the taste of the avocado juice. "Wait a minute, this is avocado, you made it into a drink?" asked Anton.

Riki laughed at Anton's confused expression.

Liz, who was curious, tried it too, and she smiled broadly. "Avocado juice is really delicious! Especially with condensed milk."

"One of the villages that regularly supplies vegetables to Jayden's restaurant also offers fruits, such as watermelons and avocados. They say this is called butter avocado because the flesh is soft, similar to the texture of butter. According to Jayden, this avocado is also good for juice, so I tried it," said Riki. He also grabbed a glass and was satisfied with its soft, naturally sweet taste from the honey, as well as the creamy taste from the combination of avocado and milk. Riki also added cheese cream that he made with cheese he bought in Arendale on top of the avocado juice. This made the taste many times more delicious. However, it wouldn't be suitable for someone on a diet.

"How about planting butter avocados here too, Riki! The red avocados are also delicious," said Selene.

"Red avocados?" asked Liz.

Selene nodded, "Yes, Riki gave me a red avocado earlier. It's elongated and large. I only cut a little and tasted it, it was very sweet! It's really suitable as a fruit, especially as juice."

Hearing that, Liz swallowed her saliva, she also wanted to taste the sweet red avocado. If regular avocados are already delicious, what about the sweeter ones?

"It seems like Liz won't think about her diet if she gets that avocado," said Anton.

Liz quickly turned to him, "I'm not on a diet, Anton!"

Anton raised an eyebrow, "Oh, really? Didn't you only eat a small portion this morning, even though Riki's burgers are so delicious?" asked Anton.

Liz turned to Riki, who was also waiting for her answer.

Liz sighed deeply, then replied.

"Really, I'm not on a diet, I eat a lot too, I just eat little by little. I'm reducing my food intake. Actually, I really like that burger, I love it, but I'm afraid that if I eat a lot, I'll get fat again like I used to. Because now, after I've lost weight, people have started to compliment me and say I'm very beautiful. They've also started to notice my singing talent after I became slim and beautiful. I can now wear beautiful clothes like Angeline, even though my outfits and Angeline's are different. And... there are many more things I like about being slim like this. With a healthy and fit body, I get a lot of love."

Liz's words made Anton feel even more guilty, because he used to tease Liz by saying she was fat. Even though that was all he did to Liz, he knew it hurt her feelings.

Meanwhile, Riki, following his heart, suddenly hugged Liz from behind.

Selene was surprised and held back from shouting with joy.

"Liz, I also like your chubby figure; you're still beautiful in any body shape. But if you prefer yourself now, I'll support you. But you have to remember, the people who love you will still love you even if you get fat. And my gift to you will keep you thin, so you can eat whatever you want," said Riki.

"That's exactly why, Riki. Your gift could run out at any time, so I'm getting used to controlling my appetite,"

Riki shook his head, "Eating such small portions will actually cause other illnesses, Liz. Eat normally, just reduce it a little, not that much."

Liz chuckled softly, "Alright, now let go of me, because I feel embarrassed in front of Selene and Anton."

Anton cleared his throat several times again, fed up with their affection. They looked so intimate even though there wasn't much physical contact.

Unlike Anton, Selene was very happy to see the two of them being so affectionate.

"But they don't seem to mind," whispered Riki.

"I mind! I mind very much!" replied Anton, in a slightly loud voice so that he could be heard clearly.

But Riki pretended not to hear him.

"It seems that the only people who don't like it are the jealous ones, Liz, so just let it be."

Anton leaned back, glaring at the two of them, while eating a yellow watermelon that wasn't as sweet as a red watermelon.

"Hello, everyone! I've decided to become a beauty influencer who uploads makeup content! Now help me!" said Sofie, who suddenly appeared carrying a camera set and a large makeup bag.

Liz and Selene's eyes widened when Sofie's gaze fell on them.

After a fun afternoon with Anton, Liz, Selene, and Sofie, Riki was in a good mood. Suddenly, at around seven in the evening, Riki and Anton were summoned to the police station, along with Sofie.

Leon picked up the three of them at the mansion. This time, Leon looked very cheerful.

Riki didn't even need to use his detection skills to see what was going on with the rich and handsome detective. It was easy to guess that he had gotten a lot of information after getting close to Hannah.

Riki didn't care what Leon did to Hannah, but he thought that a slightly crazy but rule-abiding adult like Leon was the one who could handle a young woman like Hannah.

Riki didn't even care if Leon was just going to play with Hannah later, because Hannah had to experience what it was like to be played with by someone else.

As Riki predicted, at the police station, they were questioned. The ones questioning them were Leon and his friend, who was just as handsome. Because both of them were handsome, Sofie was very happy and did not hesitate to reveal all of her parents' crimes. Sofie was still an emotionally unstable teenager, she easily exploded when her emotions were triggered by something. So, the girl also easily revealed other crimes committed by her parents, besides helping to get rid of Riki's parents. These included embezzling company funds, defrauding investors, and not paying employees their proper wages. In fact, Sofie also revealed her father's depraved behavior of harassing female employees at his office.

Hearing Sofie dare to say all that made Anton finally dare to say that his father had sexually harassed him.

This made the two handsome detectives shake their heads in disbelief at what they had heard.

Now it was Riki's turn.

"So, Riki... are the confessions of those two people... true? I mean, especially Anton's confession?" asked Leon.

Riki furrowed his brow, "I think you've heard more unique stories than that, haven't you? Of course it's true."

Leon smiled broadly, "I think we can make their punishment even heavier."

Riki also smiled, "You can arrange it, I'll leave it to you."

Chapter 85: 85. Mischievous fairy

"You look really happy. Did something happen while you were working with Jake?" asked Riki.

He had just returned from the police station with Anton and Sofie. Since they had already had dinner out with Leon, Riki was now full and wanted to lie down. Twaila came home shortly after Riki had settled down comfortably.

Suddenly she appeared with a solid body, smiling broadly while carrying two packages whose contents were unknown. But judging from the shape of the packages and their aroma, they were definitely food.

"He treated me to so much food! He's such a gentleman, treating me so well, and he's also very handsome and—"

"Okay, okay, I get it, he bought you a lot of food and that's why you're praising him so much. Is there no one like him in your world?" asked Riki, starting to get annoyed because the fairy kept praising Jake. Riki felt like he was dealing with his younger sister who was in love.

Twaila put the package she was carrying on the small table in Riki's room, then sat on the edge of the bed, looking at Riki with her cute eyes.

"Of course not! For me, no one is as handsome as Jake—except the Duke of Arendale, but a fairy like me couldn't be friends with a duke like that. Besides, he's the son of an emperor. Besides, what guy in my world would treat a girl that well? No one has ever bought me food."

Riki had guessed that Twaila's definition of "good" was measured by food. But fairies like Twaila had a special power that allowed them to see human nature, so it was certain that Jake was safe.

"Yeah, yeah, whatever. What did he buy for you?" asked Riki, sitting down, curious about the package Twaila was carrying.

"But it's for me, master."

Riki furrowed his brow, "You don't want to share it with me? You just want to show it off to me, is that it?"

Twaila laughed, then took the package and opened it in front of Riki.

It was all desserts. No wonder, because Twaila loved sweet foods the most.

"I just want to show it off to you, you can't ask for any, master."

Riki lay back down, "even though I've given you a lot of food from Arendale."

"That's different! Because you are my master, so it is the master's duty to give me food."

"Oh, is that so? Then make Jake your master, so he will be the one responsible for feeding you. I'm sure he will go bankrupt soon."

Twaila laughed out loud at Riki's words.

"Master, it's impossible to replace you as my master, because our contract is for life!"

Riki glanced at the fairy again, "So, if I die, you'll be free?"

Twaila nodded, "Yes, of course! Besides, most fairies who have contracts with humans fall in love and get married. But, it seems like you're different, master. You're not romantically interested in me. This is very rare! I like it."

Riki rolled over to his back, facing away from Twaila, "Be quiet, I want to sleep," Riki muttered.

However, Twaila didn't want to stop talking, "It seems like my master already has someone he has chosen. That's amazing! Whereas most other masters, I mean, people like the master, have their own harems."

Riki frowned again, not quite understanding what Twaila was saying.

"Harem?" replied Riki.

Twaila nodded, "yup! A harem is... what is it? It's like when a master has many lovers. Doesn't the master know that?"

Riki covered his head with a pillow, "Be quiet, Twaila! Don't bother me! I'm mentally exhausted."

Twaila chuckled again, looking at her master curled up on his bed, which was starting to look small. That was because Riki had grown tall and big. The 200×200 cm bed felt cramped.

"Oh my god, the master is just being shy. But, I'm leaving, should I go to Jake's place so that—"

"No! Why would you go there?" Riki, panicking because he thought the fairy was going back to Jake, woke up instantly. But Twaila had already shrunk to a small size and was floating in the air. She was laughing freely, mocking Riki, who was starting to get annoyed.

It turned out that the fairy was very mischievous.

Suddenly, Riki's door opened, revealing Anton, who was coming in, panting.

"Riki? Why are you shouting? Is something bothering you?" he asked.

Riki shook his head, "No... it's just— there was a mosquito, so I was really annoyed, haha, but it's gone now."

Anton furrowed his brow, "A mosquito? In your room?"

Indeed, the presence of mosquitoes was not unusual there. But in such a clean place, with various sophisticated air conditioners, it was actually impossible for mosquitoes to appear in the mansion.

Moreover, Riki occupied the largest and most comfortable room.

"Just one mosquito, it seems like it got lost," said Riki again, which made Anton confused again.

"Oh, okay... I'm helping the butler manage the mansion's finances. If you need anything, just let me know, okay?"

Riki nodded quickly, then Anton left.

Anton was indeed versatile. He wasn't a fairy, but his presence was similar to Twaila's.

"You have a beautiful sibling, master," commented Twaila, who was sometimes annoying, but this time sounded very unique.

"He's a man, Twaila."

"A beautiful man."

"Oh my god, go to Jake's place, don't bother me."

Twaila laughed when she saw her master curling up in his blanket.

"I'm going to bother that beautiful man!"

Riki didn't care anymore when he heard the fairy's sounds flying out of his room, then slowly closing the door.

He immediately fell asleep because he had used up a lot of energy dealing with the people around him.

[You have a new mission this morning!]

Riki glanced at his system screen. At that moment, he was enjoying breakfast alone, because everyone else was still asleep. Riki only ate some piece of black apple that he bought from Arendale, as well as red avocado juice that he also bought from Arendale, plus three boiled eggs and a piece of unprocessed butter avocado.

"A mission? Shouldn't I receive a reward for putting those bad guys in jail?" asked Riki.

[Have they been proven guilty? No, right? Then your reward cannot be given yet]

[But the system has provided stronger final evidence]

"I already gave that evidence to Leon yesterday."

[In that case, you can be patient and wait for the results]

Riki clicked his tongue impatiently. He couldn't wait to see those people suffer for the rest of their lives.

Sandra didn't look sick, but Riki was sure she would be sick after being imprisoned. Anton didn't even care about her anymore, because he was very disappointed with what his mother had done in the past. Anton never thought his mother would be that evil.

Not only did she cause Riki's father's death, she also helped those evil people seize Riki's father's property and company. Sandra was even proven to have poisoned Riki's mother.

So disappointed, Anton refused to meet his mother last night.

Actually, Riki feels sorry for Anton, but he can't be too kind. All of this Riki does to avenge what that woman did. She must suffer until the end of her life.

Chapter 86: 86. Seashell Beach

[Your first mission today is to go to a coastal village and help find solutions to improve their economy]

[You have a whole day to complete this mission]

[You only need to find solutions; the implementation can be done tomorrow]

[Your reward is access to several products in the system store, which you are free to buy or resell]

[You will also receive a cash reward of 15 million dollars]

[If you refuse this mission, the system will deduct 20 million dollars from your account]

Riki almost choked when he saw the system's last notification.

How could he let the system deduct that much money from his account?

Of course, Riki won't let that happen.

Then the system screen changed again, showing the location of the coastal village in question.

It turned out to be not far from where Riki was, but it was a fairly remote place. If he wasn't mistaken, it was a place that had once been fought over by conglomerates. But that was when Riki was still a child and his father was still alive.

"Riki, are you awake? What did you have for breakfast?"

Riki turned his head and almost screamed when Anton suddenly appeared behind him. Anton was only wearing a sleeveless shirt and shorts, clearly having just woken up.

"I had a very sweet apple for breakfast. Do you want some? Sit down."

Anton obeyed Riki's command and sat down next to him, still looking sleepy.

Riki gave Anton a piece of black apple that he had cut earlier.

"Do you know about the village nearby? The one that was once fought over by conglomerates? I think that village is neglected now," asked Riki.

Anton, who was still not fully awake, tried to stay awake by eating the apple Riki gave him. Then he was surprised because the apple tasted very sweet, but not overly so. The apple was also crunchy but had quite a lot of juice. The skin was black and the flesh was yellowish.

"The village nearby, right? Wasn't it bought by someone who—hmm, wait a minute."

Anton grabbed Riki's smartphone, which was unlocked at the time. He searched for something on the internet.

Then he showed it to Riki.

"This person bought it, and now he's selling it to the government. But the government can't buy it anymore. I don't know what really happened to that village, even though it's very beautiful. Maybe the government can't buy it because the person is asking for a very high price for a village that is difficult to access. In fact, there is also a beautiful beach there, but well... the problem is that it is difficult to access. If we go there, we need to park the car and walk about, um... maybe 500 meters. The village is behind a pine forest."

Anton's limited explanation made Riki even more curious.

"Let's go there, Anton."

Hearing that, Anton was no longer sleepy.

"WHAT?"

Riki nodded, "Let's go there. I'm sure the people in that village are having a hard time right now. The government doesn't care about them, and the landlords there don't care about them either."

Anton, who was still shocked and confused, remained silent at that moment. He was also amazed that suddenly, without any stormy weather, Riki was worried about the villagers who didn't even know him.

"Anton? Why are you silent? We don't have any other plans, right? Twaila and Jake can handle my work, and we also have a day off from college today," said Riki.

"I'm also off from school, so I'm coming!" Sofie suddenly appeared, wearing cute Hello Kitty pajamas and hugging a white rabbit doll.

Riki immediately turned to Sofie, "You don't even know where we're going, Sofie."

"Where are you guys going? I have the next week off work, I need a break!" Sean came up behind Sofie, yawning widely.

Riki sighed deeply and heavily. He forgot that they couldn't leave Riki alone, they would definitely want to come along. Selene would be next.

"You guys are going, I'm coming too!" Selene shouted from inside the mansion.

Riki had expected this.

"Are you sure you want to come with us?" asked Anton.

Without knowing anything, they nodded in agreement.

An hour later, they were stunned when they saw their destination.

"You didn't say we were going to Seashell Beach, Riki!" Sofie, the girl, was jumping up and down with joy, walking ahead of the others.

"Shell Beach? What's that?" asked Selene.

"A few hundred meters ahead of us, there will be a small fishing village, and in front of it is a beautiful beach, where there are usually lots of beautiful shells," replied Anton.

"I'm tired," complained Sean, who was already complaining a lot even though they hadn't even started yet.

Selene dragged Sean's arm, "Don't let Sofie beat you! She's already far ahead of us!"

Riki just chuckled at them.

A few minutes later, they arrived at the coastal village.

There were several people living there. Actually, they were workers employed by the landowner. They worked fishing, then sent the catch to their landlord.

Riki and Anton immediately went to see the village head, who fortunately was not out sailing that day. Meanwhile, Selene, Sean, and Sofie went to play on the beach.

"Actually, we have been neglected by the landowner for two years. He no longer cares about us or the fish we catch. Even though we always bring fresh fish. Because of that, we are forced to sell our fish at the market. Our income is very small, considering the cost of going to the market is also not small," said the village head.

"In your opinion, if I buy this land, what changes should I make here?" asked Riki.

Anton looked at the village head, then at Riki, before he dared to answer.

"Ahem! If I may give my opinion, actually you only need to repair the roads or access to this village. Then, improve the facilities around the beach, and that way there will be many visitors coming. If there are many visitors, then the fishermen won't need to sell their fish far away. They can just sell them here, or they can also sell them in a processed form, for example, selling grilled fish, so the price will also be higher."

[Your first mission has been successful!]

Riki had guessed that Anton would be very useful.

Riki patted Anton on the shoulder, smiling proudly at him.

"You are indeed very useful, Anton. Let's do it," said Riki.

"Uh? Are you serious?" asked Anton.

Riki nodded, "Yes, let's buy this place!"

"You said buy..."

"Yup, buy!"

The village chief laughed upon hearing this, "You two are extraordinary young people!"

Chapter 87: 87. Helping the villagers

[Your first mission is complete]

[Your reward is access to several products in the system store, which you are free to buy or resell]

[You will also receive a cash reward of 15 million dollars]

[You also earn 3 system points]

Riki smiled slightly, knowing that the fifteen million dollars would soon be spent on buying the entire place. However, Riki was sure that he would get even bigger profits.

Riki got up from sitting under the coconut tree, took out his smartphone, and began recording the extraordinarily beautiful beach.

Shell Beach was a very beautiful beach, and there were indeed many beautiful shells there. It had clean, well-maintained white sand. There was not a single piece of trash in sight.

It was shaded by many coconut trees, most of which were bent down so that the fruit could be easily reached.

At the edge of the ocean, there were also several small islands, most of which could be visited simply by swimming or taking a short boat ride.

Riki took pictures of himself and all the scenery. He intended to promote it on social media. Knowing Riki's intention, Sean did the same. Since Sean had many fans, he was sure that Riki's goal of promoting the beach would spread more quickly.

Selene and Sofie also helped by appearing several times, either in Riki's videos or in Sean's videos.

At that moment, Anton, who was watching the four of them from afar, from a small bamboo gazebo on the beach, just smiled slightly at them.

For some reason, he didn't feel like he was one of them. Even though it was clear that he was Riki's half-brother. He felt he didn't belong with them.

Because of that, he chose to sit quietly in the gazebo, observing his surroundings.

Anton knew that Riki's intention in recording the video with his smartphone was to promote the beach. So, because he also wanted to help Riki, Anton recorded them all with his own smartphone.

From where Anton was standing, he could see the whole scene clearly. It was indeed very beautiful.

It would be a shame to ignore it.

Suddenly, two girls approached Anton and said they had brought some gifts for Riki and the others. According to the two girls, they would be grateful if the place was bought, renovated, and turned into a tourist attraction. That way, the local economy would improve, and access to the village would also get better.

Hearing the two girls' words, Anton felt sorry for them. After the two girls left, Riki came over to him.

"What's wrong, Anton?" asked Riki.

Anton showed him the large gift that the two girls who had just left had given him.

"The two girls said that the residents here gave this to us, and they also said that they were waiting for their village to be bought and renovated. I... I don't know why, but I feel sorry for them," said Anton.

Riki sat down next to Anton, then opened the large gift wrapped in a big red plastic bag. Riki smiled when he saw what was inside. It was wild vegetables that were edible and tasted good.

Riki remembered the days when his parents were still alive. Riki's happy family would go to the village, to where Riki's mother's family lived. At that time, Riki also met Selene, who was then still named Sunny.

In the village, Riki's mother told him about some of the village's specialties. His mother also showed him vegetables that usually grew wild and could be processed into delicious food.

Because Riki's mother's family was good at cooking, Riki was amazed by the taste of the wild vegetables he had just eaten back then.

And now, Riki saw those vegetables again. There were young ferns, genjer vegetables, very young bamboo shoots, and other vegetables.

"Riki, can I ask you for something?" Anton asked suddenly.

Riki looked up from the large package, closed it again, and focused on what Anton was going to say.

"Yes? Go ahead, Anton."

Anton cleared his throat briefly, then said, "Let me manage this place. I promise I'll do my best for them, I won't let them or you down. I'll take it seriously, so—"

"Of course, go ahead, Anton."

Anton fell silent, staring at Riki with an incredulous look.

"You... are allowing me?"

Riki chuckled upon hearing this, then nodded, "Of course, why not? In fact, it was you who came up with the idea to improve the condition of this place, wasn't it? So, I'll leave it to you. But first, we have to buy this land and find an experienced architect. I also plan to build small villas or guesthouses here. That way, I can earn additional income. If I build guesthouses, I will also hire local people. Isn't that a good idea, Anton?"

Anton's eyes sparkled, he really looked very excited to help the local residents improve the place.

"That's a great idea! I'll contact the owner of this place right away... but later, after we leave here, because the internet signal here is pretty bad."

Riki, who heard Anton's words, checked his own smartphone, and sure enough, the internet signal in the village was pretty bad.

"Find out how to improve the internet connection here, Anton."

"Of course, Riki."

After Riki and the others returned to the mansion in the afternoon, they were completely exhausted.

Selene and Sofie lay down on the large fur rug in the living room. Meanwhile, Sean lay on the sofa near them, editing the video that he and Riki had recorded at the beach.

Meanwhile, Riki cooked the vegetables he got from the locals. And Anton was different from the others. While the others were feeling exhausted, he felt even more excited at that moment.

He immediately contacted the owner of the shell beach and its surroundings. The man, the owner of the shell beach, was very happy that someone was seriously interested in buying the large plot of land.

In fact, the man didn't need much persuasion; he immediately handed everything over to Anton. Or to Riki, because Anton bought the land on Riki's behalf.

Even though the landowner gave a discount because he was happy that his land was finally being bought, it still cost 12 million dollars to purchase it.

Anton currently had 15 million dollars. So, he used that money to contact an architect and several experts to help him.

Riki, who saw Anton busy in the kitchen, just smiled broadly.

[You're lucky because your brother has your father's natural business talent]

Riki's smile faded when he heard this. He knew that Anton was more like his father, especially in terms of intelligence. Riki knew this and he could accept it, but that didn't mean he wasn't jealous.

If only Riki had had his father's intelligence from the start, he might not have had to suffer so much.

But well... everything must be appreciated. Because it was Riki's suffering that led him to discover the system.

Riki began to focus on making various types of food from the vegetables he had. He cooked for lunch because he and the others were hungry that afternoon.

After making three types of dishes with vegetables given to him by the villagers, Riki invited the others to eat.

On that scorching afternoon, the five of them ate heartily. After their stomachs were full, drowsiness set in.

Riki, who could no longer stay awake, finally fell asleep around one in the afternoon.

Around three in the afternoon, Riki woke up to a loud noise coming from somewhere.

With a heavy and dizzy head, Riki got up and looked for the source of the noise.

After walking to the front of the mansion, Riki finally realized what was happening.

People who didn't know their place had come to the mansion.

Selene turned her head when she sensed Riki's presence.

"Riki!!"

Riki approached Selene and asked his cousin.

"What happened, Selene?"

Selene, who looked frightened, finally shed tears, staring at Riki with teary eyes.

"Riki, I'm sorry, but... do you remember me telling you that I ran away here because I was being chased by some people? They are those people," said Selene with a trembling voice.

Riki furrowed his brow, vaguely remembering Selene's story. Moreover, he had just woken up, and his mind was still foggy.

"Do you owe them money?" asked Riki, glancing at the people who looked like village thugs. They were muscular, and it was almost impossible for Selene to fight them off. Fortunately, the mansion had strong security.

Selene shook her head, "No! But they always insist that I owe them, even though their evidence is fake. They just want to trap me so that I will marry their boss," said Selene.

Riki hugged his cousin to calm her down.

"What should we do about them, sir?" asked one of the mansion's security guards. Even some butlers got involved to help security keep them from entering the mansion.

"Call the police immediately," said Riki.

"Yes, sir!"

Chapter 88: 88. Young thug

[Your first mission today is to capture those thugs]

[The thugs came to demoralize Selene, because Selene, Angeline, and the others are preparing for their debut as an idols]

Riki frowned at his first mission of the day and its explanation. If the thugs had such intentions, then the real culprit was the person behind all of this.

Someone who is jealous of—wait a minute, is it Hannah's bad behavior again.

[It turns out you are now smarter, master]

Riki frowned again, feeling annoyed by what the system had just said to him.

[One thing is for sure, you will get a surprise reward if you complete this mission]

[Good luck!]

"Call the police immediately," said Riki.

"Yes, sir!"

Riki hugged Selene again, then pulled his cousin back into the mansion.

"Riki—"

"Stay here, Selene, let me take care of them. I'll find out why they suddenly came. Someone must have asked them to do all this," said Riki, after sitting Selene down on the sofa.

"What happened?" asked Anton, who had just woken up.

Sean, who had also just woken up, looked curious. "What's all the commotion outside, Riki?" asked Sean, then yawned briefly.

"You calm Selene down here, I'll explain it later. What's certain is that there are a lot of thugs outside. Anton, come with me to check on them," said Riki.

Anton nodded and followed Riki back to the mansion's main gate.

Several thugs forced their way in while shouting Selene's name. They also mentioned a number of debts they accused Selene of owing.

If this continued, Riki was worried that the media would come and report bad things about Selene or Sean. Riki's name and Hayper Entertainment's reputation would also be tarnished.

"The police will be here soon, but the thugs are getting more violent, sir!" reported a butler.

"If we secure them ourselves, will the police blame us later?" asked Riki.

"I don't think so, Riki. Considering how they are, the police will surely understand if we knock them unconscious now," replied Anton, already smiling broadly and with his hands ready to beat up the thugs.

"Then let's knock them unconscious, but leave the weakest one alive so we can question him later," said Riki, which was immediately agreed upon by the others.

Since the security guards, the butler, Anton, and Riki were very strong, they managed to immobilize the thugs. As Riki had said earlier, they only knocked the thugs unconscious and left the weakest and seemingly youngest one behind.

Riki took the young thug into the mansion while the others were being questioned by the police.

Riki took the young thug to the back of the mansion, in front of which was a large swimming pool and a stretch of white sandy beach.

Anton placed a glass of drink in front of the young thug. The young thug looked much younger than Sofie. He was around 15 or 16 years old, still very handsome, but he did look unkempt.

The young thug trembled as Riki and Anton stared at him with intimidating gazes.

"I'm sorry... sir... I was just following along because if I joined in the riot, the big boss would give me $300. I need money to feed myself and my siblings at the orphanage. I beg you... sob."

Riki and Anton frowned at the young thug, who was crying like a child whose candy had just been taken away by his friend.

Riki signaled to Anton to leave, leaving Riki and the teenager alone.

"All right, tell me your name. I won't hurt you if you cooperate. If you refuse to cooperate with me, then you'll end up in prison. In prison, there are many bad people who will beat you up, so which one do you choose? Me, or your big boss?"

The teenager looked up at Riki, his teary eyes looking pitiful.

Even when Riki used his detection skill, the results were very sad. Riki, with his kind heart, felt sorry for the teenager who was forced to become a thug.

The teenager's name was Nicholas, usually called Nicho. He came from an orphanage, and his orphanage was very bad because it was managed by someone who was under the leadership of a gangster boss. That person always took money from government aid or other people's aid for himself. He didn't care whether the children in the orphanage were starving or not.

Nicho had not been to school for about a month because he had to work to earn money. When he had given up hope of finding a good job, the orphanage manager told him that he had a job for Nicho with a good salary.

And that was why Nicho had been with the gangsters for a week. He always got $100 every day, which he used to feed his younger siblings at the orphanage. Nicho's job involved computers because he was quite skilled at operating them. He entered the data requested by the gangster boss, while always being threatened that if he dared to leak the important data, he would be killed immediately.

Of course, Nicho was terrified.

Then suddenly, yesterday, the boss told Nicho to go to the mansion with the others. If he succeeded, he would get $300.

Nicho himself told Riki everything according to what his detection skill said. The teenager was honest.

"My boss is named Kylo Xavier, a man in his 30s who has served as the regent in my area. People wouldn't believe that he is the boss of a gangster. But my boss also has his own boss, named Jack Handerson. He was given the mission to disrupt this place because of orders from his superiors," said Nicho.

Riki was no longer surprised when he heard the name Jack Handerson again. No wonder. Jack must have done all that for Hannah. That meant Jack would also mess with the other girls, not just Selene.

"Does your boss have an extensive information network?" asked Riki.

Nicho nodded, "That's right, they also know a lot about you, Mr. Riki."

Riki smiled slightly, not expecting the problem to spread everywhere, but also not too surprised.

"Then, what else do you know about them? The more information you have, the more I will give you what you want," said Riki.

Nicho looked up, staring at Riki who was smiling slightly, or... maybe it was a smirk. Riki seemed very interested in him, but Nicho felt that Riki was very dangerous. Even though Riki's aura was much better and brighter than his boss's.

"You're not lying, right?" asked Nicho.

Riki nodded confidently, "Yup, I'll grant your request, so prepare the request you want the most."

Nicho's heart was pounding. He had finally gotten the chance to get what he had always wanted. Nicho knew that Riki had a lot of money, because all the information about Riki was in his boss's files.

"I-in that case... I have one request, Mr. Riki," said Nicho.

Riki nodded, "Okay, go ahead and tell me what it is."

Nicho swallowed hard, because he was very nervous.

He then made a request that Riki never expected.

"I want you to save our orphanage. I know you are more than capable of doing it, so I beg you... I am willing to work for you without rest, so—"

"Okay."

Nicho fell silent, his eyes welling up again.

"Yes?"

"I said okay. I can do that for you."

Nicho was stunned again, not expecting Riki to immediately agree to his request.

Riki laughed at Nicho's expression, which he found funny.

"You could have asked me for a lot of money, an apartment, a luxury car... Or the other luxury thing, but instead of all that, you asked me to save the orphanage? Hahaha, but I like that, Nicho. So, now, tell me, what information can you give me?" asked Riki.

Nicho looked serious now, and it was very funny to Riki, considering the traces of tears still on his cheeks.

"If you have a computer or laptop, I can show you all their important data, Mr. Riki," said Nicho seriously.

Riki raised an eyebrow, "Oh? You can do that? That's interesting, I'll bring you a laptop."

Riki stood up from his seat and went to Anton, who was still behind the door. Even though Riki had asked him to leave, he felt he had to keep an eye on the boy named Nicho. Anton still didn't trust him.

"Anton, get me the laptop on the table, the one without any important data on it," Riki asked.

"But what for, Riki? That kid could run away with the laptop. We can't just trust him," said Anton.

Riki smiled slightly, then patted Anton on the shoulder. "But you trust me, right? I know what I'm doing."

Hearing that, Anton had no choice but to comply with Riki's request.

After Anton got the laptop and gave it to Nicho, he glanced at Riki, who was still smiling and looked calm.

"I'll start, Mr. Riki," said Nicho.

Riki nodded, "Alright, go ahead, Nicho."

Chapter 89: 89. Nicho

Even when covered in the dirtiest mud, a diamond will remain a beautiful, sparkling diamond.

Riki never expected that, despite all his shortcomings and limitations, Nicho would have such extraordinary talent.

At first, Riki couldn't believe all the talents that his detection skills had revealed to him. But now he could see it for himself.

Nicho, all by himself, was able to hack into his boss's computer and copy important data and documents belonging to his boss.

Anton was even stunned, unable to believe what he was seeing at that moment.

Important and dangerous transaction data was there. Several parties were also visible in it. The names of important people also appeared.

"Do you believe me now, Mr. Riki?" asked Nicho, anxiously waiting for Riki's reaction.

The boy felt relieved when Riki smiled at him and nodded, "Yep, I believe you, so I'll take all the important data and documents. Then, you'll get what you want."

Then Riki turned to Anton, "Take Nicho to the empty room. I'll meet Leon out front. Oh—bring him some more appropriate clothes too, let him clean himself up."

"But are you sure, Riki? I mean, he used to be one of them," replied Anton, who still couldn't trust Nicho.

Riki smiled and said, "Don't worry, I've made sure he's safe. He won't fight back or run away."

Anton nodded in agreement, then took Nicho to the empty room.

Riki returned to the front. He saw the police arresting the criminals. Leon was also there, waiting for Riki.

"Everything's okay here, right?" asked Leon.

Riki nodded, "Yeah, everything's fine. Like I said before. And we need to talk privately. You've made sure that Nicho—I mean the one I took inside—won't be interrogated, okay?" asked Riki, then he continued whispering to Leon.

"He's our key to uncovering Jack Handerson's conspiracy," whispered Riki.

Leon's eyes immediately lit up when he heard Riki's words.

"I'll make sure they all forget about him, so let's talk now," urged Leon.

But right after that, a police officer called him over to discuss something.

"I'll talk to him for a moment, then I'll follow you inside to talk, okay?" said Leon, before approaching the police officer.

Riki returned to the mansion.

Selene had calmed down, and she had even started cooking breakfast with the maid and Sofie.

Riki sat with Anton and Sean.

"What really happened?" asked Sean.

"This is much more dangerous than I thought, Sean. You know, there are people in this world who are more terrifying than Vicky or David, right? My ex and Anton's ex are currently challenging that dangerous person. This is really crazy," said Riki.

"I regret ever loving her," said Anton, looking very offended to hear Riki talking about Hannah again.

"What do you mean? I'm still confused," asked Sean.

Riki sighed deeply, then he continued, "Well, Hannah, or my ex and Anton's—"

"Don't call her my ex!" Anton interrupted.

"Shut up, Anton! Well, Hannah seems to be obsessed with competing with Angeline or Liz, so when she found out that both of them were going to debut as idols, Hannah—"

"Correction, I think Hannah is just obsessed with competing with Liz." Anton replied to Riki's statement again.

Riki clicked his tongue in annoyance, but he continued his explanation.

"Okay, Hannah found out that Liz was going to debut as an idol, so she wanted to imitate her, then she cheated on Anton with a man who was the CEO of a fairly large entertainment agency. Even though the man already had a wife, crazy Hannah didn't care. She even seemed proud to be the man's mistress, a man who was said to be the tenth richest man in the country. It turns out that the man had gangsters under him. I found this out from Nicho just now. The man had a subordinate who was both a regent and the boss of the gangsters. Nicho was forced to work there because the manager of the orphanage where he lived was an acquaintance of the gangster boss. Well, the reason why the gangster boss's men came here was to destroy Selene's mental state. In my opinion, they will terrorize Selene until she withdraws from her debut as an idol. And I think Angeline and Liz will also receive similar treatment after the two of them succeed in bringing Selene down."

Sean nodded his head, having understood the gist of this morning's problem.

"But, that gangster boss is also the regent? That's crazy, right? No wonder Selene ran away here. Remember, Selene said that man intended to marry her by saying she had fake debts? It turns out he has a position like that," said Sean.

Riki nodded, "Don't worry, after this, he will be removed from office. If they have been hiding under power and money all this time, then we have that too."

Riki, who looked calm, seemed to be hiding his anger behind his sweet smile. Although he looked calm, it was clear that he was very emotional.

Not long after, Leon arrived. They had breakfast together, with Nicho as well.

After breakfast, Riki invited Leon to a small office inside the mansion.

It was called small because only part of the large room was used as an office. The rest was filled with large shelves displaying various books. The rest was empty space that Riki didn't know what to do with.

The room was on the second floor, in front of which was a large balcony that was also still empty. Riki planned to call Evan or Angeline and have them think about a small garden on the large balcony. It would definitely be very nice.

But that could wait, because Riki's focus right now was Leon.

"Those are all the data and important documents belonging to Jack Handerson's subordinates. He is the boss of those thugs, as well as the regent of the area," said Riki.

Leon checked the contents of the data and immediately laughed happily when he saw it.

"This is incredible! How did that kid hack all this? He even got evidence of deleted transactions—what's this? They also sell human organs illegally? They also distribute drugs and get paid to kill people. Hahaha, crazy... this is indeed the work of ordinary gangsters, but what makes it all feel so crazy is that the perpetrators are well-known figures who have a good reputation in the eyes of the public. Did you know that the boss or regent has been praised this month for successfully making their area the cleanest? And that jerk Jack Handerson, he donated a million dollars to an orphanage in Ivana's name last night and received a lot of praise from netizens," said Leon.

Riki grinned, "People who like to show off when doing good deeds are the ones most worthy of suspicion."

Leon nodded in agreement, "That's right, because the most corrupt officials are those who are known for always donating. They even compete to make donations. It makes people not believe them when they get caught for embezzling state funds."

"You can take care of all this, right, Leon?" asked Riki.

Leon nodded, "Don't worry, I'm making good use of my uncles' influence and power, Riki. And... I think your name will also appear as one of the richest people next month."

Riki furrowed his brow, "Can't I ask them not to write my name there?"

[Not for now, master. You have to show your wealth. Once people know, then you can hide your wealth]

[You are also prohibited from hiding from paying taxes to the state]

Well, Riki thought, there was a price to pay for all the luxuries he currently enjoyed.

"Actually, you can, but don't you want your name to appear in magazines as the richest person?" asked Leon.

Riki laughed and shook his head, "No, I'm just kidding. I have to show those who once insulted me that I'm not the poor kid they used to know."

Leon laughed heartily at Riki's words and patted him on the shoulder.

"That's great, buddy! You have to show them where you stand. Don't hide. You have to show them everything."

After that, they both laughed together, laughing at their conversation, which suddenly sounded very silly.

"Oh yeah, Leon. I want to buy the orphanage where Nicho is, because the orphanage administrators are their accomplices," asked Riki.

Leon thought for a moment, "In that case, I'll take care of the orphanage. You just need to buy it later. Because the process is a bit difficult, it can't be done instantly. At the earliest, you can buy it and renovate it tomorrow."

Leon left after that, promising that he would take care of the orphanage issue.

Riki was still upstairs, waving his hand at Leon, who was already downstairs, ready to get into his car.

"Excuse me, Mr. Riki..."

Riki turned around and saw Nicho, who was much better than before.

There was no more dull skin and shabby clothes. All that remained was a clean and intelligent-looking handsome teenager.

"You can rest first, Nicho," said Riki.

The boy shook his head and immediately approached Riki.

"No, let me work for you, Mr. Riki! I am willing to do anything for you."

Riki was silent for a moment, staring at the boy, a thought crossing his mind.

"Nicho, how about I adopt you as my brother? I don't know if that's possible or not. As far as I know, minors cannot just leave the orphanage. You are protected by the government. In fact, you are not even allowed to work yet, especially if it is to support your younger siblings at the orphanage. If you want to come with me, I think the only way is adoption," said Riki.

Nicho's eyes widened when he heard Riki's words. He looked very happy at that moment, as if those were the words he had been waiting to hear all this time.

But suddenly his expression turned gloomy, and he said,

"What about my younger siblings at the orphanage?"

Chapter 90: 90. Evan's girlfriend

Several days passed.

Riki smiled smugly as he watched a country in turmoil because many important people had been arrested. Some of them were regents who were also gangster bosses, then there were also several orphanage administrators, a minister, a trusted foundation manager, and many more.

The case became a hot topic of conversation among the public and netizens. These were people with good public images, yet they were capable of committing despicable acts such as murder, illegal organ sales, and even selling young girls and teenagers to important officials.

The case was truly insane.

The entire population of the country knew about it.

For several days, Riki did not remain idle. He carried out several tasks that he should have done. Such as observing the progress of the shellfish village, where the access road was being repaired and several new facilities were being built.

Then, Riki also hired a new trustworthy person named Alex, who took care of the orphanage. Now, the orphanage is being renovated so that the children there can live comfortably. During the renovation, the children lived in a large house that Riki rented, ensuring that they remained healthy by paying a doctor to check on them. And many other things.

Riki also checked on several businesses handled by his trusted people, even Jay, who had moved to a newly built restaurant, wanted to open a branch at the Oceanica Hotel. Riki, who trusted Jay, let Jay do it. After all, he was assisted by someone who was very experienced in the world of food and beverage. More importantly, that person was also trustworthy.

Actually, even though Riki's job was just to check, he felt very tired. Especially since he used his detection skills on every employee or new person hired. His detection skills required energy, so Riki routinely restored the magical energy in his body.

Even so, those busy days were over, at least for the time being.

Feeling exhausted, Riki decided to stay in the mansion and rest.

He would help Evan arrange the garden on the mansion's balcony. Angeline helped Riki design a small garden there, while Evan did all the work.

Evan and his team bought some items, prepared some plants, then came to Riki's mansion to arrange everything according to the design.

The sound of the horn from the truck that came to transport all the garden supplies could be heard.

Riki peeked from the balcony, carrying his cup of coffee. He greeted Evan and his team below.

"RIKI!! I BROUGHT YOU SWEET PUMPKINS, TARO, AND BANANAS!!" Evan shouted from below.

Riki chuckled when he heard it.

That morning, Evan looked very enthusiastic and excited. It seemed like something good had happened to him.

Riki rarely hung out with Evan anymore, because neither of them had time for it. They had a lot of work, especially since they were both still in college, and Evan had been preparing for his thesis defense a few days ago. Evan only had time now, and he immediately used it to work on the garden on Riki's spacious mansion balcony.

Riki came down from upstairs to greet Evan and receive the souvenirs Evan had mentioned earlier.

"Wow, you got all this for me?" asked Riki.

Evan nodded, "Yep! Yesterday, a couple came to the Little Heaven office to deliver the harvest from their garden. They said they were very happy with the garden design services for their new house in the city. They are going to give the house to their son, who is getting married next month."

From the tone of his voice, Riki thought that something good had happened to Evan.

"You look so excited, Evan. What happened to you, huh, buddy?" asked Riki teasingly, which made Evan laugh when he heard it.

"Gosh! Nothing, it's just that a lot of things are going well, that's all," said Evan, helping Riki carry the gifts he had brought for Riki to the kitchen. They put everything on the large table.

Meanwhile, Evan's team, assisted by the mansion's servants, carried the items to the upstairs balcony.

"Are you sure that's all that happened?" Riki asked again, still in a teasing tone, which this time made Evan feel awkward.

"What do you mean?"

"Does this have something to do with a girl? Or... am I wrong?" asked Riki.

Since it seemed that Riki's guess was correct, Evan looked even more awkward.

"How about you make some delicious snacks with—"

"Stop changing the subject, Evan... am I no longer your best friend?" Riki folded his arms across his chest, pretending to be annoyed because Evan kept avoiding Riki's questions.

Evan sighed deeply, then sat down and looked at Riki with a serious expression.

"Actually, I just didn't want to tell you yet, because... because she's still embarrassed if anyone finds out that we're dating," Evan muttered.

Riki was surprised that his guess was correct, so he sat down and put on a serious face.

"Seriously? You have a girlfriend now? Who is she?" Riki pressed, very curious.

Evan covered his face with both hands, then said softly.

"It's... I'm close to Zeno and Aslan's older sister... her name is Aileen. You still remember her, right? The one who was almost pushed off a cliff by her boyfriend—"

"WHAT?!"

Riki was really surprised at that moment, because he didn't expect Evan to be close to Zeno's sister.

"Is that so surprising?" Evan asked, confused.

Riki shook his head, "No, it's just—very unexpected. You know she's the daughter of a conglomerate, right?"

Evan scratched the back of his neck awkwardly, "Yes... I know, but I'm sure I can treat her well. Even though I'm nothing compared to her ex, I'll try to be careful in treating her—I mean, um... I'll work hard so she won't be embarrassed to have a boyfriend like me."

Riki smiled, seeing the sincerity in Evan's words. It wasn't that Riki didn't trust Evan, but Riki was just afraid that their relationship wouldn't work out. Their social status was also very different. Riki didn't want Evan to feel insecure because his girlfriend was the daughter of a conglomerate.

But Riki realized that Evan also needed experience, whether good or bad. Riki had no right to interfere as long as there were no significant problems in their relationship.

"I'm happy for you, Evan. In that case, I'll make some delicious snacks, consider it a congratulatory gift for finally having a girlfriend."

Evan laughed when he heard Riki's words, "Hahaha, you're right. Thank you, Riki, I'm going upstairs, okay? Maybe everything will be settled by noon."

Riki nodded, "Okay."

After Evan disappeared behind the door, Riki's smile also disappeared.

He was still very worried about his friend, because he only knew Luna, Aileen's mother, as well as Zeno and Aslan. In fact, Riki didn't know Arvin very well, even though Riki admitted that Arvin was a good and smart guy.

Riki called Zeno, asking if he was free at that time. When Riki mentioned that he was going to make snacks, Zeno immediately agreed to go to Riki's house. He said that he and Kaivan would bring work at Riki's mansion.

Riki furrowed his brow after their call ended.

"He's going to work here?" Riki muttered. In fact, Zeno could have said he was busy if he had important work to do. But since Kaivan was with him, Kaivan, who loved to eat, would surely be upset if Zeno refused Riki's offer.

[Your first mission today is to make snacks with Nicho and Sofie]

[If you make the snacks yourself, the mission will fail]

[If you succeed, your reward will be 3 million dollars]

Riki raised an eyebrow, feeling quite surprised that he had been given such an easy mission.

Riki left the kitchen, looking for Nicho and Sofie. However, after Riki found them both in front of the swimming pool behind the mansion, he realized why he had to bring them along that morning.

They were arguing. Riki didn't understand what they were arguing about at the time, but they both immediately fell silent when they saw Riki there.

Nicho looked like he was holding back his anger, while Sofie was trying not to cry.

"Did you come here to ask me to give in because I'm older? I won't give in!" Sofie said suddenly.

Riki frowned in surprise, then turned to Nicho.

"I'm not at fault, she's the one at fault for talking rudely to me!" said Nicho.

"So, what's the problem between you two?" asked Riki.

Instead of answering, they pointed at each other.

"She's/he's definitely the one at fault!" they said at the same time.

Riki nodded slowly, then said, "In that case, you're both wrong."

They were both surprised to hear this.

"Riki, didn't you hear me? He's the one who's wrong, not me!" said Sofie.

"That's not true, she's the one who's wrong, Mr. Riki," replied Nicho.

"Since you're both at fault, your punishment is to make snacks with me. Come on, follow me!" said Riki, then turned and went back to the kitchen.

Behind him, the two teenagers followed Riki with their heads bowed, glancing at each other.

Secretly, Riki chuckled, because he thought they were very funny when they argued like that. Riki remembered that he and Anton used to be like that too when they were very young.

The problem was just over fighting for a toy, which didn't even belong to Riki or Anton.

It was normal for children to be like that, but for teenagers like Sofie and Nicho to be like that, it felt very silly.

"Are you ready to make snacks with me?" asked Riki.
