Harris hurriedly rushed over and whispered in Zachary's ear, "Mr. Sinclair, Ms. Wilson is the newly appointed CEO of the Regal Group!"

Zachary looked at Harris in astonishment, then turned his gaze towards Lillian.

Was she the new CEO of the Regal Group?

Even Beatrice, with tears streaking down her face, looked incredulous. "How, how is that possible? Her? The CEO of the Regal Group? Are you joking?"

Although Beatrice said that, deep down, she wasn't completely certain. She continued to gaze at Lillian, seemingly waiting for a definitive answer.

Upon being stared at like this, Lillian couldn't help but smirk slightly, her eyes filled with a hint of amusement. "What's wrong? Can't believe that I am the new CEO?"

Suddenly, she chuckled, "Well, it's true that in Mr. Sinclair's eyes, I have always been a woman who stays at home and can only handle domestic chores. How could Mr. Sinclair possibly connect me with the CEO of the Regal Group?"

"But I must disappoint you. I am indeed the CEO of the Regal Group."

Zachary's face turned extremely ugly. He never expected that Lillian had this kind of ability!

"I underestimated you."

Lillian approached Zachary step by step, drawing circles on the other side of his chest with her finger. "There are a lot of things that Mr. Sinclair doesn't know about, many more things!"

She wore a seductive smile, causing cracks to appear on Beatrice's face.

Lillian noticed people gathering around and maintaining some distance from them, so she quickly spoke up.

"Oh, I was frightened by Mr. Sinclair, and, in panic, I raised the kitchen knife at him." She handed the clean knife to a waiter and smiled, raising her eyes. "Mr. Sinclair, I came to attend the party. We have no disputes. Why did you drag me into this?"

Hearing her words, people around her started murmuring.

"So, there were no disputes? Could it be that Mr. Sinclair has taken a fancy to Ms. Wilson and dragged her for no reason?"

"Yeah, Ms. Wilson is so beautiful. Mr. Sinclair must have been captivated by her beauty."

"Hey, Mr. Sinclair has never been close to women before, but I didn't expect that he would be so lustful one day."

"Oh, I thought Mr. Sinclair had been committed to Beatrice all these years. Turns out it was all a lie."

Hearing the comments around, Beatrice clenched her hands, her fingertips sinking into her palm, as she looked up at Zachary pitifully.

Zachary

didn't give her the slightest attention, his gaze fixed on her, gradually narrowing. How much more did this woman know that he was unaware of?

Beatrice hesitantly tugged at Zachary's arm concerned

“Ms. Wilson, I apologize. I had a few drinks and mistook you for my deceased wife. I’m truly sorry!”

Afterwards, he took Beatrice’s hand and walked out briskly.

Only after he left did the crowd begin buzzing with discussions.

“Wait, when did Zachary get married? How did he suddenly have a wife, and one who has already deceased at that?”

“Yeah! I’ve never heard of it!”

“I have actually heard about it. They say they secretly got married and then secretly divorced. Who would have thought she became his deceased wife?”

Standing still, Lillian gritted her teeth in anger. That bastard actually cursed her to death! Diana looked at her thoughtfully. "Ms. Wilson, do you have any connection with Zachary?" Lillian smiled coolly. "Yes, I do."

Diana's nails, which she had painstakingly painted, trembled with fear at the image of Lillian wielding a knife.

She had done a lot of despicable things over the years, and if Lillian discovered them and exposed her, what would she do?
